Although research found no evidence that child labor exists in Niue, in 2021, the government made no advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The government has not established adequate legal protections to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The law does not criminally prohibit the use, procuring, or offering of a child for prostitution, the production of pornography, or pornographic performances, or the use of children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. In addition, Niue has not established a minimum age for work and lacks a law that prohibits hazardous occupations and activities for children.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Niue. Table 1 provides one key indicator on children's education in Niue.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Primary Completion Rate (%)		111.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Niue is self-governing in free association with New Zealand. (2,3) Since 1988, no treaty signed, ratified, accepted, approved, or acceded to by New Zealand extends to Niue, unless it was done expressly on behalf of Niue. (3) Niue has ratified one key international convention concerning child labor (Table 2).

Table 2. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 3). However, gaps exist in Niue's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including failure to criminalize using children in illicit activities.

Table 3. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No		Article 24 of the Niue Public Service Regulations (4)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 3 and 37 of the Terrorism Suppression and Transnational Crimes Act (5)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No

NO ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No

Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles 2 and 24 of the Education Act (7)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 19 of the Education Act (7)

* Country has no conscription (8)

† Country has no standing military (6)

Although Niue's Public Service Regulations prohibit the permanent employment of any person under age 18 in public service, a minimum age for work in the private sector has not been established. (3,4) Niue has not determined the types of work that are hazardous for children. The government also does not prohibit slavery or slavery-like practices such as forced labor. (9) Niue's human trafficking provision does not clearly criminalize domestic trafficking or the trafficking of children in the absence of force, fraud, or coercion. (5) In addition, the government does not criminalize the use, procuring, or offering of children for prostitution, pornography, or pornographic performances. Niue has also not criminalized the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs. (3) Although there are no armed forces in Niue, the law does not criminally prohibit non-state armed groups from recruiting children under age 18. (3) New Zealand is responsible for Niue's defense at the territory's request and consultation. (6,10)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor, including its worst forms. However, the Government of Niue has established relevant institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Niue Police Department	Enforces all laws, including those related to child labor, on behalf of the Government of Niue. (3)
Department of Justice	Investigates crimes, including cases involving the worst forms of child labor. (3)
Department for Community Affairs	Handles case intake and referral of children's matters to the Niue Police Department, including allegations of child labor. (3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor. However, the Government of Niue has established a mechanism to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Coordinating Committee	Coordinates the implementation of the UN CRC, monitoring and implementing child protection policies at the national level. (3) Research was unable to determine whether the National Coordinating Committee was active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor. However, the Government of Niue has established a policy related to child labor (Table 6).

Table 6. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	A multi-national strategic framework program consisting of 14 South Pacific nations to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (11) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the strategy during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Niue (Table 7).

Table 7. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish a minimum age for work of at least age 16 that equals the compulsory age of education.	2013 – 2021
	Establish 18 as the minimum age for hazardous work and identify hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit forced labor, including debt bondage, the sale and trafficking of children, and slavery.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the trafficking of children domestically and internationally for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor, and do not require that the use of force, fraud, or coercion be established for the crime of human trafficking.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use, procuring, and offering of a child for prostitution, the production of pornography, and pornographic performances.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the forced or compulsory recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Ratify the ILO Worst Forms of Child Labor Convention.	2019 – 2021
	Ratify UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children.	2021
	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2021
Coordination	Ensure the National Coordinating Committee is active and able to carry out its intended mandate.	2020 – 2021
Government Policies	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement the United Nations Pacific Strategy and that data on these activities are published during the reporting period.	2020 – 2021

Although research found no evidence that child labor exists on Norfolk Island, in 2021, the government made moderate advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the Australian Work Health and Safety Act 2011 (Cth) was amended to include provisions for workers and workplaces on Norfolk Island. However, Norfolk Island's laws do not set a minimum age for light work, which is not in compliance with international standards. In addition, the law does not specify activities in which light work may be permitted.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists on Norfolk Island. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Norfolk Island is non-self-governing and is included as part of the territory of the Australian Commonwealth. (2-4) Under the Acts Interpretation Act 1901 (Cth), all laws of the Commonwealth are applicable to Norfolk Island as if it were a part of mainland Australia. (5) The following Conventions have been extended to Norfolk Island (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

Norfolk Island is subject to the laws and regulations related to child labor of the Commonwealth of Australia and some of the laws and regulations related to child labor of the state of New South Wales. Some laws specific to Norfolk Island also remain in force. However, gaps exist in Norfolk Island's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for light work (Table 2).

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 24 of the Employment Act 1988 (NI) (6)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Sections 85 and 89 of the Work Health and Safety Regulation 2017 (NSW) (NI); Schedule 9 of the Norfolk Island Applied Laws Ordinance 2016 (7,8)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Sections 85 and 89 of the Work Health and Safety Regulation 2017 (NSW) (NI); Schedule 9 of the Norfolk Island Applied Laws Ordinance 2016; List of High Risk Work Licenses (7-9)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 270.6–270.7 of the Criminal Code Act 1995 (Cth); Sections 270.6–270.7 and 271.9 of the Crimes Legislation Amendment Act 2013 (Cth) (10,11)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Division 270 and 271 of the Criminal Code Act 1995 (Cth) (10)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 122 of the Criminal Code 2007 (NI); Sections 91A–G of the Crimes Act 1900 (NSW)(NI) (12,13)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Divisions 309–310 of the Criminal Code Act 1995 (Cth); Sections 303–305 of the Criminal Code 2007 (NI) (10,12)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Canberra Act 2600 (14)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Canberra Act 2600 (14)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Sections 268.68 and 268.88 of the Criminal Code Act 1995 (Cth) (10)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	17	Section 21(B) of the Education Act 1990 (NSW)(NI); Schedule 1AA of the Norfolk Island Applied Laws Ordinance 2016 (7,15)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 31 of the Education Act 1990 (NSW) (NI) (16)

* Country has no conscription (14)

During the reporting period, the Government of Australia extended the provisions of its Work Health and Safety Act 2011 to fully encompass all workers and workplaces on Norfolk Island. The Act contains guidance pertaining to the provision of a safe work environment, adequate training of employees, and proper maintenance of facilities. (1,17)

The Education Act 1990 (NSW)(NI) defines the compulsory education age as 17, or the age at which a child completes Year 10 of compulsory schooling. The law restricts employment for children who have not yet completed compulsory schooling, and allows children under age 17 who have completed Year 10 to engage in approved employment. (6,15) The Employment Act 1988 (NI) does not set a minimum age for light work, which is not in compliance with international standards. In addition, the law does not specify activities in which light work may be permitted. (6) However, local authorities have reported that no children under age 15 are currently employed in Norfolk Island. (1)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

Although there is no evidence of a problem, the Government of Australia has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor, which apply to Norfolk Island. Norfolk Island also has its own institutional mechanisms to enforce labor laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Norfolk Island Labor Inspectors	Inspect places of employment for violations. Authorized to issue stop-work orders when violations are found, including child labor violations. (1,6)
Child Welfare Officers	Enforce laws prohibiting commercial sexual exploitation of children. Provide outreach and establish community programs to raise awareness about commercial sexual exploitation of children. (18)
Australian Federal Police	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (2,19) Oversee the Child Protection Operations Team, which coordinates and investigates online and multijurisdictional child sexual exploitation issues, including child pornography; and the Human Trafficking Teams, which investigate human trafficking for the purposes of transnational sexual and labor exploitation. (20,21)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor. However, the Government of Australia has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Interdepartmental Committee (IDC) on Human Trafficking	Deals with child labor issues, including its worst forms, from a counter-trafficking perspective. Comprises 12 government agencies, including the Australian Federal Police, Department of Employment, and Department of Foreign Affairs, and is chaired by the Australian Border Force. (1,21) Includes an Operational Working Group subcommittee that meets monthly and refers emerging policy issues for IDC consideration. (1) During the reporting period, the IDC published its tenth report on the government's efforts to prevent human trafficking, including private sector engagement and allocation of funds to promote justice for victims of human trafficking. (22,23)

During the reporting period, the Government of Australia issued its annual report detailing the previous year's activities related to implementation of the Modern Slavery Act. Efforts included conducting awareness-raising events and promoting best practices in public sector procurement. (22)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor. However, the Government of Australia has established policies related to child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking and Slavery 2020–2025	Sets five strategic priorities for addressing modern slavery, which the National Action Plan defines as trafficking in persons, slavery, slavery-like practices, and the worst forms of child labor. Priorities include: (1) prevention; (2) disruption, investigation, and prosecution; (3) support and protection for victims; (4) partnerships; and (5) research. (1,24) The policy was active during the reporting period. (1,23)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

However, federal cash transfer programs for youth and families are available to residents of Norfolk Island. (1)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Norfolk Island (Table 6).

Table 6. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish a minimum age for light work to comply with international standards.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions specify the activities in which light work may be undertaken.	2020 – 2021

In 2021, North Macedonia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Labor Inspectorate received an increased budget to improve hiring capacity, and there was a marked increase in the number of worksite inspections over the course of the year. In addition, the government adopted the National Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration (2021–2025) and an accompanying operational plan for the 2021–2022 period, both addressing the unique needs of children and other populations considered to be most at risk for trafficking in persons. The government also adopted the Employment and Social Policy Reform Program with the goal of creating new initiatives focused on poverty reduction and social inclusion for the country's most vulnerable populations. However, children in North Macedonia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in forced begging. The law's minimum age protections do not apply to children who are self-employed or working outside formal employment relationships. Additionally, the government has not adopted a policy to address all worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in North Macedonia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in forced begging. (1-5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in North Macedonia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	18.8 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	20.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		93.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2018, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (6)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2019. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, † including in production of tobacco (5,8)
Services	Street work, including vending small items, cleaning vehicle windshields, scavenging, and begging (3,5,9)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (5,10)
	Forced begging (5,9,11,12)
	Forced domestic work (3,5,13)
	Forced labor as wait staff and dancers in restaurants, bars, and nightclubs (4,5,10,14)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Most children involved in child labor in North Macedonia engage in street work, with the majority from the Roma, Balkan Egyptian, and Ashkali ethnicities. (3,5,9,12)

North Macedonia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Child trafficking victims in North Macedonia are usually girls, between the ages of 12 to 18, who have been subjected to domestic trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor in restaurants, bars, and nightclubs. (3,8,12,15) Roma girls, especially, are victims of trafficking for forced marriages in which they are subjected to sexual and labor exploitation. (5,10,11,16,17) Migrant children from Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Iran, Syria, Pakistan, and other states continue to transit through the country and are vulnerable to trafficking for labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (10,18-20)

The Ministry of Labor and Social Policy (MLSP), schools, and civil society organizations offer assistance to Roma children who have difficulty accessing education due to a lack of birth registration and identity cards, which are required for attending school in North Macedonia. (3,9) However, the government was unable to fully meet the educational needs of Roma children due to an ongoing shortage of qualified teachers who can provide instruction in Romani. (17,21)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

North Macedonia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in North Macedonia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Article 42 of the Constitution; Sections 63, 66, and 67 of the Labor Relations Act (22,23)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 265 and Sections 63, 66, and 67 of the Labor Relations Act (23)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Rulebook on the Minimum Occupational Safety and Health Requirements for Young Workers (24)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 11 of the Constitution; Articles 418(c) and 418(d) of the Criminal Code (22,25)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 418(c) and 418(d) of the Criminal Code (25)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 190–193b of the Criminal Code (25)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 12(3) of the Law on Child Protection (26)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 62 of the Law on Defense (27)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Article 62 of the Law on Defense (27)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 122, 322a, and 404 of the Criminal Code (25)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles 4, 5, 47, and 172 of the Law on Primary Education; Article 3 of the Law on Secondary Education (28,29)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 44 of the Constitution (22)

* Country has no conscription (27)

The minimum age for work does not comply with international standards because the law's minimum age protections do not apply to children who are self-employed or working outside formal employment relationships. (3,21,23) Because the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. In addition, the legal framework does not prohibit the use of children in illicit activities, including the production and distribution of drugs. (25,26,30)

During the reporting period, the National Commission for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings and Migrant Smuggling continued to draft a new law allowing for compensation payments to victims of crime and trafficking offenses, including children. (5)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Policy (MLSP)	Collaborates with the police and the Ombudsman's Office to conduct investigations and identify children living and working on the streets, and monitors cases of forced child labor through the Department of Social Inclusion. (8,31) Refers children to 30 Centers for Social Work throughout the country, which serve to counsel, educate, shelter, and assist children in need and victims of trafficking in persons. (31,32)
State Labor Inspectorate	Enforces labor law, including child labor laws, by conducting at least 60 targeted and complaint-based inspections per month. Receives complaints of child labor and refers cases of the worst forms of child labor to the Public Prosecutor. (5) Responsible for labor law enforcement in all sectors of the formal economy and can assess fines at any point of the inspection. (5)
Ministry of the Interior (MOI)	Enforces laws related to hazardous child labor, child trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation through its special police unit for organized crime, corruption, and human trafficking. (3,4,8,15)
Public Prosecutor's Office	Prosecutes criminal law violations, including those involving the worst forms of child labor. (5) Has an Organized Crime and Corruption Unit with four prosecutors dedicated to cases of child abuse and the worst forms of child labor. The Skopje Public Prosecutor's Office has eight prosecutors for child abuse cases. (4)
National Unit for the Suppression of Migrant Smuggling and Human Trafficking (also known as Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force)	Established by MOI in 2001 to promote efficiency in interagency and local-level efforts to address trafficking in human beings. Led by a public prosecutor. (3,4,33)

North Macedonia's National Referral Mechanism enables law enforcement authorities to refer children found to be involved in the worst forms of child labor to social services, including those related to the protection, care, rehabilitation, and eventual reintegration of minor victims. (3,5)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in North Macedonia took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the State Labor Inspectorate that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the lack of a central database for tracking labor investigations.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$2,300,000 (3)	$2,430,000 (5)
Number of Labor Inspectors	114 (3)	130 (5)
Mechanism to Assess Civil Penalties	Yes (3)	Yes (23)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (3)	Yes (5)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	Yes (3)	N/A (5)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (3)	Yes (5)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	15,944 (3)	22,986 (5)
Number Conducted at Worksite	15,944 (3)	22,986 (5)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	0 (3)	0 (5)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	N/A (3)	N/A (5)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	N/A (3)	N/A (5)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (3)	Yes (5)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (3)	Yes (5)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (3)	Yes (23)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (3)	Yes (5)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (3)	Yes (5)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (5)

The Labor Inspectorate has an annual plan that determines the number of worksite inspections to be conducted during the calendar year. Unannounced inspections in all sectors are permitted, including on legally registered private farms. (8,34) Inspectors can also inspect private homes and farms with a valid warrant. (5) During the reporting period, the Labor Inspectorate received additional funding designated for hiring and retention of new inspectors. (5)

The MLSP lacks a central database to track labor investigations; however, inspection results are disseminated throughout relevant departments within the MLSP. (15)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in North Macedonia took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (3)	No (5)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (3)	N/A (5)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (3)	No (5)
Number of Investigations	37 (3)	15 (5)
Number of Violations Found	37 (3)	5 (5)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	29 (3)	5 (5)
Number of Convictions	25 (3)	1 (5)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (3)	Yes (5)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (5)

In North Macedonia, legal requirements mandate that public prosecutors receive a 24-month general training, which includes the application of international legal standards. (15) Police investigators normally receive initial training, in addition to training when legislation changes. (1) Criminal law enforcement authorities did not receive initial training or refresher courses during the reporting period. (5)

In 2021, the Public Prosecutor's Office found six violations pertaining to crimes involving children. Of those, four victims were trafficked for forced marriage, one for sexual exploitation, and one for forced begging. (35)

Since 2015, the Ministry of the Interior (MOI) has operated the “Red Button” hotline, a website application to report child abuse, human trafficking, hate crimes, and violence. The hotline was created to improve identification and timely referral of human trafficking cases, especially among migrants. (3) However, research indicates that some local police officials lacked knowledge on how to identify human trafficking victims and refer them to services. In addition, some members of the police were not aware of the specialized Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force, even though both are under the MOI. (5,8) Further, the lack of a digital case management system within the MOI limited interdepartmental awareness, as local police did not have the ability to quickly transfer suspected human trafficking cases from their jurisdiction to relevant national authorities in a timely fashion. (3,4)

The Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force does not have separate funding or assets and lacks adequate equipment, vehicles, and office space, which hinders its efforts to perform investigations and meet the needs of identified victims. (5)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of human resources.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Coordination Body for the Prevention and Countering of Abuse and Neglect of Children	Led by MLSP in conjunction with the Ministries of Interior, Education and Science, Health, and Justice, UNICEF, and multiple NGOs around the country. (3,5) During the reporting period, the Commission continued to implement activities related to the annual Action Plan for the Prevention and Countering of Abuse and Neglect of Children. (5)
National Commission for Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration (National Trafficking in Persons Commission)	Coordinates the work of institutions involved in addressing human trafficking. Led by MOI and under the direction of the National Anti-Trafficking in Persons Coordinator, with 16 representatives from 11 government institutions. (5,31,35) Includes five local committees, which implement local action plans, and the Sub-Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Children, which serves as an advisory body to the National Trafficking in Persons Commission on all forms of child trafficking. (5,8) In 2021, the Commission's working group dedicated to addressing child trafficking prepared a 2021–2022 operational plan designed to prevent human trafficking of at-risk minors, improve victim identification processes, and promote efforts to reduce forced child begging. (5)

Sources reported that the local committees overseen by the National Commission for Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration needed to build their capacity to adequately address human trafficking and hire more personnel to carry out activities. The Commission has continued to implement local action plans, however, and its annual report indicates that strengthening communication and coordination between the national and local bodies will continue to be a priority. (2,8,35)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the lack of a policy that covers all worst forms of child labor.

North Macedonia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration (2021–2025) †	Focuses on preventing human trafficking by reducing the vulnerability of at-risk populations, improving the identification of victims, and increasing efforts to address human trafficking and forced child begging. (5,13) During the reporting period, the National Trafficking in Persons Commission collaborated with IOM and the Anti-TIP Secretariat to develop a victim-centered and gender-based approach to continue addressing trafficking in persons. (13)
National Action Plan for Education (2018–2025)	Aims in part to expand inclusive education and improve education for the Roma community. Seeks to increase the number of Roma students in preschools and elementary schools and decrease the number of Roma students who, based on ethnicity, are enrolled in primary schools for children with special needs. (17,37) In 2021, the Ministry of Education and Science (MOES) implemented a number of activities related to the Action Plan, including providing funding for new teachers and school renovations, adapting curriculum to be more inclusive of children who were identified as "returnees" to formal education and children with disabilities, and reforming vocational institutions to improve youth employment rates. (5,38)
Action Plan for the National Strategy for Prevention and Countering Abuse and Neglect of Children (2020–2022)	Presents the vision, goals, and strategic approach of the government and the activities to be undertaken annually in the prevention and protection of children from all types of violence. Prepared by the National Coordination Body for Prevention and Protection of Children from Abuse and Neglect. (39) During the reporting period, representatives from MLSP and other ministries, the UNICEF Skopje office, and other civil society organizations participated in the implementation of the Action Plan. (5)

North Macedonia maintains bilateral agreements to address human trafficking with all its neighboring countries. (4) During the reporting period, the MLSP developed a new Employment and Social Policy Reform Program to be implemented in 2022. The program will focus on initiatives to reduce poverty and promote social inclusion for the country's most vulnerable populations. (5)

Although the Government of North Macedonia has adopted policies aimed at addressing child trafficking and assisting children begging and working on the streets, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor. (40)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
MLSP-Operated and Funded Centers and Shelters †	MLSP operates and funds several programs, sometimes in coordination with NGOs, which provide support and services to victims of human trafficking and vulnerable populations such as street children. Additionally, MLSP provides extensive support for one day center to assist children participating in street work, and funds another center operated by an NGO to provide services, healthcare, and counseling to children working in the streets. (8,14,31) MLSP also funds the Center for Victims of Human Trafficking (operated by NGO Open Gate/ La Strada ), a transit center for asylum seekers, and the MOI-operated Transit Center for Illegal Migrants. (5) During the reporting period, one of MLSP's mobile teams worked extensively with families of children who have requested the services of the day center. In addition, estimates indicate that approximately 100 children receive assistance from the NGO-operated center on an annual basis. (5)
UNICEF Projects	Include UNICEF partnerships with the government and NGOs to provide projects for child protection, detection and referral of child victims of violence, and educational integration of vulnerable children, including Roma and migrant children. (15) Also include the Home for Every Child Program. (15,32,41,42) During the reporting period, UNICEF assisted MOES with implementing activities under the Law on Primary Education, which obliges schools to promote student well-being, protect children from abuse and neglect, and prevent discrimination. In addition, UNICEF assisted MLSP and the Skopje Intermunicipal Center for Social Work with locating street children in need of intervention and approaching their families to inform them of social assistance programs for qualifying families. (5)

Program	Description
Employment and Social Policy Reform Program*†	Developed by MLSP in 2021 in part to alleviate poverty and promote social inclusion for vulnerable citizens. During the reporting period, MLSP provided counseling and guidance to groups vulnerable to exploitation including youth, Roma, and minimum income participants regarding their rights in the labor market. (5,43)
Child Allowance Program‡	Government-supported program providing monthly child allowance payments to low-income households and families receiving other forms of government assistance. During the reporting period, the government of North Macedonia approved an additional education allowance for children from low-income families. (5)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (5,44-47)

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Education and Science continued to employ educational mediators for Roma students from economically disadvantaged families and to provide mediation options for other students who have frequently spent time outside of the formal education system. Thirty-five mediators from 26 municipalities worked with Roma children to reduce attrition rates and further strengthen ties between educators and Roma parents. (5) In addition, mobile teams consisting of social workers, police officers, and civil sector representatives continued to visit the homes of at-risk children and met with their families to educate them on children's rights and state social benefit programs. (5) Additionally, the NGO Megjashi continued to support its SOS Helpline for Children and Youth, which received 151 reports of children needing assistance during the first half of the year. Several calls involved risk factors for child labor, including economic exploitation, harmful and dangerous work, and violence against children. (48)

However, day centers and other programs have not reduced child begging or the number of children on the streets, especially among Roma children, suggesting that existing programs were insufficient for addressing child labor. (5,14)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in North Macedonia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that labor law protections apply to all children, including self-employed children and children working outside formal employment relationships.	2015 – 2021
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that the law provides criminal penalties for the use, procuring, and offering of children for illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2019 – 2021
Enforcement	Ensure that criminal law enforcement authorities receive appropriate training on child labor and identification of victims/potential victims of human trafficking.	2021
	Provide labor inspectors and the Ministry of Interior with electronic systems to record and share data on inspections with the entity receiving the citation and publish the information.	2009 – 2021
	Provide sufficient funding for the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force to carry out its duties to address human trafficking.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that law enforcement agencies proactively identify child trafficking victims.	2015 – 2021
Coordination	Build the capacity and resources of local committees to adequately address human trafficking.	2018 – 2021
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, such as a national action plan on child labor.	2018 – 2021
Social Programs	Conduct research to determine the activities carried out by children engaged in child labor.	2013 – 2021
	Increase efficacy of programs dedicated to addressing child labor and ensure that child beggars receive the support needed to be removed from street work permanently.	2015 – 2021
	Reduce barriers to education by increasing the number of teachers who can provide education in the Romani language.	2021

In 2021, Oman made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted a new National Plan for Combating Human Trafficking, established child protection committees at the governorate level, and investigated and charged two suspects in a child sex trafficking case. The labor inspectorate also increased inspections in response to videos shared on social media documenting labor violations. Although research is limited, there is evidence that small numbers of children in Oman engage in child labor, including in fishing and farming. Government policies do not address all forms of child labor and the Ministry of Labor is not represented on the National Committee on Implementing the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child or the National Child Protection Committee.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that small numbers of children in Oman engage in child labor, including in fishing and farming. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Oman. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		99.2

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (2)

Source for all other data: Data were unavailable from ILO's analysis, 2022. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (1)
	Fishing, activities unknown (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Oman has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government's laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Articles 1, 8, and 75 of the Labor Law (4)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 45, 46, and 71 of the Child Law; Article 2 of Ministry of Manpower Order 217/2016 (4,5)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 5 of Ministry of Manpower Order 217/2016 (6)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established relevant institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Monitors and enforces child labor laws, conducts labor inspections, and shares information with the Royal Oman Police on labor and criminal law violations when penalties are pursued. (13)
Ministry of Social Development (MOSD)	Enforces the Child Law, including by receiving complaints and referring cases to the Royal Oman Police and the Office of the Public Prosecutor. (13)

Organization/Agency	Role
Royal Oman Police	Monitor and enforce the Child Law, including its provisions related to child labor, and refer cases to the Office of the Public Prosecutor. (14)
Office of the Public Prosecutor	Prosecutes human trafficking and sexual exploitation cases in court with assistance from the Royal Oman Police. (14,15)
Child Protection Committee	Protects children from exploitation, receives complaints and reports of child labor, and investigates reported cases to determine whether children are engaged in prohibited activities or whether working has negative effects on their health or education. (14,16)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Oman took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MOL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (1)	Unknown (13)
Number of Labor Inspectors	303 (17)	282 (18)
Mechanism to Assess Civil Penalties	Yes (4,5,19)	Yes (4,5,19)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (17)	Yes (18)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (1)	Yes (18)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	Unknown (1)	Unknown (13)
Number Conducted at Worksite	Unknown (1)	Unknown (13)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	0 (1)	Unknown (13)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	N/A	Unknown (13)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	N/A	Unknown (13)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (13)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Unknown (1)	Unknown (13)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (19)	Yes (19)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (13)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (1)	Yes (13)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (13)

The MOL conducts yearly inspections of all private institutions and re-inspections of workplaces found to be in violation of labor laws. Labor inspections are also conducted following a complaint. (13,20) If a violation is found, the institution is given a set period of time to address the problem. If an institution fails to address the violation, a fine may be levied. (13,20) The MOL can refer cases of child labor to the Ministry of Social Development (MOSD) if the child is under the minimum age for work. The MOL and MOSD can also coordinate with the Royal Oman Police to shelter child victims and refer suspected violators for criminal investigation. (13)

In June 2021, the MOL announced it was increasing inspections in response to videos shared on social media documenting labor violations, which the MOL determined were not current. (13) In 2021, the number of labor inspections conducted exceeded 80,000. (21)

The government did not provide information on the number of child labor violations found for inclusion in this report.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, the government's criminal law enforcement agencies appeared to function adequately in addressing child labor (Table 7).

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (1)	Yes (13)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (1)	Unknown (13)
Number of Investigations	0 (1)	2 (21,22)
Number of Violations Found	N/A (1)	2 (22,23)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	N/A (1)	2 (22,23)
Number of Convictions	0 (1)	2 (21,22)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	Yes (22,23)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (13)

In April 2021, the Royal Oman Police received a report of a missing foreign national girl, then a subsequent report that the girl had returned to her home with bruises. Upon investigation, the Royal Oman Police identified the girl as a victim of sex trafficking and referred her to the Dar al-Wifaq trafficking shelter. (23) As a result, the government charged two foreign nationals under the Law to Combat Human Trafficking with exploiting a child in prostitution; the suspects remained in pretrial detention at the end of the reporting period. (23) In addition, the government convicted one trafficker of forcing two foreign national boys into begging. The boys were also referred to the Dar al-Wifaq shelter. (22)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the omission of the MOL from the National Child Protection Committee.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Child Protection Committee	Consists of representatives from the MOSD, the Ministry of Health, the Ministry of Education, and the Royal Oman Police. Oversees regional committees, which are responsible for coordinating intervention with children who are survivors of abuse, neglect, or other related issues, and works with UNICEF on several projects related to child intervention. (1) However, the MOL is not represented on the Committee. (1) In 2021, child protection committees were established at the governorate level. (13)
National Committee on Implementing the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child	Led by the MOSD Under Secretary and consists of representatives from government and private organizations concerned with children's rights. Submits proposals to achieve the CRC's principles and follows up on the UN body's comments and recommendations. (17) However, the MOL is not represented on the Committee. (17) Active in 2021. (18)
National Committee for Combating Human Trafficking	Oversees the National Action Plan for Combating Human Trafficking. Includes the Royal Oman Police and 12 other state agencies. (1) Met regularly during 2021 to recommend additions and modifications to the National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking. (13)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including lack of coverage of all forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan for Combating Human Trafficking (2021–2023)†	Aims to educate stakeholders on their rights and responsibilities, train authorities on addressing human trafficking, coordinate government services for survivors, and develop new policies and best practices. (24) Adopted in 2021. (13)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

Although the Government of Oman has adopted the National Plan for Combating Human Trafficking, it does not have a comprehensive policy to address all forms of child labor, including in farming and fishing.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, which cover the main sectors in which child labor has been identified in the country (Table 10).

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Social Security Cash Transfer Program†	Provides assistance to children in low-income families, including educational services. (16) Active in 2021. (13)

† Program is funded by the Government of Oman.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Oman (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Collect and publish data on the number of child labor violations found.	2013 – 2021
Coordination	Ensure that the Ministry of Labor participates in the National Child Protection Committee and the National Committee on Implementing the UN CRC.	2016 – 2021
Government Policies	Develop a national policy to address all forms of child labor that occur within Oman, including in farming and fishing.	2013 – 2021
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2021

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2021, Pakistan made minimal advancement because it continued to implement practices that delay advancement to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the Pakistani federal government and some provincial governments enacted legislation to address the worst forms of child labor, including bills prohibiting hazardous work for children under 14 years in Balochistan; banning corporal punishment of children, including in domestic work; and establishing special courts dedicated to child protection. Additionally, the Federal Investigative Authority provided training for Pakistani police, social welfare and labor departments, and child protection bureaus at the central and provincial levels. The Child Protection and Welfare Bureau rescued over 1,000 children from begging in Punjab and referred 1,500 to 2,000 children for psychological counseling. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Pakistan is assessed as having made only minimal advancement because it continued to implement practices that delays advancement to eliminate child labor. Pakistan continued to support the Taliban in Afghanistan, and reports indicate that the Taliban recruited and used child soldiers during the reporting period. Children in Pakistan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including forced domestic work and forced labor in brick manufacturing and agriculture. Additionally, provincial labor inspectorates do not have sufficient resources to adequately enforce laws prohibiting child labor, and the federal and provincial governments did not publicly release information on their labor and criminal law enforcement efforts. Furthermore, police corruption, particularly the taking of bribes from suspected perpetrators to ignore child labor crimes and a lack of willingness to conduct criminal investigations, hindered Pakistan's ability to address child labor throughout the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Pakistan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including forced domestic work. Children also engage in forced labor in brick manufacturing and agriculture. (1,2) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Pakistan. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including harvesting cotton, sugarcane, and wheat (1,5)
	Fishing, including deep sea fishing† (6,7)
	Poultry farming (8)
Industry	Manufacturing glass bangles,† surgical instruments,† and jewelry (1,6,9-15)
	Weaving carpets,† producing garments, and tanning leather† (6,9,12,13,16-19)
	Producing bricks (1,9,10,13,17-22)
	Mining coal† and gemstones, and crushing stone† (6,17,20,23,24)
	Construction (8)
Services	Domestic work (1,10,25,26)
	Working in hotels, restaurants, gas stations, and automobile repair (1,9,10,17,19,27,28)
	Scavenging† and sorting garbage and recyclables, begging, and street vending (2,19,27,29,30)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in agriculture, brickmaking, carpet weaving, and coal mining (1,9,31)
	Forced domestic work (9,25,31)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,9,10,13,31-35)
	Forced begging (9,31)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (2,31)
	Use in illicit activities, including the trafficking and production of drugs (2,19,36)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Pakistan consists of the Islamabad Capital Territory (ICT), which is governed by federal law, and four provinces—Balochistan, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Punjab, and Sindh—each of which is responsible for all social services, including those related to labor, within their areas. Law enforcement responsibilities are shared between the federal and provincial governments. (37,38) When available, data and information are included for the federal and provincial governments in this report. Pakistan's federal and provincial governments, with technical assistance provided by UNICEF, continued conducting nationwide child labor surveys through 2021. (2) These surveys—the first conducted since 1996—are expected to address the lack of available child labor data that has hampered the federal and provincial governments' ability to accurately assess the scope and prevalence of child labor. (2,25) The COVID-19 pandemic has delayed the completion of the survey until 2022. (2)

Child laborers in Pakistan are sometimes subjected to sexual abuse at their places of employment, including in factories, workshops, or while scavenging on the streets. (39) They are also sometimes subjected to sexual exploitation to obtain or keep their jobs or accommodations. (39,40) According to reports, 35 percent of reported child abuse cases across Pakistan occurs in the workplace. (41) Traffickers promise Pakistani boys admittance to Afghan religious schools but then sell them to members of the Afghan security forces for bacha bazi, a practice in which boys are forced to provide social and sexual entertainment for older men. (31)

While there is limited data collection and underreporting to assess the extent of commercial sexual exploitation of children in Pakistan, research has found there were almost 3,000 cases of child right abuses in the reporting year of which 1,800 were related to sexual abuse. Child domestic workers sometimes work under conditions of forced labor, including debt bondage, sexual assault, and extreme physical abuse. (9,25,26,31) Poor rural families sometimes sell their children into domestic servitude or other types of work, or pay agents to arrange for such work, often believing their child would work under decent conditions. Some children are also kidnapped or sold into organized begging rings, domestic servitude, gangs, and child sex trafficking. (37,31) Children in domestic servitude are vulnerable to violence because they work in private residences outside the purview of labor inspectors. (2) Reports estimate that around 70 percent of bonded laborers in Pakistan are children, and they make up one-third of the 4 million people working in brick kilns. (2,22) Some children work with their families as bonded laborers in the production of bricks. (9,10,22,31) In Sindh Province, almost 700,000 children work as bonded laborers in the agricultural sector. (2)

Begging ringmasters sometimes maim children to earn more money or force children to steal. (31) Organized criminal groups reportedly force Afghan, Iranian, and Pakistani children, particularly from Dalbadin and Quetta in Balochistan into drug trafficking in Sindh and Balochistan Provinces, and in parts of Karachi. (9,31,37) Children are also used in smuggling operations along the Afghan border with Khyber Pakhtunkhwa. (2,8) In Karachi, an estimated 20,000 children, the majority of them from Afghan origin, are found engaged in scavenging. (2) Various factors can compound vulnerability to child labor, including religious minority and caste status. Marginalized minority communities, such as Christian and Hindu Dalits, are likely to be less educated, to lack land or other assets, and to be discriminated against by their surrounding communities, police, and judicial systems. (31,8)

Children in Pakistan face several barriers to education. In line with global trends, the pandemic exacerbated lack of access to education during the reporting period. Some schools were intermittently closed, offering only online classes. (2,42) There was insufficient internet coverage in many rural areas, especially in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Province, which hampered children's access to meaningful learning. (2,42) A recent survey found that 3.7 million children ages 5 to 16 in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa did not attend school during the reporting period, an increase from 2.1 million in 2018. Similarly, studies reported that 7.7 million children in Punjab and 6.4 million children in Sindh did not attend schools. (2) Many other children face barriers to accessing education, including high rates of teacher absenteeism, inadequate facilities, lack of transportation, school fees, and corporal punishment, which may deter children from attending school. (2,11,43)

Sexual abuse of children in Pakistan's madrassas—Islamic religious schools that provide free education and meals to Pakistan's poorest children—is also of significant concern. (44-47) Pakistan currently has around 36,000 registered and unregistered madrassas; sexual abuse in madrassas significantly hinders the ability of a large number of Pakistani children to attend school and receive an education. (44,45,47) A report on a school-based sexual abuse prevention program from 2018 found that there were approximately 18,000 children who were victims of child sexual abuse in Pakistan in the past five years. (2,48)

Non-state armed militant groups reportedly kidnap children as young as age 12, coerce parents with threats, and recruit children forcibly from madrassas to spy, fight, and carry out suicide attacks. (31,49,50) Schools in Pakistan may still be vulnerable to attacks by unknown armed groups, disrupting children's access to education. (2,9,11,13,37,51) The government operated a center in Swat, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, to rehabilitate, educate, and reintegrate former child soldiers. (52)

According to reports, the Taliban in Afghanistan recruited at least 34 children for various roles with its organization in the first half of 2021, including for use in combat, making and transporting improvised explosive devices, and acting as bodyguards. (53) Information on the Taliban's recruitment and use of children during the second half of the year could not be documented due to the departure of UN organizations and other monitoring entities from the country. (53)

As the Taliban took over Afghanistan, the Pakistani military provided new fighters to the Taliban from inside Pakistani sanctuaries. Pakistan government provided the Taliban with services, including safe havens, medical assistance, and real estate deals. (54,55) In June 2021, the U.S. Department of State released its annual list mandated by the Child Soldiers Prevention Act that included Pakistan as a government that recruited and used child soldiers or supported armed groups that do so. (56)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Pakistan has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Pakistan's legal framework at federal and provincial level to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work and for hazardous work.

‡ The minimum age for work in brick kilns is 14 years old. The minimum age for work in domestic work is 15 years old. (66,68)

The Eighteenth Amendment to the Pakistani Constitution permits provinces to pass laws that govern labor law and children's welfare. (88,89) Federal law applies only until the province passes a law on the same subject. (88) The ICT administration banned child domestic labor in the capital territory in 2020 in response to an employer's fatal beating of an 8-year-old girl who was being illegally employed as a domestic worker. The government also added child domestic labor to the list of occupations defined as hazardous work prohibited for children under the Employment of Children Act 1991. (2,90,91) In 2021, the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa provincial assembly approved the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Home Based Workers (Welfare and Protection) Bill, 2021, which bans domestic work and forced labor of children under age 14 years in the province. (2,92) In addition, the Punjab Domestic Workers Act instituted a ban on child domestic work for any child under age 15. (93)

In 2021, the Pakistan National Assembly passed the National Commission on the Rights of the Child (Amendment Bill), 2021 and the Islamabad Capital Territory Child Protection (Amendment Bill), 2021. The amendments allow appropriate government ministries to administer relevant issues related to child rights and protection instead of the federal cabinet. (94) This legislation would ensure that child rights issues are addressed in a timely and effective manner. (94) However, the bills are pending passage in the Senate. (2) Additionally, in February and September 2021, the government enacted a law that prohibits corporal punishment of children in all workplaces and education institutions in the ICT, providing a new way to address the physical abuse of child domestic workers under the law. (2,95) In Sindh, the government passed the Sindh Child Protection Authority (Amendment) Bill, 2021, which requires law enforcement to file the first information report regarding a missing or abducted child within 4 hours. A section of the bill entitled Establishment of Special Courts requires the creation of special courts for child protection in each district in Sindh that would try cases under the Sindh Child Protection Authority Act within 120 days. (96) However, the implementation of the law has not yet begun. (2) In April, the Balochistan Assembly passed the Balochistan Forced and Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act 2021 and the Balochistan Employment of Children (Prohibition and Regulation) Act 2021. The Bonded Labor Act banned hazardous work for children under age 14 and established a Committee on the Rights of the Child. (2) Furthermore, the act made it punishable for employers to pay wages to children and adolescents that are not equal to adults. (2)

Some of Pakistan's federal and provincial laws are not in compliance with international standards on child labor. The federal minimum age for work provisions and the minimum age for work laws in Balochistan, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, and Sindh Provinces are not in compliance with international standards because they do not extend to informal employment, such as household work. (57-62,64-71) The federal government's minimum age for hazardous work is age 14, which does not comply with international standards. (61) The federal minimum age for hazardous work still applies in Balochistan Province, as Balochistan has not established a minimum age for hazardous work. (61,97)

Hazardous work prohibitions for the federal government and the four provinces do not cover brickmaking, for which there is evidence that children are exposed to environmental health hazards. (17,98,99) Additionally, hazardous work prohibitions for the federal and provincial governments do not cover child domestic work, for which there is evidence that children are exposed to physical abuse. (2,100) However, the federal government, at the request of the Ministry of Human Rights expanded the hazardous occupation list to include child domestic labor in the ICT. (2) Although laws in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Punjab, and Sindh Provinces prohibit children under age 18 from working in underground mines or above-ground quarries, federal law—which also still applies in Balochistan—does not prohibit children ages 15 to 18 from working in mines. There is evidence that children in Balochistan are engaged in coal mining, which involves exposure to hazardous substances, work underground, and lethal accidents. (23,59,62,66,71,97,101)

Federal and provincial laws, with the exception of Punjab and Sindh Provinces, do not prohibit the use of children in drug production and drug trafficking. (67,71,79) The federal and provincial governments, with the exception of Punjab and Sindh Provinces, have not enacted laws that prohibit the recruitment and use of children by non-state groups for armed conflict. (7,62,67) As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (62,83-87)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Provincial and Regional Police	Enforce violations of federal and provincial laws concerning the worst forms of child labor, including the Pakistan Penal Code, Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act, and the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act (BLSA). Refer children taken into custody to Child Protection Officers. (7,90)
Provincial Labor Inspectors	Inspect industrial areas and markets to identify child labor violations, enforce provincial labor laws, and pursue legal action against employers. (7)
Federal Investigation Agency (FIA), Anti-Trafficking Unit	Enforces transnational human trafficking-related laws, particularly the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act. Cooperates with other governments on human trafficking cases, operates a hotline for survivors, and publishes information on anti-trafficking efforts on its website. (9-11,40) Operates under the Ministry of Interior. (10) The Ministry and FIA, along with other civil society groups, have published the National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking and Migrant Smuggling 2021-2025. (31)
Labor Courts	Assess penalties for labor violations. Located in each province and the Islamabad Capital Territory (ICT). (9,37,102-103)

Organization/Agency	Role
District Vigilance Committees	Implement the BLSA and assist in rehabilitating bonded laborers via monitoring bodies. Consist of members of the public, civil society groups, lawyers, members of the media, and local government officials and report to the District Magistrate. (7,40,37,72) Exist in Punjab, Sindh, and the ICT, but not in Balochistan and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Provinces. (37)
Child Protection Units (CPUs)	Take into custody at-risk children, including those rescued from exploitative labor situations and provide case management services. Established in Punjab, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, and Sindh Provinces. (79,81,104-107) Despite passing the legislation in 2016, Balochistan only has one CPU in Quetta. The remaining 33 CPUs are yet to be established. (94)

District Vigilance Committees (DVCs) are functioning in all of Punjab Province's 36 districts (conducting 367 meetings during the reporting period), and in 29 districts in Sindh Province (only 14 DVCs convened once each during the reporting period). (2,31,37,94,104) On December 31, 2021, the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa government issued orders to establish DVCs in all of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa's districts to monitor and implement laws related to child and bonded labor. (94)

However, research has found that though the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act (BLSA) mandated the creation of DVCs in each province to ensure implementation of the BLSA, including reporting and filing cases, the government relied on bonded labor victims to have knowledge of the BLSA, proactively leave their landowners, and file their own cases in the court. Even when bonded laborers did so, the courts either did not act on such claims or handled them administratively, and, as a result, human trafficking survivors who came forward often faced retaliation from their exploitative employers. (31,40)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Pakistan took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the provincial labor departments that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including lack of research on the number of labor inspections conducted and child labor violations found.

Pakistan's provinces are responsible for enforcing labor laws, including those relevant to child labor law. (7) Provincial labor departments collect comprehensive data on labor law enforcement at the district level. However, there is neither a centralized federal repository for the data nor any regular mechanism for reporting them to the federal government; therefore, limited labor inspection data were available for inclusion in this report. (2,11) Although the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Pakistan would need to employ roughly 4,135 labor inspectors as its workforce consists of more than 62 million workers. (110)

Current labor laws do not apply to domestic workers, even though the ICT recently recognized domestic labor as a hazardous occupation, and despite reports of more than 264,000 child domestic workers in Pakistan. (2,31) Reports of physical abuse, sexual abuse, and forced labor by employers are commonplace; however, provincial labor laws and protections do not extend to adult or child domestic workers. (31) Provincial labor inspectorates do not receive sufficient resources, a shortfall that may hamper labor inspectors' ability to inspect workplaces. For example, labor departments in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Punjab, and Sindh Provinces did not provide funds to cover the cost of transportation to conduct inspections. (9,11) In Sindh, labor inspectors do not receive funding to travel outside Karachi and Hyderabad to conduct labor inspections, which is only a small portion of the whole province. Labor inspectors use their personal resources to carry out inspections. (2)

While labor inspectors receive some initial training depending on their assigned province, this training is insufficient, as there is very little information provided that is specific to child labor issues and laws. (9,17,90,111) In addition, labor inspectorates sometimes failed to conduct inspections at worksites owned by influential citizens. For instance, coal mines in Balochistan that are owned by influential politicians who oversee mine regulations operated with impunity, increasing risks of child labor. (24) Labor inspectors in Punjab reportedly do not inspect private farms owned by influential landlords for child or bonded labor. (2,36) In the Sindh region, labor inspectors frequently announce labor inspections, unless a complaint has been filed. (2) Moreover, due to the pandemic, labor inspectors have faced restrictions to conducting inspections. (2) Research found that in the Provinces of Sindh, Punjab, and Balochistan, the industries of agriculture, brick kiln, fisheries, poultry, mining, construction, domestic labor, and carpet making often failed to follow labor laws with no or little government oversight. Small- and medium-size businesses—particularly those operated in private homes and not subject to inspections, such as shops, garages, and jewelry manufacturers—employed child labor. (8) Department of Labor officials sometimes reportedly received monthly bribes to avoid factory inspections. Additionally, research supports that labor inspectors do not have the authority to remove children from exploitation situations. (31)

In 2021, a judicial decree ordered freedom for 1,451 bonded laborers between January and September 2021. In April and July 2021, a court order in Sindh ordered law enforcement to free 33 bonded laborers from different family units working in farms across the Sindh Province. (112) The Labor Department also signed an MOU with the Sindh government to ensure all the 29 DVCs in Sindh accurately followed the Sindh Bonded Labor Abolition Act of 2015. Similarly, the Balochistan Provincial Assembly passed the Balochistan Forced and Bonded Labor System Act on May 4, 2021. The law states that “the bonded labor system shall stand abolished and every bonded laborer shall stand freed and discharged from any obligation to render any bonded labor.” (112)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

A majority of the estimated 18,000 brick kilns in Pakistan continued to operate without registration and required benefits for workers, particularly those ages 14 to 18. (40) Additionally, in most cases, survivors of bonded labor settled for financial arrangement rather than criminal prosecution because there is a lack of guidance on a mechanism to pursue a formal civil or criminal case. (31)

In January 2021, the Islamabad High Court established a commission to examine the enforcement of labor laws related to the operation of brick kilns in the capital territory. The commission was mandated to inspect all brick kilns in the ICT, conduct a survey of brick kiln workers, and submit a report on its findings. (113) The commission's report, which was submitted in February 2021, found that the practice of debt bondage was widespread throughout the sector; no brick kilns or their laborers possessed the registrations required under the law, workers were not paid beyond a meager subsistence allowance and most lacked identity documents, and few children of brick workers were receiving an education. (114) The Islamabad High Court has ordered all bonded labor be eradicated from the ICT region, but research was unable to determine whether the ICT government took any action to carry out the order. Additionally, the ICT government has not taken action on the report's recommendations to register all brick kilns, ensure the execution of employment contracts for all workers, and issue national identity cards to all workers and their children. (115)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Pakistan took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including reports of corruption and indifference on the part of investigative officials.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (1)	Unknown (2)

The federal and provincial governments do not publish data on efforts to enforce criminal laws prohibiting the worst forms of child labor; it is unknown how many investigations, penalties imposed and collected, initial refresher training, or convictions were undertaken for child labor crimes in 2021. (1,2) However, some reports have shown that the Cyber Crime Circle of the Federal Investigation Agency (FIA) apprehended 13 people in 4 raids in Faisalabad and Punjab. (2) The alleged perpetrators were charged with child pornography. In October 2021, the FIA also arrested two people in Faisalabad for involvement in child pornography. (2,116) Additionally, in January 2021, police in Lahore arrested employers for torturing a 12-year old maid to death. (117) Similarly in October 2021, two minor domestic workers were tortured by employers in Lahore. The children were subsequently rescued. (2,118)

During the reporting period, the FIA provided in-person and online training on human anti-trafficking standards procedures with Pakistani police and social welfare departments, labor departments, and child protection bureaus at the central and provincial levels. The FIA also worked with the IOM to deliver trainings on identifying, screening, and referring human trafficking victims, which included child labor survivors. (2) While training is provided to new criminal investigators, the training is inconsistent across Pakistan, and may not include information on child labor, child trafficking, or sexual exploitation of children. (2) The government did not publish data on criminal labor law enforcement in the reporting period. (2) In 2021, the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa region opened four additional child protection courts, bringing the total number of child protection courts in the province to eight. However, the courts have not prosecuted any child labor cases. (2) Additionally, there is no reciprocal mechanism between law enforcement and social services. (2)

Police corruption—particularly the taking of bribes from suspected perpetrators to ignore alleged crimes or police refusing to open investigations without bribes—continued to hamper Pakistan’s ability to address child sex trafficking and child labor. (8,31) Some police and other local officials, for instance, colluded with farm and brick kiln owners to create falsified criminal cases against individuals who attempted to escape from situations of bonded labor. (8) In Sindh, local officials perpetrated bonded labor in brick kilns with impunity. (31)

The government did not credibly act against reports of official complicity with human trafficking crimes. (31) Reports indicated that police sometimes refused to file cases of child sexual exploitation, including sex trafficking, unless the victims paid a bribe. (31) Moreover, children, parents, or family members who report child labor incidents often doubt that police will act in pursuit of justice. (22,24,39-44,45,119)

Research has found that due to the consistent lack of law enforcement efforts against those who exploited street children, including in forced labor and sex trafficking, traffickers operated openly and with impunity. (9,37,31) Police sometimes acted indifferently to reports of child labor or sexual exploitation, pointing to cultural differences as a rationale for abuse. (22,45,119)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including fulfilling mandates to establish coordinating mechanisms.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission on the Rights of the Child*	Coordinates efforts relating to child rights, including reviewing proposed legislation, liaising with provincial commissions, recommending policy, reviewing programs, and promoting awareness of child rights, among other functions. (120)
Inter-Agency Task Force	Coordinates the anti-human trafficking efforts of the Ministry of the Interior, intelligence and law enforcement agencies, the Ministry of Law and Justice, and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Supports 24 FIA anti-trafficking units that work with provincial and district police officers to monitor and address domestic and transnational human trafficking. (31) Maintains an Integrated Border Management System to track entries and exits. (104)
Provincial and Federal Tripartite Consultative Committees	Advise on the enforcement of labor laws, including child labor laws, and monitor the functioning of labor departments at the provincial level. Monitor the implementation of the provinces’ proposed interventions on child and forced labor at the federal level. (121) While the Punjab commission met during the reporting period, there was no substantive progress besides agreement that enhanced coordination was necessary. (2)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Child Protection Bodies	Balochistan Child Protection Commission: Coordinates efforts related to child protection at the provincial and district levels, advises on relevant policies and legislation, and supports the implementation of child protection referral mechanisms. Led by the Balochistan Social Welfare Department, various government departments—including the Education, Health, and Labor departments—and law enforcement agencies. (107) Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Child Protection and Welfare Commission: Coordinates efforts to enhance the safety, welfare, and well-being of children at the provincial and local levels. Reviews and monitors implementation of provincial laws and regulations related to child labor and those that affect the rights of children. (79) Led by the province's Social Welfare and Women Development Department. (79) The Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Child Protection and Welfare Commission did not hold its quarterly meetings in 2021 and has been without a commissioner for 4 years. (1,2) Punjab Child Protection and Welfare Bureau: Coordinates the protection of destitute and neglected children by appointing child protection officers, supervising CPUs, and establishing child protection institutions and courts. Chaired by an elected member of the board, which consists of three department secretaries, three members of the provincial assembly, and representatives from NGOs and academia. (81) Sindh Child Protection Authority: Coordinates efforts to ensure the rights of children in need of special protection, including child laborers, by establishing CPUs and appointing child protection officers. (106) Reviews and proposes amendments to existing laws and monitors the implementation of laws relevant to the protection of children. Headed by the provincial minister; members include two parliamentarians, lawyers, social activists, and representatives from departments that deal with children's issues. (106) The Sindh Child Protection Authority has been active in preventing underage marriages throughout Sindh. It has a helpline 1121 that receives complaints on child protection-related issues and refers the cases to relevant departments and officers. (122) The helpline has been used to track and reunite missing children with their families, in many cases at inter-provincial levels. It has also dealt with complaints about child beggary and corporal punishment. (122) The Sindh Child Protection Agency now has the authority to act on cases of rape, abduction, murder, or assault of children. (2) Provincial CPUs: Take into custody at-risk children, including those rescued from exploitative labor situations. Present cases of children taken into custody to the Child Protection Court or the appropriate authority. (7) Coordinate and initiate interventions against child labor at the provincial level. (121) Each CPU is led by a Child Protection Officer and supported by social workers and psychologists; operates under the District Administrator. (37) Provincial CPUs were active in Punjab, Sindh, Balochistan, and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, and identified and referred children in exploitative or vulnerable labor situations to NGO and government care. (31)
Child Protection Advisory Board	Coordinates ICT's implementation of the Child Protection System Act of 2018, including advising the government on implementing laws and policies, maintaining a case management system, and ensuring that a child protection mechanism is functioning. Chaired by the Secretary of the Division of Child Protection and comprises high-level government officials, plus an NGO representative, a social science expert, an Islamabad High Court Bar Association representative, and one person representing minorities. (9,123) In 2021, the board began a child begging awareness campaign. (2)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

A parliamentary task force on "Uplift and Mainstreaming of Street Children and Bonded Labor" was created in 2020. However, the task force did not take significant actions in 2021. (2) Additionally, CPUs were unstaffed and non-functioning caused due to lack of funding and hiring delays in the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Province because the Chief Child Protection Officer position has remained vacant for 4 years. (2)

The Child Protection Welfare Bureau in Punjab declared plans to establish five new CPUs at every district in the province. (2) The bureau rescued 1,054 children from begging in Punjab. (2) The Child Protection Welfare Bureau also referred 1,500 to 2,000 children for psychological counseling lasting around 15 days. It signed an MOU with Punjab Vocational Training Center to provide children with phone repair, tailoring, and cooking skills as well as electrician-related, beautician, and nursing courses. (2)

Balochistan has not instituted the remaining 33 CPUs despite passing legislation in 2016 to establish units in each district. (37,40)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including lack of implementation of key national policies.

Pakistan

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Labor Policy	Seeks to gradually eradicate child labor; collect child labor statistics, enforce the compulsory education law, assist children through referral mechanisms, educate families and key stakeholders about the negative effects of child labor, and collaborate with organizations to research and develop solutions to eliminate child labor. (124) In 2021, as part of its implementation of the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Child Labor Policy, 2018, the provincial government drafted the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Prohibition of Employment of Children Rules, 2021. The provincial government also established a Coordination Committee on Child Labor to implement the rules of the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Prohibition of Employment of Children Act, 2015. (125) As directed by and authorized by the act, the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Labor Department in 2021 conducted 9,189 inspections, carried out 48 prosecutions, and had 43 cases decided by the court, resulting in $544 (109,500 Rupees) in fines. (125) In December 2021, the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Home Department issued a notification regarding the establishment of District Vigilance Committees in each district of the province. In 2021, the provincial Labor Department created seven Child & Bonded Labor Units for the purpose of both conducting inspections and building awareness among workers and employers regarding child labor issues. (125)
Punjab Labor Policy	Seeks to improve working conditions, eradicate child and bonded labor, and establish social safety for workers and their families. Includes the goal of ending all child labor in brick kilns, in addition to the construction of schools, hospitals, and residences for workers. (126) During the reporting period, the Punjab Labor Policy incorporated previously independent working and monitoring groups under the policy program. The monitoring and working groups consist of members of government, policy, and civil society and are responsible for carrying out inspections, victim identification, and treatment of survivors under the new guidance. (122) The working groups are also mandated to detect child labor, bonded labor at brick kilns, domestic violence, and related matters in their respective districts. The working groups have so far helped provide temporary shelter and legal services, when necessary, to the victims, and helped prosecutors register cases. (122)
Sindh Labor Policy	Seeks to protect vulnerable workers, including children. Includes goals to enforce laws dealing with hazardous child labor, extend the minimum age for employment in domestic and home-based work, ensure minimum wages for working children, and increase access to education and training. (127) The Sindh Province Labor Department is undertaking a child labor survey to determine the number child laborers in Sindh province. The survey is part of Sindh Provincial efforts to address the child labor problem and implement relevant laws, including laws on the prohibition of children in hazardous work. (122)

Both the federal and provincial governments have education policies and sector plans. Although the Pakistan Education Policy 2017 (draft) and National Education Policy Framework 2018 (draft) recognize the role of child labor in limiting student enrollment and present strategies to reach out of school children and disadvantaged groups, including children who have dropped out of school to work, they do not offer child labor elimination and prevention strategies. (122)

The former Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf-led Punjab government announced a 5-year education policy, “The New Deal 2018-2023,” to transform school education and focus on improving learning, access, retention, equity, and government; the policy does not mention explicitly the elimination or prevention of child labor. (122) There are no education policies in Sindh and Balochistan that target specifically the elimination or prevention of child labor. (122)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Bait-ul-Mal Programs†	Government-funded programs that aim to remove children from child labor, including its worst forms, and to increase vulnerable children's access to education. Programs include the National Centers for Rehabilitation of Child Labor and the Child Support Program. (128,129) As of 2021, there were 159 Pakistan Bait-ul-Mal School for Rehabilitation of Child Labour centers in Pakistan and around 17,000 students are enrolled in primary education. (130) During the reporting period, the Punjab Bait-ul-Mal program, along with the Al-Khidmat Foundation, distributed 50 sewing machines, 30 wheelchairs, 20 white canes and rickshaws. (94)

Program	Description
Hotlines and Institutes†	The Ministry of Human Rights (MHR) operates a helpline for reporting human rights violations, including child labor violations, and for providing referrals to legal aid and a network of NGOs to survivors of human rights abuses. (8,104) FIA also operates a 24/7 hotline to address human trafficking, including child trafficking, in Pakistan at the headquarters, ICT, and district levels. (10,104) In 2021, MHR helped establish a Child Protection Institute in ICT under the Islamabad Territory Child Protection Act 2018, which would provide services to at-risk and vulnerable children. The program would provide rehabilitation, rescue, shelter, counseling, and help with family tracing services for children who are survivors of trafficking and forced labor. (2,131) Similarly in October 2021, the Chief Minister of Punjab inaugurated a new Child Protection Institute in Punjab. Child Protection Institutes (CPI) were working in Lahore, Gujranwala, Multan, Rawalpindi, Faisalabad, Rahim Yar Khan, Bahawalpur, and Sialkot, with two referring units in Sahiwal and Kasur. The Punjab minister also recently inaugurated a new CPI in Faisalabad. (2) During the reporting period, MHR established the Zainab Alert Response and Recovery Agency under the Zainab Alert, Response and Recovery Act in March 2020. In October 2020, MHR reported that the Zainab app‡, which is integrated with the district police stations across the country, helps track and trace missing children as well as streamline efforts to address child abuse cases, including child labor cases in Pakistan. (132) To date, it had received 1,093 reports of child abuse and exploitation. (2)
Elimination of Child Labor and Bonded Labor Project (Integrated Project for Promotion of "Decent Work for Vulnerable Workers" in Punjab Province)†	Punjab Province-funded programs that aim to provide education to vulnerable children, rehabilitate bonded laborers working in brick kilns, promote integration and coordination of government responses, strengthen legislation, increase the capacity of law enforcement and service providers, and broaden the knowledge base on these issues. (133) During the reporting period, the Punjab Labor Department established the Chief Minister Citizen Portal, which allowed people to file a complaint against government or local officials, including child labor complaints. (2)
ILO-Funded Projects	ILO projects in Pakistan that aims to eliminate child labor by improving the capacities of the federal and provincial governments to develop strong monitoring mechanisms and strengthen data collection strategies. (134) The Asia Regional Child Labor Program (2019–2023), funded by the UK's Foreign Commonwealth and Development Office, aims to assist stakeholders to eliminate child labor to achieve Sustainable Development Goal 8.7 by 2025. Identified three priority sectors for conducting qualitative research and creating advocacy tools: automobiles, domestic work, and brick kilns. (135) The Eliminating Child Labor and Forced Labor in the Cotton, Textile and Garment Value Chains (Clear Cotton) project (2018–2022) is co-funded by EU and ILO. Focuses on the cotton production hubs of Sindh and Punjab, seeks to promote enhanced federal and provincial legislation and policies, and seeks to address the basic needs and rights of children engaged or at risk of child labor or forced labor. Focuses on the cotton growing, ginning, and spinning sectors of the cotton supply chain. (136) The Promoting Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work in the Cotton Supply Chain project (2017–2021) was a public-private partnership with Inditex aimed at promoting Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work (FPRW) for a sustainable cotton supply chain in Pakistan. During the reporting period, the program supported in-country seminars that sensitize the community on fundamental principles and rights at work. (137) The Promotion of Decent Work Opportunities for the Economic Empowerment of Vulnerable Segments of Society project (2019–2021) was funded by the Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation. During the reporting period, the project organized awareness programs and workshops with stakeholders to address child labor. (138)
Sabaoon Rehabilitation Center†	NGO-run, federal government-funded center that rehabilitates children who were recruited and ideologically influenced by terrorist organizations and militant groups. Reintegrates youth into society by providing psychological treatment, education, and vocational training. (11) During the reporting period, the program operated in the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Province, where deradicalizing and rehabilitation was underway for youth involved in violent extremism. (94)
Loans (supported by the World Bank) to Zig-Zag Technology in Brick Kilns	Zig-zag technology reduces coal consumption and pollution from the kilns. (8) It will reduce the need for labor at each kiln, cutting incentives for bonded and child labor. (8) The Punjab government has pushed brick kilns in the province to adopt zig-zag technology. (8) By May of this reporting year, all of Punjab's brick kilns had adopted this technology, with 99 percent completion in the previous year. (122,139) The Punjab government offered subsidized loans, supported by the World Bank, to encourage adoption, and enforced its December 31 deadline for all kilns to convert to the technology or be shut down. (8) By December 2021, 20 out of 64 brick kilns in ICT had switched to the zig-zag technology. (140)

‡ Program launched during the reporting period.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2021, the Sindh Social Welfare Department established two rehabilitation centers for street workers, vulnerable children, and those highly at risk of human trafficking. The shelter has the capacity to house 400 street children. (2) The Sindh government has allocated $250,000 for the project, which includes providing access to education to youth who are vulnerable to child trafficking. (2) One shelter was completed in February 2021, and the other is expected to open in 2022. (2)

In 2019, the provincial labor departments of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and Balochistan dedicated approximately $1.53 million and $1.37 million of their budgets, respectively, to conduct surveys on child labor. (37,104) The Khyber Pakhtunkhwa labor department began conducting its child labor survey in 2019. (37,104) Child labor surveys are also being carried out in Sindh and the ICT, and Balochistan. Gilgit- Baltistan completed its survey in 2021, and Punjab is in the final stages of the report, whereas Khyber Pakhtunkhwa is expected to reveal its finding in early 2022. (2,141) Surveys are expected to be completed in 2022 due to pandemic-related delays. (1)

The social programs of the federal and provincial governments are insufficient to address the prevalence and scope of Pakistan's child labor problem. Existing programs do not provide sufficient protection and rehabilitation services for bonded child laborers and child survivors of human trafficking. (40,142) Government initiatives do not specifically target child labor in the informal sector, including child labor and forced child labor in domestic work. (2) In addition, there is no significant social program to address sexual abuse of child workers or children attending madrassas in Pakistan. Social Welfare Departments in all provinces are responsible for providing shelter and rehabilitation to distressed children. (122)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Pakistan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2021
	Establish a minimum age for work of at least age 14 in federal and provincial laws extending to all sectors and informal employment, regardless of the number of employees.	2011 – 2021
	Ensure that the law prohibits the employment of children under age 18 in hazardous work such as brickmaking, mining, and domestic service, including in federal law and Balochistan Province.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that the law prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs, including in federal law and Balochistan and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Provinces.	2011 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment and use of children under age 18 by non-state groups for armed conflict, including in federal law and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Province.	2015 – 2021
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2019 – 2021
Enforcement	Ensure that the number of labor inspectors in Pakistan meets the ILO's technical advice and that there are a sufficient number of inspectors trained and responsible for providing enforcement of child labor laws in all provinces.	2016 – 2021
	Provide the funding necessary to adequately hire, consistently train, equip, and cover the cost of transportation for inspectors to enforce child labor laws across Pakistan, especially in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Punjab, and Sindh Provinces.	2010 – 2021
	Ensure that District Vigilance Committees are operating effectively in all provinces, including through public outreach and in the reporting and filing of cases.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that all allegations of trafficking into bacha bazi are thoroughly investigated and, when appropriate, prosecuted.	2019 – 2021
Enforcement	Ensure that farms and brick kilns do not employ child labor; fully compensate all workers, and labor laws are adequately enforced.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that the recommendation by the Islamabad Capital Territory brick kilns commission is implemented, including execution of employment contracts for all workers, and issuing national identity cards to all workers and their children.	2021

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that the order by the Islamabad High Court to eradicate bonded labor from all brick kiln in the Islamabad Capital Territory is enforced.	2021
	Ensure the government has the proper oversight to remove children from exploitative situations.	2021
	Ensure that inspectors are fully executing Sindh Province's Labor Policy, including by providing sufficient resources and unimpeded access to brick kilns to conduct inspections.	2021
	Create a centralized repository of labor law enforcement data and a regular mechanism for reporting them to the federal government, and make the data publicly available.	2018 – 2021
	Publish enforcement data on labor inspectorate funding, the number of labor inspectors, mechanisms to assess civil penalties, training for new labor inspectors, refresher courses provided, labor inspections conducted, child labor law violations, penalties imposed and collected, whether routine inspections were targeted, whether unannounced inspections are conducted, and whether reciprocal referral mechanisms exist between labor authorities and social services for all provinces.	2010 – 2021
	Establish sufficient laws to end police corruption, particularly the taking of bribes from suspected perpetrators to ignore alleged crimes.	2019 – 2021
	Establish a referral mechanism between labor authorities and social services in all provinces.	2017 – 2021
	Establish a referral mechanism between law enforcement agencies and social services in all provinces.	2018 – 2021
	Publish information about criminal law investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and the number of convictions, as well as about initial training, training on the worst forms of child labor, refresher courses, and penalties imposed and collected in all provinces.	2016 – 2021
Coordination	Publish information on the activities undertaken to enhance coordination efforts by the Provincial and Federal Tripartite Consultative Committees.	2017 – 2021
	Establish the remaining 33 Child Protection Units in Balochistan, as required by law.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020 – 2021
Government Policies	Ensure that steps are taken to effectively implement policies to address child labor.	2020 – 2021
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the education policies of the provincial governments.	2014 – 2021
	Publish activities undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor during the reporting period.	2020 – 2021
Social Programs	Ensure that children are protected from sexual abuse in schools, including madrassas , workplaces, and while scavenging on the streets.	2021
	Complete and publish child labor surveys at the federal and provincial levels.	2009 – 2021
	Improve existing programs to address the prevalence and scope of Pakistan's child labor problem, including providing enough protection and rehabilitation services for child domestic workers, bonded child laborers, child survivors of human trafficking, and other children working in the informal sector and in the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2021
	Implement programs to address high rates of teacher absenteeism, inadequate facilities, school fees, lack of transportation, and use of corporal punishment to ensure that all children have access to free and compulsory education, as required by law.	2011 – 2021

In 2021, Panama made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government launched a new digital platform for reporting child abuse complaints, including cases of children subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, begging, and forced labor. The Ministry of Labor also signed an agreement with the National Council of Private Enterprises that promotes a public-private partnership for the creation of a network of companies that work on the prevention and eradication of child labor. In addition, the government increased the number of labor inspectors from 93 in 2020 to 105 in 2021, as well as provided social services to 800 child survivors and children at risk of child labor. However, children in Panama are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Panamanian law allows minors under age 16 to engage in hazardous work within training facilities in violation of international standards. Moreover, labor law enforcement agencies lack the financial and human resources necessary to fulfill their mandate. Finally, existing social programs are insufficient to address the full scope of the child labor problem in the country, in particular for children living in rural areas and from indigenous and Afro-Panamanian communities.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Panama are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1-5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Panama.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	4.5 (33,594)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	95.7

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor†	Forced domestic work (5,20)
	Use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,9,14)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (5,9,14,16)
	Use in illicit activities, including in drug production and drug trafficking, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (13)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Panama are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, as well as forced labor, particularly domestic servitude. (5) They also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, where their working conditions may involve the use of chemicals, machinery, machetes, and other dangerous tools. Additionally, children working as street vendors are vulnerable to exploitation, gang activity, harassment, abuse, and vehicular accidents. (13)

According to the results of Panama’s 2016 survey on child labor, the highest prevalence of child labor is in the agricultural sector in rural areas and autonomous indigenous areas, or comarcas. In particular, the comarca Ngäbe Buglé and the provinces of Panama and Bocas del Toro had the highest number of children engaged in child labor. (2)

In 2021, many schools held all their classes virtually because of the COVID-19 pandemic. This created barriers to accessing education, such as lack of internet and access to electronic devices, leading to increased inequality in education. (13)

Although the Panamanian Constitution recognizes the right to education without discrimination, indigenous children and those in rural and Afro-Panamanian communities face barriers to accessing education due to a lack of transportation, infrastructure, quality sanitation, technology, and teachers, particularly in the comarcas. (1,9,13) Some schools lack potable water and electricity, and in some cases students in different grades are forced to share the same classroom. (13) Children of indigenous descent often live in difficult to reach areas due to lack of roads and have to travel significant distances to reach school. (21) Indigenous children have very low school enrollment rates, especially in secondary and higher education. (23) Panamanian law requires that schools integrate children with disabilities, but most public schools do not have adequate facilities for them. (24)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Panama has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Panama’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including establishing a minimum age for hazardous and light work that meets international standards.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 70 of the Constitution; Articles 508–509 and 716 of the Family Code; Articles 117, 119, and 123 of the Labor Code (25-27)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	18	Article 510 of the Family Code; Article 203 of the Penal Code; Article 4 of Executive Decree No. 19 of 2006; Article 118 of the Labor Code (25-30)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 2, 2A, and 2B of Executive Decree No. 19 of 2006; Article 118 of the Labor Code (27,28,30)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 207 and 456 of the Penal Code; Article 489 of the Family Code; Articles 4 and 63 of Law 79 on Human Trafficking; Article 21 of the Constitution (25,26,29,31)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 205–208 and 456 of the Penal Code; Article 489.17 of the Family Code; Article 63 of Law 79 on Human Trafficking (26,29,31)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 179–187, 189–191, 202–203, 207, and 456 of the Penal Code; Article 63 of Law 79 on Human Trafficking (29,31)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 318, 333, and 336 of the Penal Code; Article 489.16 of the Family Code; Article 2.16 of Executive Decree No. 19 of 2006 (26,29,30)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A†
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 448 of the Penal Code (29)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes		Articles 34 and 45 of the Law on Education; Article 489 of the Family Code; Article 95 of the Constitution (25,26,32,33)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 34 and 41 of the Law on Education; Article 95 of the Constitution (25,32,33)

† Country has no standing military (25)

Currently, Panamanian law has a list of hazardous occupations prohibited for children under age 18, but it permits children to perform such work in training programs starting at age 14, in violation of international standards. (28)

Although the Constitution, Family Code, and Labor Code set the minimum age for employment at age 14, the Family Code and Labor Code specify exceptions for agricultural work. (25-27) Article 119 of the Labor Code allows children ages 12 to 15 to perform light work in agriculture if the work is outside of regular school hours. The Labor Code, however, does not define the kinds of activities children may perform as light work. (27) In addition, the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Panama

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MITRADEL)	Enforces child labor laws through two directorates with direct authority over child labor matters: the Directorate Against Child Labor and for the Protection of Adolescent Workers (DIRETIPAT), and the Labor Inspection Directorate. DIRETIPAT is responsible for overseeing the enforcement of laws related to working children in the formal and informal sectors, planning and executing public policies, and carrying out education programs on child labor for employers, parents, and children. (16,34,35) DIRETIPAT also manages the newly established Direct Government Action Program for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor that seeks to prevent and eradicate child labor. Refers cases of children found in exploitative work to the Child and Adolescent Courts, or to the National Secretariat for Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (SENNIAF). (16) The Labor Inspection Directorate enforces the Labor Code in areas in which children may be working, particularly in the formal sector. (16)
Attorney General's Office	Investigates and prosecutes crimes of sexual exploitation. Investigations are initiated by the Judicial Investigative Directorate, after which cases are passed to the prosecutors. (16)
National Secretariat of Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (SENNIAF)	Conducts inspections to identify children and adolescents engaged in child labor, particularly in the informal sector. (16,73) Coordinates, articulates, executes, and monitors compliance with policies for the comprehensive protection of the rights of children and adolescents, through the formulation of plans, programs and protection measures, as well as the monitoring and coordination of government services to address the needs of vulnerable populations. (36,73) Runs shelters for victims of human trafficking, including minors. (13)
Juvenile Police	Assists, collaborates with, and coordinates with authorities and organizations to address the education, prevention, protection, and rehabilitation of children, including those in child labor. (37,38) It is a special body of the National Police. (13)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Panama took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor (MITRADEL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including allocating sufficient financial resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2021, the government carried out a total of 14,686 inspections, 1,764 of which were child labor specific inspections, compared to 914 child labor specific inspections in 2020. (74) DIRETIPAT conducted inspections in two provinces: Panama Oeste and Panama. Inspected sectors included waste management, car washes, vehicle and motorcycle repair shops, spas, horse stables, and the transportation sector. (13) During the reporting period, DIRETIPAT found four companies to be non-compliant with child labor laws, there were two pending sanctions in 2021. (13)

MITRADEL, SENNIAT, and the Juvenile Police participated in 69 interagency operations for the eradication of child labor in each of Panama's provinces. (13) The province of Panama, which has the largest population, had the most cases of child labor, particularly in shopping malls, mall stores, and street vendors. Meanwhile, in the interior of the country most child labor was found in the agricultural sector. (13) SENNIAT reported removing 118 children involved in child labor and providing each of them with social services, including readmission to schools, health services, and grants, as well as follow-up to prevent recidivism. (13) DIRETIPAT identified 800 children and adolescents who were victims of or at-risk for child labor, including 298 children below the minimum age for employment, 3 adolescents over 14 years of age in informal jobs, and 499 children and adolescents at social risk whose condition of poverty may force them to perform child labor to help improve household income. It is unclear if any of these children were identified through labor inspections. (13) These children will receive care and services, scholarships, and academic follow-up for 3 consecutive years from the Direct Action Program for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor and Casa Esperanza. (13)

In 2021, labor inspectors were provided with in-person and virtual training on child labor and hazardous child labor laws, though most training was virtual due to restrictions put in place as a result of the pandemic. It is also unknown if all inspectors received training on child labor issues. (13) Of the 105 labor inspectors employed by the government, in the headquarters and regional offices, only 6 specialize in child labor and dangerous work, even though all inspectors must investigate and enforce child labor laws. (13) In the regional offices, all inspectors are multi-sectoral, inspecting for health, safety, administrative, and child labor infractions. Some inspectors are specifically assigned to the Department of Inspection of Child Labor and are responsible for verifying and enforcing laws relating to child labor. (13) MITRADEL and the National Secretariat for Childhood, Adolescence, and Family operate a secure 311 Complaint Line, a website, WhatsApp phone number lines, and social media platforms to receive complaints. (9,13)

During the reporting period, the government also provided training on the use and administration of the Child Labor Monitoring System (SMTI) in the city of Chitré for technical personnel and Regional Directors of MITRADEL, with the purpose of updating and strengthening competency on the management of SMTI. (40)

The budget for the Labor Inspection Directorate is insufficient to meet its staffing needs. DIRETIPAT reported a need for additional funding to increase the number of labor inspectors nationally, and for tools such as telephones and laptops to carry out their work. (9,13,21,41) During the reporting period, the budget of the labor inspectorate decreased in approximately 12 percent from that of 2020. (13) In 2021, Panama had 105 labor inspectors, which is likely insufficient for the size of Panama's workforce, which includes more than 1.9 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Panama would employ about 130 labor inspectors. (42,43)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Panama took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, the government did not provide sufficient data on its criminal enforcement efforts, which limits the ability to assess their efforts.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. In 2021, the government worked with various institutions and NGOs to train a broad section of government officers on addressing trafficking in persons, as well as in identifying and providing services to victims. In total 796 people were trained in topics related to trafficking in persons. (44)

The Trafficking in Persons Commission and the Organized Crime Special Prosecutor's Office have both indicated that it is difficult to prosecute trafficking in persons cases, partially because judges do not have specific knowledge of the trafficking in persons law. (44)

During the reporting period, SENNIAF and the NGO Crime Stoppers of Panama launched a new digital platform for reporting child abuse complaints. Through this platform, which is active 24 hours a day, people are able to report situations of abuse of children and adolescents to government authorities, including cases of children subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and begging or forced labor. (45) These complaints are received by a specialized team of the Juvenile Police, that works in coordination with SENNIAF, the Specialized Prosecutor's Office, and Crime Stoppers. (45)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Committee for the Eradication of Child Labor and the Protection of Adolescent Workers (CETIPPAT)	Coordinates various efforts to combat child labor. Led by the First Lady of Panama and includes MITRADEL, the ministries of Education, Health, and Agriculture, and representatives from civil society and organizations of workers and employers. (46) Conducts a National Child Labor Survey. (73) It is a public-private institution that includes government, employers, workers, and NGOs that collaborate to address child labor. (13,16) In 2021, technical teams of DIRETIPPAT and SENNIAF met to discuss the implementation of the new child labor survey within the framework on the pandemic, and to begin its organization. (47) Together with the Ombudsman Defensoría del Pueblo carried out an awareness campaign in the Grand Station of San Miguelito on the human rights of children and adolescents, where it oriented peddlers, ticket sellers, and street vendors on the risks of child labor. (48) It also worked with Defensoría del Pueblo to develop a 2021-2024 plan to create a day of awareness, teach about bad practices, and promote children's rights. (49) Carried out trainings for parents and children on the regulations against child labor and work permits for minors in the province of Herrera. (50,51)
Subcommittee to Combat Child Labor	Coordinates the Panamanian Institute for Sports and the Ministry of Education in their efforts to address child labor and its causes. Subcommittee of CETIPPAT. (13) Reports indicate it was active in 2021, and that it held various meetings. (73,75)
Provincial Coordination Mechanisms	Identify and report cases of child labor at the local level to SENNIAF and coordinate with CETIPPAT at the national level. Established in Bocas del Toro, Colón, and Darién. (13) Additional commissions were established in Chiriquí, Veraguas, Herrera, Los Santos, Coclé, and Panama Oeste. (1,3) In 2021, it continued carrying out identification and reporting of cases of child labor, as well as held trainings for its members. (73)
National Commission for the Prevention of Crimes of Sexual Exploitation (CONAPREDES)	Coordinates, advises, studies, and implements public policies for the prevention and eradication of sexual exploitation. (46) Members include the Attorney General and the ministries of Labor, Education, Social Development, and Health. Refers cases of sexual exploitation to the Attorney General's Office. (46) In 2021, launched a campaign against sexual exploitation of minors called " Soy Persona No Objeto ". It was displayed in metro trains and stops, as well as in other high transit areas. (44) CONAPREDES also coordinated a week of media appearances on TV, radio shows, newspapers, and social-media platforms ahead of the campaign launch, together with a mass distribution of flyers in high transit areas. (44)

On December 27, 2021, officials from MITRADEL and the president of the National Council of Private Enterprises signed a Framework Cooperation Agreement that promotes a public-private partnership for the formation and articulation of a network of companies that actively work on the prevention and eradication of child labor and the protection of adolescents. (13,52)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including a lack of implementation of key national policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Direct Government Action Program for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor	A MITRADEL initiative implemented through the Institute for Training and Utilization of Human Resources that provides a network of social and economic services to child workers and children at risk of child labor. Services include the provision of food and scholarships, support for sports activities, and social monitoring. (13) Replaced the Roadmap Towards the Elimination of Child Labor (2016–2019) in 2020. (9) During the reporting period, it provided scholarships for children and adolescents to incentivize them to attend school and not work. (18,53,54) Together with NGO Casa Esperanza will provide the 800 children and adolescents identified by DIRETIPAT in 2021 as victims of or at-risk for child labor with social services, scholarships, and academic follow-up for three years. (13)
National Multisectoral Strategy for the Prevention of Violence Against Children and Adolescents (2018–2022)	Aims to eliminate child labor and end the mistreatment, exploitation, trafficking, violence, and torture of children. Developed by the national government through the National Intersectoral Committee for the Prevention of Violence Against Children and Adolescents and SENNIAC, with technical support from UNICEF. (55,56) Research was unable to determine whether activities were taken to implement this strategy during the reporting period.
National Action Plan for the Prevention and Elimination of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children and Adolescents	Seeks to prevent and eliminate the commercial sexual exploitation of children and adolescents, including by providing services to victims, strengthening CONAPREDES, and raising awareness. Implemented by CONAPREDES, with support from the Public Ministry. (13,46,57) In 2021, it held several meetings. (73)
National Plan Against Trafficking in Persons (2012–2022)	Combats human trafficking through prevention, victim assistance, and international cooperation. Includes provisions to protect child victims of human trafficking. (13,41,58) In 2021, multiple government agencies met several times to coordinate the strengthening of the fulfillment of the plan, as well as to train officials so that they have the tools for the early detection of victims. (44)
Districts Free of Child Labor	Establishes cooperation agreements between MITRADEL and municipal councils to design and implement child labor eradication strategies. (3) Includes policies related to development and education projects that support poverty reduction. During the reporting period, five new agreements for districts free of child labor were established with the districts of Arraiján, Ocu, Santa Fe, La Mesa, and David. Additionally, the agreements with the districts of San Miguelito and Aguadulce were renewed. (73,75)

The Coordination Agreement on Labor Migration between the Ministries of Labor of Costa Rica and Panama aims to strengthen dialogue on labor migration between the two countries, with an emphasis on indigenous Panamanian migrant workers, to ensure social protection of migrant workers and their families. The policy includes a bilateral technical committee to promote joint action to address human trafficking, exchange information, and develop cooperative strategies and projects. (59) Although potentially a useful policy tool to combat child labor, child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to have been integrated into this policy.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including their ability to reach the most vulnerable populations.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
SENNIAC programs to identify, remove, and provide services to children engaged in the worst forms of child labor and commercial sexual exploitation†	Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor identifies children engaged in the worst forms of child labor, removes them from exploitative situations, and connects them to a network of social and economic services offered by the government. Maintains a case processing system to efficiently manage reports and help reduce report processing times. (1) Prevention and Care for Child and Adolescent Victims of Sexual Violence identifies children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, removes them from exploitative situations, and provides them with social services. Conducts training workshops nationwide for professionals providing direct care to child and adolescent victims of sexual violence. (60) Reports indicate these programs were still active in 2021. During the reporting period, SENNIAC commemorated the World Day Against Child Labor by distributing flyers on child labor in an effort to raise awareness on the issue. (61) Through these programs SENNIAC provided training to facilitate the integral development of children and adolescents involved in child labor. Additionally, 118 children received services from SENNIAC after having been removed from child labor. (13)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Program	Description
Network of Opportunities†	Ministry of Social Development (MIDES) program that provides conditional cash transfers to families in extreme poverty, conditioned on their children's participation in health and education services and the acquisition of a birth certificate. Offers training to project participants to improve income-generating opportunities. (62) In 2021, the cash transfers to vulnerable families continued. (63) Additionally, it provided rural women residing in the Ngäbe Buglé region a total of 7,380 pounds of yams and ñampi, in attempt to reduce poverty and improve the quality of life of families residing in the region. As part of this effort the government also delivered vegetable seed kits, including seeds for cucumber, beans, watermelon, and pumpkin. (64) The assistance targeted vulnerable communities where sources of employment are scarce, such as Cerro Caña Centro, La Emeregilda, and Las Trancas, which have a poverty index of more than 90 percent. According to MIDES this investment reached more than $2.2 million and benefitted approximately 650 families. (64)
El Plan Colmena†	Seeks to reduce poverty and inequality in the country's most vulnerable districts. It prioritizes 12 areas of intervention including comprehensive childhood care, improved nutrition, access to clean water and basic sanitation, health, education, and the development of productive capacities to ensure the sustainability of communities. (73) It was active in 2021, conducting trainings on positive behavior and parenting, as well as family communication. (65-68)

Although the Government of Panama has expanded programs that reach children in rural areas and from indigenous and Afro-Panamanian communities, reports indicate that the scope of these programs is insufficient, and these children remain vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (69,70)

Despite policy efforts, the National Anti-Trafficking Commission acknowledges that funding for and availability of services for human trafficking victims remains insufficient to address the full scope of the problem. Furthermore, although victims of child trafficking are able to receive services from local NGOs, Panama lacks programs to specifically address the needs of this population. (4) Government officials have also noted that despite funds dedicated to the prevention of crimes against children, Panama lacks a specific mechanism to direct funds toward child sexual abuse victims. (71,72)

In the past, there were widespread allegations of abuse against children in SENNIAC facilities, specifically shelters, which were later verified through an independent investigation. Child trafficking survivors in Panama are referred by the government to SENNIAC to receive services, including shelter; these are administered by NGOs and religious organizations. (20) Yet, children in these facilities are vulnerable to recruitment by traffickers. Additionally, reports indicate that SENNIAC's budget is insufficient to support restructuring or other largescale efforts needed to reduce children's risk of suffering abuse, which heightened their vulnerability to trafficking. (20)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Panama (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law protects children from hazardous work by establishing a minimum age of 18 for all children or by ensuring that children receive adequate training in the type of work being done and that the health, safety, and morals of children are protected in accordance with international standards if children ages 16 or 17 are allowed to perform hazardous work.	2013 – 2021
	Establish regulations that define the types of activities that children ages 12 to 14 can undertake as light work.	2009 – 2021
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2019 – 2021
Enforcement	Ensure that all inspectors receive regular, specialized training on child labor issues.	2018 – 2021
	Allocate sufficient funding for the Directorate Against Child Labor and for the Protection of Adolescent Workers to meet its commitments for coordination, implementation, and monitoring related to child labor.	2014 – 2021

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors from 105 to 130 to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2020 – 2021
	Collect and make available information on the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions obtained, and penalties imposed related to the worst forms of child labor.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that judges are sufficiently trained on laws related to forced labor, the worst forms of child labor, and human trafficking in order to ensure that these crimes can be effectively prosecuted.	2021
Government Policies	Take steps to implement the policies related to child labor on an annual basis and publish information about these efforts.	2020 – 2021
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Coordination Agreement on Labor Migration between the Ministries of Labor of Costa Rica and Panama.	2015 – 2021
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including children from rural areas and indigenous and Afro-Panamanian communities, by expanding existing programs, including school transportation.	2014 – 2021
	Ensure that students have access and equipment for remote education, when necessary.	2021
	Establish programs and ensure sufficient funding to address the needs of human trafficking victims, including programs that provide services to child victims of human trafficking and sexual abuse.	2018 – 2021

In 2021, Papua New Guinea made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor.

During the reporting period, the government continued with rescue and enforcement efforts and joined UNICEF's Pathfinding program, which is a global partnership to end violence against children. However, children in Papua New Guinea are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining and deep-sea fishing. Papua New Guinea's hazardous work prohibitions do not comply with international standards that require all children under age 18 to be protected from work that could jeopardize their health and safety, nor do its laws prohibit using, procuring, or offering a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. Schools continued charging fees as a result of not receiving promised government subsidies needed for education to remain free and accessible for all children. In addition, insufficient resources hampered the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws. Papua New Guinea has not conducted a nationwide survey of child labor and does not collect data on its efforts to enforce its labor laws. The Government of Papua New Guinea did not respond to requests for information on its law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Papua New Guinea are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-3) Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining and deep-sea fishing. (1,3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Papua New Guinea. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		77.1

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (4)

Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2022. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Working on tea, coffee, copra, and palm oil plantations (3,6)
	Deep-sea fishing, including harvesting sea cucumbers and pearls (3)
Industry	Mining, including gold mining (3)
Services	Manual labor (7)
	Domestic work (7,8)
	Street work, including scavenging for recyclables, begging, directing traffic, and directing traffic while begging (3,7,9)
	Working in markets, including unloading and carrying heavy bags of food (1,3)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor†	Commercial sexual exploitation, including working in bars, nightclubs, and brothels, and use in the production of pornography, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3)
	Forced domestic work (7)
	Illicit activities, including selling drugs (3)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced mining, including panning for gold (7)
	Forced portering (1,7)
	Forced begging (7)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Papua New Guinea is a source and destination country for child trafficking, especially of girls. In addition, children are sometimes forced into labor, such as in mining and portering, by organized criminal groups and by their own families. (7) Some children from rural areas are sent to live with relatives or “host” families in cities, where they may be forced to perform domestic work to pay off family debts. (7,9) Young girls who are sold into polygamous marriages are forced into domestic service for their new spouse's extended family members. Some are also exploited for sex trafficking. (7)

Children in Papua New Guinea also engage in a number of hazardous labor activities. Children engaged in street work, such as begging or vending, are vulnerable to crime, traffic accidents, hunger, punishment from relatives, and illness. (7) Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining, such as handling dangerous chemicals, including mercury used in gold mining, for which they lack appropriate training and equipment. (3,8) Children are also employed for deep-sea diving for cucumbers and pearls and risk drowning. (3)

Many children in Papua New Guinea face several barriers to accessing education, and this increases children's vulnerability to child labor. (10) Some of the most pressing barriers to education in Papua New Guinea include insufficient resources, including unpaid teachers, a lack of transportation, aging infrastructure, and a lack of reliable water supplies and proper toilets. (1,3) UNICEF states that only 28 percent of schools in the country have different toilets for boys and girls, and only 50 percent of schools have access to clean water. The absence of gender-separated toilets is especially disadvantageous for girls. (3) In addition, research found that the threat of gender-based violence prevents many girls from attending school. (10)

During the reporting period, the Government of Papua New Guinea updated the Tuition Fee-Free Program, which falls under the Government Tuition Fee Subsidy policy. Under the policy, the government pays 63.4 percent of fees and other costs, such as transportation for schools in remote areas, and parents are responsible for paying the remaining 36.6 percent of school fees. (11) Although this policy helps subsidize school fees, the lack of essential resources, such as classrooms and textbooks, and limited transportation remain a barrier to accessible education. (3,12) In addition, schools are also allowed to collect project and church fees from parents. (12) Reports show that schools have not received their full funding allocations, and the partial amount paid out is received in bits and pieces. (3) In previous years, some schools did not receive the subsidy and had to subsequently close due to aging infrastructure. (9,13,14)

Moreover, natural disasters and the COVID-19 pandemic have further caused disruptions to student's school schedules. (3) According to UNICEF, lockdowns due to the pandemic affected almost 2.4 million students in the country. An estimated 400 hours of instruction time were lost due to school closures. (15) Access to learning through technology has been limited because almost 80 percent of schools do not have electricity. (3,15)

Papua New Guinea lacks comprehensive research and data on child labor, which affects the government's ability to address child labor in the country. (3)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Papua New Guinea has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Papua New Guinea's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 103 of the Employment Act (16)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	16	Article 104 of the Employment Act (16)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 23 and 43 of the Constitution of the Independent State of Papua New Guinea; Section 208 of the Criminal Code (17,18)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Section 208 of the Criminal Code (18)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 229J–229O and 229R–229S of the Criminal Code (19)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	16	Section 30 of the Defense Act (20)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	No
Free Public Education	No

* Country has no conscription (21)

Papua New Guinea's existing legal framework governing child labor does not meet international standards on a number of fronts. Though Papua New Guinea meets international standards for minimum age for work requirement, Article 103 of the Papua New Guinea Employment Act permits children ages 11 through 16 to work under certain conditions, including parental consent and if the child works only with members of the family. (16,22) Children as young as age 11 are permitted to perform light work, without enumerating what forms of labor may be classified as “light work” and without establishing a limit on the number of hours a child under age 16 may be made to work. (16,22) Papua New Guinea's existing laws on the minimum age for hazardous work under Article 104 of Papua New Guinea's Employment Act sets the minimum age for engaging in hazardous labor activities at age 16 rather than age 18. (16,22) There is no age up to which education is compulsory and there is no free basic education for children established by law in Papua New Guinea, increasing the risk of children's involvement in child labor.

Papua New Guinea

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Papua New Guinea also does not have laws that prohibit using, procuring, or offering a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. (23) The law does not sufficiently protect children from commercial sexual exploitation, because using, procuring, and offering a child for pornographic performances are not criminally prohibited. (19) Lastly, the prohibitions against child trafficking are insufficient because they require that threats, the use of force, or coercion be established for the crime of child trafficking. (2,18)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor and Industrial Relations	Implements and enforces child labor laws. (3,9)
Department of Youth, Religion, and Community Development	Through the Office of Child and Family Welfare Services, implements, oversees, and enforces the Child Protection ( Lukautim Pikinini ) Act, including provisions on child labor and its worst forms, and employs Papua New Guinea's Child Protection Officers. (1,3,24)
Royal Papua New Guinea Constabulary	Enforces laws against commercial sexual exploitation of children. (3,8) Includes the specialized Family and Sexual Violence Unit, which protects children's rights and safety. (8,25)

The Department of Labor and Industrial Relations lacks a data monitoring system to track child labor cases, which may hamper its efforts to address child labor concerns in Papua New Guinea. (3) There is no system in the country for a referral mechanism for survivors of child labor and exploitation. The Department of Youth, Religion, and Community Development has not yet implemented a system to refer children for protection and shelter. (3) The department does conduct some trainings for Child Protection Officers who provide referrals for children and families. However, the scope of the training is unknown. (3)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Papua New Guinea took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including a lack of referral mechanisms.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (3)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (1)	Yes (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (1)	No (3)

The Government of Papua New Guinea did not respond to requests for information related to its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (3) Although the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Papua New Guinea would need to employ roughly 187 labor inspectors because its workforce consists of more than 2.8 million workers. (27) Due to limited personnel capacity, labor inspectors generally respond to specific child labor complaints on a case-by-case basis as complaints are filed, and only sometimes do they carry out routine inspections in hazardous workplaces or in the manufacturing sector. (3,28) The labor inspectorate does not have sufficient resources to adequately enforce Papua New Guinea's labor laws, including sufficient trainings for labor officers. (3,29) Most child labor takes place in the peri-urban areas where inspections are limited. (3) When labor inspections do occur, they are conducted in all three of Papua New Guinea's languages (English, Hiri-Motu, and Pidgin/Tok Pisin). (1,3)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Papua New Guinea took actions to address child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (1)	No (3)

During the reporting period, the Department of Immigration and Citizenship and the Papua New Guinea Royal Constabulary carried out a joint operation during which seven lodges and guesthouses suspected of being commercial sex establishments were investigated. Police identified a 12-year-old girl who had been sold for $30. (3) The girl was referred to the IOM for counseling and the three alleged traffickers were charged with child sex trafficking crimes under Sections 208C and 229 of the Criminal Code. The three attackers included the child's cousin and two male adults. (3,30)

The Government of Papua New Guinea did not respond to requests for information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (3) Research indicates that there are not enough officers to conduct criminal investigations into child labor accusations due to a lack of funding, training, and report writing skills. (1,3) Research was unable to find evidence of trainings occurring in 2021 and was unable to determine whether training for prospective law enforcement officials addresses all child labor elimination components, including recognizing the worst forms of child labor, victim identification, and prevention strategies. (3,31) Reports also indicate a widespread practice of customary justice and distrust of law enforcement among survivors. In addition, political will among law enforcement is lacking, and there are insufficient funds to conduct investigations, particularly in rural areas. (7)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of efficacy in accomplishing mandates of the National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee.

Papua New Guinea

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee (NAHTC)	Coordinates efforts to address human trafficking. Chaired by the Department of Justice and the Attorney General, with representatives from more than 15 government agencies, NGOs, and international organizations. (9) Even prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, NAHTC was largely inactive. (7) NAHTC was not active during the reporting period. (30)
National Council for Child and Family Services	Coordinates the implementation of the Child Protection Act and the National Child Protection Policy. In partnership with UNICEF, is overseen by senior government officials, civil society organizations, faith-based organizations, and private sector representatives, and includes Child Protection Officers. (3,32,33) Since its establishment in 2018, the council has developed a mechanism to appoint new Child Protection Officers. The appointment of the existing 42 officers was reviewed during the reporting period. (3)
National Child Welfare Office	Coordinates the promotion of children's rights through awareness campaigns and trainings. Refers perpetrators to the police and provides help to police and social services when a child is rescued from child labor. (28) Research was unable to determine whether this mechanism was active during the reporting period.

Research indicates that there is a lack of senior governmental leadership and participation at National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee meetings. (28) The Ministry of Labor and Industrial Relations did not participate in the activities of the National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee. Although the National Council for Child and Family Services exists, research found no evidence that the council functions as a coordinating mechanism to address child labor.

Intra-agency coordination between enforcement agencies is lacking and there are no specific coordination guidelines. (3)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including a lack of implementation of key national policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor in Papua New Guinea	Promotes government coordination efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor through more effective prevention, protection, rehabilitation, and reintegration measures and capacity building. (30,34) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor in Papua New Guinea during the reporting period. The Department of National Planning and Monitoring which helps coordinate and facilitate national and international initiatives published a modified National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor in July 2021. (35,36)
National Child Protection Policy (2017–2027)	Seeks to strengthen child protection laws, including increased data gathering and analysis, full implementation of the Lukautim Pikinini Act, and elimination of violence against children at the hands of the police. (9,40) Research was unable to determine whether efforts were undertaken to implement the National Child Protection Policy during the reporting period. (3)
Tuition Fee-Free Policy	Aims to improve access to education by abolishing school tuition fees and providing subsidies to cover costs for primary and secondary school children who cannot afford an education. (8,41,42) In June 2021, was reverted from a government subsidy policy instituted in 2019 back to the Tuition Fee-Free policy. The program is slated to subsidize education for students from grades 1 to 12. However, implementation regulations for the policy have yet to be passed. (3)

In May 2021, Papua New Guinea became the newest member of UNICEF's global partnership to end violence against children, making Papua New Guinea the newest Pathfinder country. As a Pathfinder nation, Papua New Guinea committed to raising awareness, uplifting its leadership commitment, and creating a national standard to end violence against children. (43) The government's Trafficking in Persons National Action Plan that was established in 2015 ended in 2020, and research was unable to determine what level of progress was made under the program.

Research was unable to confirm whether the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor began enacting policies or programs in 2021- none were implemented in previous years due to a lack of effective administrative planning and human and financial resources. (3,30) The modified action plan in 2021 makes it more user-friendly;

however, the substance of the plan is unchanged. The 2017–2020 National Action Plan faced hurdles, including poor implementation and performance. (30) The Department of Labor and Industrial Relations, the implementing agency for the program, noted that administrative oversight and lack of funding had led to no activity on the policy during the reporting period. (3) Research was also unable to determine whether child labor elimination strategies were incorporated into the Trafficking in Persons National Action Plan.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Care Centers†	Provide a safe location for children removed by Child Protection Officers from situations deemed to be harmful to their health and safety. (9,24) Research was unable to determine whether the Child Care Centers were active during the reporting period.
I-Tok Kaunselin Helpim Lain	Telephone hotline funded by ChildFund Papua New Guinea to report child welfare concerns and physical or sexual violence. (26) The hotline was active in 2021 and received training from IOM staff on trafficking process, crisis intervention, and referrals during the reporting period. (35,44)

† Program is funded by the Government of Papua New Guinea.

Research was unable to determine whether the government carried out programs specifically designed to assist children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, or mining. Research found no evidence of any programs with the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (45,46)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Papua New Guinea (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2018 – 2021
	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2014 – 2021
	Accede to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2014 – 2021
	Raise the minimum age for light work to age 13 to comply with international standards and ensure that the law's light work provisions are sufficiently specific to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2015 – 2021
	Establish age 18 as the minimum age for hazardous work, and identify hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that the law does not require threats, the use of force, or coercion to be established for the crime of child trafficking.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, and offering a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2014 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, and offering a child for pornographic performances.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Establish by law an age up to which education is compulsory that extends to the minimum age for employment.	2009 – 2021
Enforcement	Establish by law free basic public education.	2021
	Establish a data monitoring system to track child labor cases.	2019 – 2021
	Strengthen the inspection system by ensuring that inspectors conduct routine or targeted inspections in addition to those that are complaint driven.	2014 – 2021

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Publish information on child labor law enforcement efforts undertaken, including labor inspectorate funding, the number of child labor violations found, and the number of child labor penalties imposed.	2014 – 2021
	Provide inspectors with the resources necessary to enforce labor laws and other laws that protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including funding, training, and report writing skills.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that labor inspectors have enough funds to conduct inspections.	2021
	Establish a referral mechanism between labor and criminal law enforcement authorities and social services agencies to ensure that victims of child labor receive appropriate support services.	2014 – 2021
	Ensure that there are enough labor inspectors and that the number of inspectors meets the ILO's technical advice.	2017 – 2021
	Institutionalize and fully fund training on the worst forms of child labor for labor inspectors and criminal investigators, including training for new labor inspectors at the beginning of their employment.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that labor inspections occur in all areas of Papua New Guinea, especially outside of urban areas. Provide sufficient funding, institutional incentives, and local community awareness efforts to ensure that criminal investigations into labor violations are effectively carried out.	2019 – 2021
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts undertaken, including the number of child labor investigations initiated, the number of child labor penalties imposed, and the number of criminal law enforcement convictions secured.	2017 – 2021
Coordination	Ensure that the National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee is active and meets regularly to implement measures to address human trafficking.	2021
	Ensure that the established coordinating mechanisms address all forms of child labor, including the worst forms of child labor, and fully carry out their mandates.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that there is senior governmental leadership and participation at National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee meetings.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that all anti-human trafficking stakeholders, including NGOs, are invited to and participate in the National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee coordination meetings as per the Committee's mandate.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure the Ministry of Labor's participation in the National Anti-Human Trafficking Committee.	2021
	Establish coordinating mechanisms to prevent and eliminate child labor.	2021
Government Policies	Ensure that all policies are funded and implemented according to their mandate, including the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor in Papua New Guinea, the National Child Protection Policy, and the Tuition Fee-Free Policy.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure the new government Tuition Fee Subsidy policy is effectively implemented, including full necessary payout to schools.	2018 – 2021
	Collect and publicize data on outcomes related to the 2015–2020 Trafficking in Persons Action Plan.	2021
Social Programs	Increase access to education by instituting programs to address gender-based violence against girls in schools, eliminating all school-related fees, increasing funding to provide school infrastructure improvements, ensuring that all schools have reliable water supplies, and separating girls' bathrooms.	2014 – 2021
	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2021
	Implement and fully fund programs and anti-human trafficking services that assist children engaged in the worst forms of child labor in all relevant sectors, especially commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and mining.	2010 – 2021
	Ensure that Child Care Centers are active and are fully funded, and publish their activities undertaken during the reporting period.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that the new Government Tuition Fee Subsidy Policy is effectively implemented, including full necessary payouts to schools.	2021
	Ensure that children have access to technology for education.	2021

In 2021, Paraguay made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Labor finalized a resolution that established new procedures for more prompt investigations of child labor and expanded its use of virtual outreach and training, and the Departmental Committees for the Eradication of Child Labor opened new offices in three departments across the country. The government also expanded the Support for the Community Kitchens Program, which focuses on relieving economic strain on families at risk of child labor. However, children in Paraguay are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in domestic servitude and in debt bondage in cattle raising, on dairy farms, and in charcoal factories. Children with disabilities as well as those from rural and indigenous communities face difficulties accessing and completing their education. In addition, limited funding for law enforcement agencies and social programs hampered the government's ability to fully address the worst forms of child labor, particularly in rural areas. Paraguay's criminal law enforcement agencies also lack resources to sufficiently identify, investigate, and prosecute cases of the worst forms of child labor, especially in remote areas.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Paraguay are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in domestic servitude and in debt bondage in cattle raising, on dairy farms, and in charcoal factories. (1-4) The 2011 National Survey of Child and Adolescent Activities found that 21 percent of all Paraguayan children were engaged in hazardous work. (5) The 2015 Survey of Activities of Rural Area Children and Adolescents, published in 2016, identified 384,677 children ages 5 to 17 engaged in child labor in agriculture. (6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Paraguay. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of manioc/cassava, corn, beans, peanuts, peppers, sesame, sugarcane, tomatoes, lettuce, melons, sweet potato, onions, carrots, cabbages, yerba mate (stimulant plant), and charcoal (6,9,10)
	Raising poultry, hogs, cattle,† sheep, and goats and milk production (6)
	Fishing, including using hooks and harpoons,† preparing bait, and cleaning fish† (6)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Industry	Construction, including handling heavy loads, machinery or equipment,† and production of bricks (1-3,5,9-12) Limestone quarrying† and gold mining† (1,2,5,9,10,13)
Services	Domestic work† (1-5,11,14-16) Street work,† including vending, shoe shining, and begging (1,3,5,9-11,15-17) Horse jockeying (9,16) Garbage dump scavenging† (5)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Debt bondage in cattle raising, dairy farms, and charcoal factories (1-4,11) Commercial sexual exploitation and domestic servitude (1,3,11,17,18) Use in the production of child pornography (1-3,9-11,15) Use in illicit activities, including drug smuggling and drug trafficking (1,2,11,15)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Criadazgo, a practice in which middle-class and wealthy families informally employ and house child domestic workers from impoverished families, is pervasive in Paraguay. (1,3,11,18) Many of these children are in situations of domestic servitude, subjected to violence and abuse, and highly vulnerable to sex trafficking. (1,5,16,17) Lack of political will continues to prevent Congress from considering previously drafted legislation that would criminalize criadazgo. (11,19)

Children are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in Ciudad del Este; in the Tri-Border area between Paraguay, Argentina, and Brazil; and along commercial shipping routes on the Paraguay River. (1,3,11,20) The government has indicated it is investigating allegations that children are recruited by the Paraguayan People's Army for use in armed conflict against security forces, as well as investigating claims that children are used as forced labor in the production of marijuana in the Department of Amambay. (1,11) Furthermore, children work alongside their parents in debt bondage on cattle ranches, dairy farms, and charcoal factories in the remote Chaco region. (1-3,9,11,16)

Children from rural and indigenous communities face difficulties accessing and completing their education, including language barriers and inadequate facilities and staff. (1,2,21,22) A study released in 2019 by the Coordinator for the Rights of Infancy and Adolescence of Paraguay estimated that half of all children in indigenous communities do not attend school. (23) The government has noted that girls from rural areas leave school at an earlier age than boys and has estimated that more than 50 percent of children with disabilities could not attend school due to lack of access to public transportation. (9,10) Such challenges may leave these children more vulnerable to child labor. Approximately 13 percent of children engaged in child labor in agriculture do not attend school. (6)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Paraguay has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Paraguay's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of prohibition of child recruitment by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	18	Article 1 of Law No. 2332; Article 58 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (24,25)

Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Articles 3 and 5 of the Obligatory Military Service Law (36,37)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Articles 3 and 5 of the Obligatory Military Service Law (36,37)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	17	Article 2 of Law No. 4088; Article 32 of the General Education Law No. 1264; Decree 6162 (38-40)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 76 of the Constitution; Article 32 of the General Education Law No. 1264 (31,38)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security (MTESS)	Enforces laws related to child labor; inspects workplaces for child labor; and recommends penalties or fines for companies found in violation of labor laws. Refers cases involving criminal violations of child labor to the Ministry of Adolescents and Children (MINNA). (11)
Paraguayan National Police	Maintain a special unit of 40 police officers known as the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit, which handles trafficking in persons complaints, including in relation to children. Maintain offices in five cities across the country. (41)
Public Ministry (Attorney General)	Investigates and prosecutes criminal cases of forced child labor; child trafficking; commercial sexual exploitation, the recruitment and use of child soldiers, and use of children in illicit activities. (1) Maintains the Specialized Unit to Combat Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation of Children and Adolescents (ATU). (2) Comprises 5 specialized prosecutors based in Asunción and 44 assistants. (41)
Ministry of Adolescents and Children (MINNA)	Maintains a hotline to report cases of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children. Provides social services to survivors referred by law enforcement agencies and refers cases of sexual exploitation and child labor to the Public Ministry's ATU. (1-3)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2021, the MTESS expanded its use of virtual outreach and training, including a virtual training to over 300,000 students at vocational schools nationwide, hosted in cooperation with the National Professional Promotion Service and the National System of Labor Training. (11) In addition, the Ministry of Women's Affairs also provides social services to female survivors of human trafficking and houses an office staffed with five personnel dedicated to addressing trafficking of children. (2)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Paraguay took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security (MTESS) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In February 2021, the MTESS finalized a resolution that established new procedures to allow for more prompt investigations of child labor. Upon receiving a complaint of child labor, inspectors must initiate an investigation within 24 hours and must refer children in need of specialized services to the proper agencies within 12 hours. (11,46)

During the reporting period, MTESS operations continued to be affected by the COVID-19 pandemic. Government funds were redirected through continuing issues of state of emergencies and the MTESS was again obliged to shift the focus of its inspections from compliance with labor regulations to compliance with emergency workplace sanitary measures. (11,47) During the reporting period, sanitary "verifications", which in 2020 served as opportunities to also inspect for child labor, were reduced as the government loosened restrictions. (45) Despite the challenges posed by the pandemic, all inspectors received regular training on child labor issues during the reporting period. (11)

Although Paraguay has ratified ILO C. 81, its labor inspectors are contractors rather than public officials, and due to the instability of contract employment, the authority and training of these labor inspectors may be called into question. (1-3) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Paraguay's workforce, which includes over 3.5 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Paraguay would need to employ about 238 inspectors. (48,49) Government agencies, international organizations, NGOs, and labor organizations agree that inadequate funding and the insufficient number of labor inspectors hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws, especially in the informal sector, including in agriculture and domestic work, and particularly in rural areas such as the Chaco region. (1,3,9) With reduced ability to travel and access workplaces due to the pandemic, the MTESS attempted to make better use of its computer databases to identify labor violations, but noted limited success with this approach. (11) The MTESS, other government agencies, and NGOs agree that labor inspectors receive useful and necessary training, but that inspectors could benefit from more training specific to child labor. (1,3,11)

An additional constraint to labor law enforcement is the lack of efficient and timely cooperation by judicial authorities in granting workplace inspection search warrants to the Public Ministry and the MTESS when an employer does not permit an inspector to enter a workplace to conduct an inspection. (1-3) Research was unable to determine whether the government has implemented a 2016 agreement with judicial and law enforcement authorities that would accelerate the authorization of search warrants.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Paraguay took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including a lack of resources to sufficiently identify, investigate, and prosecute cases of the worst forms of child labor.

† Number of investigations conducted between January and November 2020.

During the reporting period, the anti-trafficking unit investigated 170 child labor-related cases including 58 that involved labor trafficking, 96 involving pimping, and 16 involving child pornography. (11) The Specialized Unit to Combat Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation of Children and Adolescents also removed 26 children from exploitative situations with collaboration from the Paraguayan National Police, the Public Defender's Office, and the Ministry of Adolescents and Children (MINNA). (11) The MINNA also held an internal training for officials on child labor, forced labor, sexual exploitation of children, and best practices in safely repatriating child and adolescent victims of international human trafficking. (51) The Ministry of Women's Affairs also held a training in cooperation with Attaining Lasting Change (ATLAS) Project and implementers Partners of the Americas for 30 public officials on best practices and challenges of applying Paraguayan anti-trafficking in persons law. (51) In addition, local authorities in the Caaguazú department organized two forums on Human Trafficking and Sexual Violence against Children and Adolescents. (51)

Despite these efforts, government agencies, international organizations, NGOs, and labor organizations have observed a nationwide need for more specialized prosecutors to support local prosecutors and increase the Public Ministry's ability to investigate and prosecute cases involving human trafficking. (10,14) Overall, Paraguay's criminal law enforcement agencies lack resources to sufficiently identify, investigate, and prosecute cases of the worst forms of child labor, especially in remote areas. Additionally, inconsistent application of fines and criminal penalties remain significant challenges in the elimination of the worst forms of child labor. (1,11)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including insufficient financial and human resources.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission to Prevent and Eradicate Child Labor and Protect Adolescent Labor	Leads government efforts against child labor and includes representatives from MTESS, the Ministry of Justice and Human Rights, the Ministry of Women's Affairs, MINNA and other government agencies, and labor union representatives, industry associations, and NGOs. (43) Met eight times during the reporting period and approved a plan for an interinstitutional project to support children living on the street. (11)
Interinstitutional Working Group on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking	Coordinates interagency efforts to address all forms of trafficking in persons, including child trafficking, and collects and reports statistics on those efforts. (1,3) Headed by the Ministry of Foreign Relations. (2) Met three times during the reporting period. (11)
Defense Councils for the Rights of Children and Adolescents	Coordinate efforts to protect children's rights at the municipal level, including by maintaining a registry of adolescent workers and coordinating with vocational training programs for adolescents. (24) In many municipalities, staff from the Defense Councils for the Rights of Children and Adolescents were informally involved in child labor investigations and supported judges in civil cases involving children during the reporting period. (11)

The National Commission to Prevent and Eradicate Child Labor and Protect Adolescent Labor continued to decentralize through the creation of Departmental Committees for the Eradication of Child Labor and opened new offices in the Departments of Concepción, Canindeyú, and Guairá during the reporting period. (11,51)

While the Interinstitutional Working Group on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking was effective in fostering dialogue and coordination among government agencies on anti-trafficking in persons efforts, it faced challenges in collecting and reporting statistics and a lack of participation from all relevant government agencies. (18) Coordination between the MTESS and the Ministries of Education and Health remains insufficient to address the worst forms of child labor. In addition, the Defense Councils for the Rights of Children and Adolescents require additional financial and human resources to fulfill their mission to address child labor. (2,10,18,52)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including insufficient implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor and Protection of Working Adolescents (2019–2024)	Focuses on raising awareness and strengthening enforcement of child labor laws. Provides child laborers with access to free quality education and offers livelihood alternatives for their families. (2,10,53) The government continued to implement this strategy during the reporting period. (11)
National Strategy to Prevent Forced Labor (2021–2024)†	Aims to prevent and eradicate forced labor and care for victims. (54) A second National Strategy for 2021–2024 was developed during the reporting period with the technical support of the Okakuaa Project. A total of 7 consultation workshops were held with the participation of 158 representatives from public and private institutions and unions to collect inputs for the new plan. (54,55)
National Plan for Development (2020–2030)	Addresses social exclusion and poverty, including by preventing and eliminating child labor. (56) During the reporting period, the strategy, which previously ended in 2020, was extended for the 2020–2030 period. (43)
National Plan on Human Rights	Promotes human rights, including the prevention and elimination of child labor and forced labor. (57) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the policy during the reporting period.
National Plan for the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons (2020–2024)	Aims to guide government prevention, response, and protection actions and establish prosecution and penalty guidelines for trafficking in persons. Also prioritizes institutional capacity building and coordination between government entities. (1,58,59) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the policy during the reporting period.

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including inadequate coverage and funding to fully address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Immediate Response Network†	Program created to provide support to street children. Under the " Dispositivo de Respuesta Inmediata ," MINNA employees with a range of specializations, including psychologists and social workers, respond to tips from the MINNA hotline for reporting mistreatment, sexual abuse, sexual exploitation, and negligence of children, as well as information from roving street patrols in high-risk areas. (3) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the program during the reporting period.
Embrace Program ( Programa Abrazo )†	MINNA program to assist children engaged in exploitative work by providing them and their families with health and education services, food deliveries, and cash transfers conditioned on children's school attendance and withdrawal from work. (2,60) During the reporting period, the program approved a new operations manual for coordinators at Abrazo centers across the country that will provide consistent operational guidance. The program continued to offer trainings on income generation, financial literacy, and entrepreneurship, while also referring victims and survivors of child labor and human trafficking to the appropriate government programs. (11)
Well-Being Conditional Cash Transfer Program ( Tekoporã )†	Government-administered program through the Ministry of Social Development. Provides conditional cash transfers to families in rural communities. (11) Incorporates aspects of the Embrace Program, such as the family monitoring methodology, to ensure participant children do not engage in child labor. (61) During the reporting period, the program helped an additional 63,498 families. (11)
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor, including its worst forms, through research, improved monitoring and enforcement, policy development, and awareness raising. These projects include Attaining Lasting Change (ATLAS), a $7.5 million project that aims to build the capacity of host governments to more adequately address child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking; and Paraguay Okakuaa (Paraguay Progresses), a $7.5 million project implemented by Partners of the Americas, which ended in September 2021. (62,63) In 2021, the Okakuaa Project worked with the Paraguayan National Observatory of Childhood and Adolescence on greater coordination among the Ministries of Labor and Childhood and Adolescence, developing a computer system in which the Departmental Committees for the Eradication of Child Labor can upload reports to share with MINNA and MTESS. In August, MTESS held a virtual presentation on the progress made in the implementation of the national strategy to address child labor. (55) During the reporting period, the ATLAS Project held a symposium for law enforcement officials on child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking, and held a training for MTESS and the National Police officials who are in charge of training their respective staff on trafficking-related subject matter. (51)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (2,3,60,64)

A law enacted in 2021 expanded the Support for Community Kitchens Program to include beneficiaries of all ages. The program, founded in 2018, delivers food bimonthly to community kitchens nationwide that serve children with the goal of relieving economic strain on families at risk of child labor. (11) During the reporting period, the program provided food supplies and funds to 1,654 community kitchens, reaching 194,200 individuals. (45)

The 2012 Law Against Trafficking in Persons requires the Ministry of Women's Affairs to provide compensation and financial assistance to survivors of sexual and labor trafficking, including minors, but NGO and government officials report that compensation takes too long to be helpful. (14,20,33) Although Paraguay has programs that target child labor, the coverage and funding of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, and programs are limited by the absence of government funding in education and health services in rural areas. Additional programs are needed to reach the large numbers of working children, especially in agriculture, including cattle herding, and domestic work. (1,9,14)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Paraguay (Table 11).

Paraguay

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Raise the compulsory age of education to match the minimum age for work.	2021
	Protect children from the abuse of the criadazgo system by regulating the practice with legislation.	2019 – 2021
Enforcement	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by making labor inspectors public officials rather than contractors and ensuring that they receive more training specific to child labor.	2017 – 2021
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2009 – 2021
	Increase the funding and resources available to the labor inspectorate, specifically in the Chaco region, to build enforcement capacity to address child labor in the informal sector, including in agriculture and domestic work.	2009 – 2021
	Implement the 2016 agreement to accelerate authorization of workplace inspection search warrants to improve the cooperation mechanisms among judicial authorities and labor enforcement officials.	2013 – 2021
	Publish information on how many violations of child labor were found through criminal investigations and whether refresher courses were provided to investigators.	2020 – 2021
	Increase efforts to prosecute crimes related to the worst forms of child labor, including by hiring and training more specialized criminal investigators and prosecutors, and by increasing penalties for crimes.	2012 – 2021
	Provide resources to enable more criminal investigations in remote areas.	2012 – 2021
	Ensure that fines and penalties for the worst forms of child labor are consistently applied.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that the Interinstitutional Working Group on Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Persons fulfills its mandate, including in collecting and reporting statistics.	2018 – 2021
Coordination	Strengthen interagency coordinating mechanisms, with particular focus on the communication between the Ministry of Labor, Employment and Social Security and the Ministries of Education and Health, to address child labor, including its worst forms.	2013 – 2021
	Provide additional financial and human resources to the Defense Councils for the Rights of Children and Adolescents to strengthen their ability to address child labor at the municipal level.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that activities were undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor during the reporting period and that data on these activities are published.	2020 – 2021
Government Policies	Ensure that activities were undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor during the reporting period and that data on these activities are published.	2020 – 2021
Social Programs	Publish information on activities undertaken for all key social programs related to child labor during the reporting period.	2021
	Increase access to education for children vulnerable to child labor, particularly children with disabilities, young girls, and children with language barriers living in rural and indigenous communities. Address the lack of infrastructure and staff to improve access to education for all children.	2014 – 2021
	Ensure that financial assistance programs for child trafficking and forced labor survivors are properly funded.	2018 – 2021
	Further expand government programs to assist more families and children affected by child labor in agriculture in rural areas, including cattle herding, and domestic work.	2010 – 2021

In 2021, Peru made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government created a National Forced Labor Observatory to collect and consolidate information on this abuse and government efforts to address it. It also approved national implementation of the Municipal Model for the Detection and Eradication of Child Labor and the Ministry of Labor and Promotion of Employment convened 26 regional commissions for the prevention and eradication of child labor. In addition, the government published an updated National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons for the 2022–2030 period. However, children in Peru are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Peruvian law allows children ages 12 to 14 to do light work without specifying the activities in which children may work. Labor law enforcement agencies in Peru also lack sufficient inspectors and training to adequately address child labor, and the government did not provide complete information on criminal enforcement efforts against child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Peru are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,2) In the 2015 Specialized National Child Labor Survey, the government identified 1,619,200 children, ages 5 to 17, engaged in child labor. Rates of child labor were higher in the highland and jungle regions than in the coastal region, and also higher in rural areas than in urban areas. (3) The government estimated that 1,251,400 children, ages 5 to 17, were engaged in hazardous child labor and that 58.4 percent of these children worked in agriculture, fishing, or mining. The government also identified 70,500 children, ages 10 to 17, who were at risk of forced labor. (3) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Peru.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	21.8 (1,261,484)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	25.0

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Agriculture	Transplanting and harvesting rice, and collecting and harvesting Brazil nuts/chestnuts (6,7)

	Growing and processing coca (stimulant plant) and transporting drugs (13,14,20)
	Counterfeiting U.S. dollars and lightbulbs (1,2,14,20)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (14,20)

Children in Peru work in informal and small-scale mining, particularly for gold, sometimes in situations of forced labor. (13,14,20) These children are exposed to hazards, including mercury and harmful gases, wall and mine collapses, landslides, and explosives accidents. (8,12,13,21) Communities located near illegal mining operations are often isolated and lack a permanent government presence, increasing the likelihood of child trafficking and the use of children for commercial sexual exploitation. (12-14,20,22) Young girls from Colombia, Ecuador, and Venezuela are also subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and forced labor in mining regions of Peru. (14,23) In addition, remnants of the Shining Path terrorist group continue to use children in combat, domestic servitude, and drug trafficking. (13,14,20) Some children are also subjected to forced labor in support of narco-trafficking, including by using hazardous chemicals to process coca or working as drug couriers. (13,14,20) Civil society reported that COVID-19 pandemic restrictions led to an increase of online sexual exploitation of children during the reporting period. (13,14)

Remote education continued to be the primary educational method nationwide in 2021 due to the pandemic, leading to higher drop-out rates. (13) Structural problems such as limited class sizes, long distances to schools, and lack of necessary documentation also hindered education access for many refugee and migrant children, and may have exacerbated their vulnerability to child labor and human trafficking. (13,24) School retention of Venezuelan migrant and refugee students was often impacted by their families' lack of economic resources and sustainable livelihoods. (13)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Peru has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Peru's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of prohibition of recruitment of children by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Articles 1, 51, 69-70, and 73 of the Child and Adolescent Code; Articles 4 and 5 of Law No. 29981 on SUNAFIL (25,26)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 1, 56-58, 69-70, and 73 of the Child and Adolescent Code; Articles 4 and 5 of Law No. 29981 on SUNAFIL (26,27)

† Country has no conscription

‡ Age calculated based on available information (30,33)

In March 2021, the government passed an amendment to the Penal Code which aims to better organize articles relating to the crimes of trafficking in persons and other forms of labor and sexual exploitation, now considering them crimes against human dignity. (14,35) This amendment is intended to ensure greater representation of children in legal proceedings and civil compensation for victims of human trafficking and other forms of exploitation. (35)

The Child and Adolescent Code provides a light work exception for children as young as age 12 to receive work authorization without specifying the activities permitted. (13,25) In addition, as the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (27,30,33,34)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Promotion of Employment (MTPE)	Sets national policies and guidelines for labor law enforcement, including for inspections. (26) Maintains an online reporting service to receive complaints of labor law violations. Responsible for supporting the National Labor Inspection Superintendency (SUNAFIL), which enforces labor laws in 21 regions by inspecting workplaces with more than 10 registered workers and referring cases of child labor to the Ministry of Women and Vulnerable Populations (MIMP) and the Public Ministry, as appropriate. (1,9,36-38) MIMP provides social services to children found in the worst forms of child labor and refers cases to the MTPE. (8) SUNAFIL maintains a dedicated unit of 10 inspectors who target forced labor and child labor violations and who train other inspectors on these topics. (1,38,39) In 2020, regional SUNAFIL offices were established in Apurímac, Ucayali, Huancavelica, and Tacna, expanding the reach of the labor inspectorate to cover all 26 subnational entities of Peru. (9,40) Regional Directorates for Labor consist of one representative of the regional government, one representative of MTPE, and one representative of SUNAFIL. These directorates conduct inspections in workplaces with fewer than 10 registered workers. (41) The MTPE implements the child labor-free supply chains program "Child Labor-Free Seal" ( Sello Libre de Trabajo Infantil or SELTI) to help agricultural producers comply with child labor laws, including in rural agricultural zones that are difficult for the labor inspectorate to regulate; activities undertaken by this program in 2021 are unknown. (42)
Ombudsman's Department for Children and Adolescents (DEMUNA)	Coordinates government policies and programs that target children and adolescents and helps the MTPE investigate child labor complaints. (9) Operates 28 offices nationwide. (17) Also works collaboratively with local municipal officials, including police, under the Semilla Project, using the Municipal Model for the Detection and Eradication of Child Labor (MIRTI) referral protocol to ensure adolescents who are removed from hazardous work receive appropriate social services. (42)
Public Ministry	Coordinates with MTPE, SUNAFIL, and the Peruvian National Police (PNP) to investigate and prosecute criminal violations of child labor laws. Maintains a specialized human trafficking prosecutorial unit in the National Prosecutor's Office. (9)
Ministry of the Interior (MININTER)	Investigates child trafficking cases and maintains a hotline to receive reports of human trafficking. (15) Provides victims and the public with information on human trafficking, refers cases of human trafficking to relevant government offices, and coordinates services for victims. (15) Within MININTER, the PNP enforce criminal laws regarding child labor and child exploitation, and maintain a human trafficking investigation unit to investigate cases of child trafficking for labor and sexual exploitation ( Dirección Contra la Trata de Personas y Tráfico Ilícito de Migrantes or DIRCTPTIM). Coordinates with the Public Ministry and MIMP to place rescued minors with family members or state social services. (1,2) PNP's Trafficking in Persons Directorate has approximately 150 investigators. (8) Municipal police also use the Semilla Project's MIRTI model to work collaboratively with DEMUNA to remove children and adolescents from hazardous work. (42)

In March 2021, Congress passed a law reinforcing the government's focus on preventing and eradicating forced labor and creating a National Forced Labor Observatory. The Observatory will collect and consolidate information in coordination with the National Commission Against Forced Labor, and the Ministry of Labor and Promotion of Employment (MTPE) will administer an annual progress report to Congress on efforts to address these abuses. (14,43)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Peru took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MTPE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$55,500,000 (9)	$47,000,000 (13)

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (9)	Yes (13)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (9)	Yes (13)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (9)	Yes (13)

During the reporting period, the MTPE and the National Labor Inspection Superintendency (SUNAFIL), in coordination with the Public Ministry, conducted online child labor training courses for inspectors. SUNAFIL also conducted on-site courses on agricultural labor inspections at large agricultural industry compounds in the Ica region. (13) The government continued to promote the Municipal Model for the Detection and Eradication of Child Labor (MIRTI), which incorporates child labor identification criteria gathered during labor inspections carried out by municipalities, and in August 2021 approved national implementation of the model which had been in a trial phase since 2019. (9,13)

Funding remains inadequate to carry out sufficient inspections, hire new inspectors, and maintain facilities. (13) Enforcement in the informal sector, in which many child laborers are found, is insufficient. (13) SUNAFIL also prohibits inspectors from conducting follow-up programmed inspections of any given worksite within the same year. (13,46) Civil society and labor sector experts reported that training for SUNAFIL's labor inspectors was not adequate. (9) Trainings do not occur frequently enough and are limited outside of Lima, and inspectors are in need of more training on providing labor law compliance to employers and workers. (44)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Peru's workforce, which includes just under 17 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Peru would need to employ about 1,130 inspectors. (47,48) In addition, many of Peru's inspectors are "auxiliary" or junior-level inspectors with limited authority to conduct inspections until they complete 2 years of service and an examination. Auxiliary inspectors must have tenured inspectors supervise their inspection processes and review their inspection acts for any businesses with more than 10 employees. (49)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Peru took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient financial resource allocation.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

During the reporting period, police forces in the regions of Piura and Tumbes organized a training on "Investigating Cases of Missing Persons, the Crime of Trafficking in Persons, and Smuggling of Migrants" for 308 officers. (14) Members of the National Prosecutor's Office also participated in various trainings, including one on the application of the Operation Guide for the Investigation of Crimes of Trafficking in Persons. (13) While the government did not report annual statistics on the number of convictions for crimes related to the worst forms of child labor, during the reporting period, the Public Ministry, overseen by the National Prosecutor's Office, convicted and sentenced perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor. (52-55) This included sentencing 2 individuals to 25 years' imprisonment for trafficking an 11 year old girl from the Loreto region to Lima, where she was forced into domestic service for 2 years before being rescued by authorities. (55)

Despite these efforts, previous research has indicated that investigations and prosecutions were inadequate to deter child trafficking, particularly in illegal mining areas and bars. Moreover, reports noted too few investigators, insufficient funding or resources to carry out investigations, low conviction rates, and inadequate training for MTPE investigators, police, and members of the judicial system. (13,15,17,21,56)

Through the U.S.-Peru Child Protection Compact Partnership, the United States and Peru provide financial, operational, and programmatic support to seven shelters in Peru for child victims of trafficking in persons. These shelters play a crucial role in providing support services, counseling, and reintegration services to all victims. (44) Despite these efforts, there is an insufficient number of shelters for victims of the worst forms of child labor throughout the country, including shelters to serve boys, and a lack of specialized services for victims of human trafficking. (2,14,21,56,57)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the efficacy of action plans under the Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor (CPETI)	Implements the National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor, which includes the Semilla Project as one of its three national pilot projects. (1) Coordinates, evaluates, and monitors efforts to prevent and eradicate child labor; proposing public policies on these issues. Led by MTPE, comprises representatives from 17 government agencies, including MININTER; the Ministries of Education and Justice; PNP; and business associations and unions. (13) In 2021, the CPETI coordinated mostly virtually and through messaging platforms due to pandemic restrictions. (13)
Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor	Manage and implement regional public policy for the prevention and eradication of child labor. Present in all 25 regions of Peru. (58) In 2021, the MTPE sought to strengthen regional commissions' capacities to implement the national action plan against child labor and convened the 26 regional commissions in a virtual format at the launch meeting of Peru as an Alliance 8.7 "Pathfinder Country". (13) However, some Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor have not fulfilled their mandate to create action plans to address child labor, while others have action plans but have failed to provide the necessary funding to carry them out. (1,6,59)
National Commission Against Forced Labor	Coordinates government efforts to address forced labor, including conducting research and awareness-raising campaigns, developing legislation, and strengthening Peru's institutional capacity. Led by MTPE, with the participation of eight additional government ministries. (1) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.
Permanent Multisectoral Commission on Illegal Mining	Coordinates government efforts to address illegal mining by developing programs to eradicate child labor and commercial sexual exploitation of children in mining areas. Led by the Prime Minister's Office and includes representatives from regional governments and six national government agencies, including the Ministry of Energy and Mines and MININTER. (60) Exceptionally high turnover due to political instability hindered progress on the work of this commission during the reporting period. (13)
Multisector Commission Against Trafficking in Persons	Leads and coordinates government efforts on human trafficking by designing, recommending, monitoring, and implementing policies to address human trafficking, including of children, and the provision of services to victims. Chaired by MININTER, comprises 13 government agencies and 2 NGOs. (9,61) The Commission continued to function as an interministerial coordinating body during the reporting period. (13) The Ministry of Finance did not approve a multisectoral anti-trafficking budget for 2021, as per regular practice in past years, which may have impeded comprehensive work at the national level on human trafficking issues. (14)

‡ The government has other coordinating mechanisms that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (8)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including a lack of efficacy in carrying out policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor (2012–2021)	Aimed to eliminate the worst forms of child labor by improving livelihoods of low-income families, educational opportunities, and working conditions for adolescents; raising awareness of child labor; and increasing child labor law enforcement. (1,18) Also sought to improve the quality of child labor data in Peru. (18) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
National Action Plan for Children and Adolescents (2012–2021)	Established a comprehensive set of government policies for children and adolescents to eradicate the worst forms of child labor. (1,58,62) Research was unable to determine whether activities were taken undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
National Plan to Combat Forced Labor (2019–2022)	Establishes policies and priorities for combating forced labor, including programs focusing on vulnerable populations, such as children. (63) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
Intersectoral Protocol Against Forced Labor	Outlines the government's role in preventing and addressing forced labor and provides for the housing, legal defense, and educational reintegration of children and adolescent victims of forced labor. Monitored by the National Commission Against Forced Labor. (64) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons and its Forms of Exploitation (2022–2030)	Serves as the roadmap to prevent, control, reduce, and prosecute trafficking in persons crimes at all levels. In 2021, the government published an updated plan against human trafficking, to be implemented starting in 2022. (14) The Ministry of the Interior is the lead on all efforts and the plan focuses on expanding preventative monitoring; improving inspection, prosecution, and criminal sanction systems; and strengthening attention to and reintegration of victims. (65)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including inadequacy of efforts to address child labor in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Secondary Tutorial Program†	Rural basic education program supported by the Ministry of Education that includes school meal plans ( Qali Warma ) for rural students throughout the country, including hard-to-reach indigenous communities. (42) Research was unable to identify specific actions taken during the reporting period under this program.
Learn Program ( Yachay )†	MIMP program to increase access to social services for children subjected to street work, begging, and commercial sexual exploitation. The Street Educators ( Educadores de Calle )† program is part of the broader Yachay Program and provides counseling and training to children engaged in child labor, begging, and street work. Operates 68 centers at the national level for educational activities, parent training, and workshops. (1,6,66) Connects working children and their families to educational and social services to withdraw them from exploitative work and improve family welfare. (8,66–68) The MIMP continued to administer the Street Educators program during the reporting period. (13)
Together Program ( Juntos )†	Ministry of Development and Social Inclusion program that provides cash transfers to low-income households in 15 of the country's 25 regions. (1,6,69) Research was unable to identify specific actions taken during the reporting period under this program.
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects aim to eliminate child labor, including its worst forms, through research, improved monitoring and enforcement, policy development, and awareness-raising. In 2021, Promoting Better Understanding of Indicators to Address Forced Labor and Labor Trafficking in Peru, a 4-year project implemented by Capital Humano y Social Alternativo (CHS), provided technical assistance to improve government knowledge on the prevention and eradication of forced labor, culminating in the July 2021 congressional approval of a law that formalizes public policies focused on forced labor and also creates the National Forced Labor Observatory. (43,70) Also during the reporting period, From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (The Bridge Project) provided technical assistance in the development of a new national policy on forced labor in coordination with the MTPE. In November 2021, the project presented to the National Commission Against Forced Labor the draft of the National Policy on Forced Labor, including a normative and conceptual framework. (71) For additional information, please see our website.

† Program is funded by the Government of Peru.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Throughout 2021, the Ministry of Women and Vulnerable Populations (MIMP) conducted activities through the "More Control, Less Exploitation Routes" strategy, which focuses on the prevention of human trafficking of children and adolescents overland and by river, disbursing flyers and posters and producing radio and video advertisements. (14) The human trafficking investigation unit (DIRECTPTIM) also carried out the #YourComplaintIsMyVoice (#TuDenunciaEsMiVoz) campaign to raise awareness on forced labor during which more than 500 citizens listened to audio testimony from children who were forced to sell candy on the streets. (14) Reports indicate that existing social programs are not sufficient to fully address the problem of child labor in Peru, including the large number of children who perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Peru also lacks targeted programs to assist children who are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and children who work in mining, logging, and domestic work. (6,72,73)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Peru (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children younger than age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2017 – 2021
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2021
Enforcement	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts, including whether penalties for violations were collected.	2015 – 2021
	Increase the level of funding and the resources allocated for labor and criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2021
	Ensure adequate enforcement of child labor laws, including in the informal sector.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that inspectors and criminal law enforcement personnel are properly trained on child labor and forced labor issues.	2019 – 2021
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2019 – 2021
	Remove the "auxiliary inspector classification" to increase efficiency in the labor inspection process and allow inspectors to conduct follow-up programmed inspections.	2017 – 2021
	Publish information on training for criminal investigators, the number of investigations conducted, prosecutions initiated, and convictions.	2015 – 2021
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement officials conduct adequate investigations in mining areas and bars and initiate prosecutions when violations are found to deter perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that there are sufficient shelters, including shelters for boys, and specialized services available for victims of human trafficking.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor develop action plans to address child labor and allocate sufficient funding to implement these plans.	2010 – 2021
Coordination	Ensure that key coordinating bodies related to the worst forms of child labor are active, publish information on annual activities, and carry out their mandates.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that efforts to address trafficking in persons are fully funded by approving the multisectoral anti-trafficking budget.	2019 – 2021
Government Policies	Ensure that key policies related to the worst forms of child labor are active and that information on annual activities is published.	2020 – 2021
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, in particular migrant and refugee communities, regardless of documentation.	2014 – 2021
	Publish information on activities taken under all social programs that address child labor.	2018 – 2021
	Expand social programs to reach a greater number of children who perform dangerous tasks in agriculture; initiate social programs to address child commercial sexual exploitation, child labor in mining, child labor in logging, and child domestic work.	2009 – 2021

In 2021, the Philippines made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government launched an online hotline for reporting cases of online sexual exploitation of children and opened its first Cyber-Trafficking in Persons Monitoring Center in response to the substantial increase of online commercial sexual exploitation since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic. The government also launched the Child Protect Mobile app, which raises awareness about violence against children, including child labor, and provides information on public and private organizations that provide intervention services. In addition, the government committed $800,000 to implement its anti-trafficking program and increased funding for its Inter-Agency Council Against Trafficking by $200,000, which was applied toward surveillance, rescue operations, and victim assistance efforts. Although the government made meaningful efforts during the reporting period, it did not adequately protect children allegedly engaged in drug trafficking from inappropriate incarceration or physical harm during detention. Children in the Philippines are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in armed conflict. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and gold mining. Moreover, the enforcement of child labor laws remained challenging throughout the country, especially due to the low number of labor inspectors and the lack of a mechanism to assess civil penalties for child labor violations.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in the Philippines are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in armed conflict. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and gold mining. (1,2) The Survey on Children indicated that 2.1 million children ages 5 to 17 engage in child labor, of whom approximately 2 million engage in hazardous work. (3-5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in the Philippines.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	2.0 (466,708)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	95.5
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	2.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		105.8

Children from rural communities, primarily girls, are subjected to trafficking domestically in urban centers and tourist destinations for the purposes of domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation. (2,24,28) While evidence indicates that the availability of child sex trafficking victims in commercial establishments declined in some urban areas, child sex trafficking remains a pervasive problem, typically abetted by taxi drivers who have knowledge of clandestine locations. (28) Traffickers also lure children from remote areas in Mindanao and other regions by using tourist visas available in Middle Eastern countries, where many Filipinos work in household service jobs, and then sell the children to employment sponsors who exploit them. (24,28-30) Traffickers are able to circumvent the Government of the Philippines and destination countries’ regulatory frameworks for foreign workers and evade detection by using student and intern exchange programs and fake childcare positions. In addition, traffickers take advantage of porous maritime borders to avoid detection. (28)

Research indicates that the Philippines remains one of the top global Internet sources of online sexual exploitation of children (OSEC), which continues to be a highly profitable and growing sector due to increased access to Internet connectivity. There were 2.8 million reports of OSEC in 2021, compared with 1.3 million reports received in 2020. (2) Although most of the cases were not actionable due to multiple submissions or erroneous reporting, 268 OSEC investigations were launched in 2021, compared with 73 cases in 2020. (2) In cases of OSEC, children are induced to perform sex acts at the direction of paying foreigners and local Filipinos for live Internet broadcasts that usually take place in small Internet cafes, private homes, or windowless dungeon-like buildings commonly known as “cybersex dens.” (1,18,22,24,28,31-33) Increasingly, women have been found to be perpetuating OSEC crimes, motivated mostly by financial incentives, with data indicating that upwards of 87 percent of OSEC cases involve a female trafficker known to the victims, most commonly the mother. (24,31,34) In October 2021, for instance, Philippine police arrested a 39-year-old woman and rescued two minors from an operation of online sexual exploitation. (35)

A report released in 2020 concluded that the Philippines had become a global hub for OSEC due to high international and domestic demand, vulnerabilities in the financial system, and gaps in existing legislation. (24,36)

Recruitment of child soldiers by non-government militias and terrorist organizations, predominately on the southern island of Mindanao, remains a concern. (1,4,8,22,25,26,28,33,37) Research also shows that these non-state armed groups, including the New People’s Army, the Abu Sayyaf Group, and the Bangsamoro Islamic

Freedom Fighters, continue to recruit children—sometimes by force—from schools for use in combat and non-combat roles, including as human shields, cooks, and fighters, while offering religious education and material incentives to join. (1,8,18,22,24,28,33,37) In addition, the Islamic State reportedly subjects women and girls to sexual slavery. (28) In 2021, 10 children were recruited or used in armed conflict by non-state forces, including the following: New People’s Army, Dawla Islamiyah, and Abu Sayyaf. Some of the child-victims were forced to serve in combat or non-combat roles, like medic, supply officer, or errand-runner. (2) The Government of the Philippines continued to convene formal coordination meetings with the UN on incidents of grave violations against children to facilitate appropriate responses to such situations. (1,22,38)

According to results from a 2020 survey on child labor, children were found working on sugarcane plantations and rice fields in Luzon; as vendors, tricycle drivers, and carwash crew in Cavite; as plastic and paper scrap scavengers in Caloocan City; and as factory workers for slipper production in Laguna. Children from areas impacted by Typhoon Haiyan in Visayas in 2013 were reportedly forced to work as domestic helpers and as “traffic enforcers” to aid in high-construction areas post-typhoon, while children from indigenous communities in Mindanao worked on corn plantations. (4,39) Furthermore, a survey conducted by the Philippine Statistics Authority, in conjunction with the Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE), found that of 1.4 million domestic workers, more than 50,000 were minors, and 4,900 of them were under age 15. It also reported that 95 percent of all child laborers were found to be engaging in conditions of hazardous work. (4,17) The Philippine Statistics Authority included a child labor module in the October 2017 to 2020 rounds of the Labor Force Survey, the results of which were released during the reporting year. (2)

Although the Constitution establishes free, compulsory education through age 18, unofficial school-related fees, such as for school uniforms, are prohibitive for some families. Other barriers to education include substandard infrastructure, which makes traveling and access to schools challenging, especially for children in rural areas, and architectural barriers that pose challenges for children with disabilities. (33) The 2019 Functional Literacy and Mass Media Survey showed a decrease in school-age children not attending school—from 10.6 percent in 2013 to 5.7 percent in 2019. The Philippine Statistics Authority estimates that more than 10 million persons ages 6 to 24 were not attending school in 2019. (2)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The Philippines has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in the Philippines' legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including having the minimum age for work below the compulsory education age.

Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Department Orders 149 and 149A on Guidelines in Assessing and Determining Hazardous Work in the Employment of Persons Below 18 Years of Age; Sections 12-D and 14 of the Special Protection of Children Against Abuse, Exploitation and Discrimination Act (8,42-45)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 4 and 5 of the Expanded Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act; Sections 12-D and 16 of the Special Protection of Children Against Abuse, Exploitation and Discrimination Act (43,46)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 3(a), 4(k), 5, and 10 of the Expanded Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act; Sections 12-D and 16 of the Special Protection of Children Against Abuse, Exploitation, and Discrimination Act (43,46)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Section 11 of the Free Internet Access in Public Places Act; Sections 12-D and 16 of the Special Protection of Children Against Abuse, Exploitation and Discrimination Act; Section 4 of the Anti-Child Pornography Act; Section 4 of the Cybercrime Prevention Act (43,47-49)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Sections 12-D and 16 of the Special Protection of Children Against Abuse, Exploitation and Discrimination Act; Sections 5 and 8 of the Comprehensive Dangerous Drugs Act (43,50)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 12 of the Providing for the Development, Administration, Organization, Training, Maintenance and Utilization of the Citizen Armed Forces of the Philippines, and for Other Purposes Act (51)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes*		Section 14 of the Providing for the Development, Administration, Organization, Training and Maintenance and Utilization of the Citizen Armed Forces of the Philippines, and for Other Purposes Act (51)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Sections 12-D and 16 of the Special Protection of Children Against Abuse, Exploitation, and Discrimination Act (43)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	18‡	Section 4 of the Enhanced Basic Education Act (52)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 2 of the Philippine Constitution (53)

* Country has no conscription (51)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (52)

For a fourth year, the Government of the Philippines reportedly continued reviewing proposed amendments to Republic Act No. 9231 that would: (a) increase the minimum age of employment from age 15 to age 16, (b) devolve the issuance of child work permits to local government units, (c) institute stricter working hours for children, (d) mandate that part of the money legally earned by children be set aside in a trust fund, (e) authorize DOLE to determine the types of non-hazardous agricultural employment or work that children ages 16 to 18 can perform, and (f) design a holistic intervention program for children working in the informal economy. (1,4,8)

During the reporting period, the government proposed amendments to several House and Senate Bills dealing with the worst forms of child labor, but no legislative bill has been filed yet. This includes two bills related to human trafficking: House Bill No. 8295, which is an act to institute policies to eliminate trafficking in persons, especially the trafficking of women and children, and establish institutional mechanisms to protect and support trafficked persons; and Senate Bill No. 2449, which aims to strengthen protection against trafficking in persons and reorganize the Inter-Agency Council Against Trafficking to include additional agencies. There also are two bills related to OSEC: House Bill No. 8760, which aims to strengthen the protection of children from OSEC by providing treatment for victims and penalties for unlawful acts constituting OSEC; and Senate Bill No. 2209, which will provide protection to children from OSEC and set up a National Coordinating Center Against OSEC. Lastly, House Bill No. 10235 would provide uniform night work prohibition by children under age 18. (2,54)

As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (33)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE): Bureau of Working Conditions (BWC) and Bureau of Workers with Special Concerns (BWSC)	Manages the labor inspection program that oversees inspections conducted by DOLE regional offices nationwide, including enforcement of child labor laws. BWC also oversees training of labor inspectors, manages the DOLE Labor Inspection Management Information System, and responds to queries and complaints on labor standards and working conditions, including complaints on child labor, received through the DOLE 1349 hotline. (2,55) Inspects establishments and monitors compliance with labor laws in the formal sector. (56) BWSC oversees the Profiling Child Laborers Initiative. (1,57) Mandated to develop policies, programs, and systems that champion the development and protection of disadvantaged workers by contributing to their decent and productive employment. Provides advisory and technical assistance to the Labor Secretary and regional offices. (58) During the reporting year, along with the World Vision Executive Director, signed a MOU that seeks to strengthen regulations and policies on the worst forms of child labor, specifically online sexual exploitation of children (OSEC) and hazardous working conditions. (59) In addition, reactivated the Isabela City Anti-Child Labor Council in honor of the 2021 World Day Against Child Labor. (60)
Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD)	Provides services for child-victims and survivors of the worst forms of child labor: (2) In December 2021, in partnership with the Department of the Interior and Local Government, signed a Joint Memorandum to enhance the 911 hotline, making it more accessible and more inclusive for victim-survivors of violence against women and children. (2) In November 2021, through its Strategic Helpdesk for Information Education Livelihood and Other Developmental Interventions program, provided educational assistance to 6 municipalities in Antique province aimed at addressing child labor issues, in which each of the 100 beneficiaries received $565 (3,000 Philippine pesos) for school supplies and other needs. (2)
Rescue the Child Laborers Quick Action Teams ( Sagip Batang Manggagawa )	Detects, monitors, and rescues child laborers in hazardous, exploitative, or extremely abject working conditions. (2,8,27,61,62) An inter-agency, quick reaction mechanism that is chaired by DOLE-BWSC. (2,4)
Criminal Law Enforcement Agencies: Philippine National Police (PNP), National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) and the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA)	PNP investigates and prosecutes cases related to the worst forms of child labor. (2,4) PNP's Women and Children's Protection Center (WCPC) enforces laws on child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children, and has 269 personnel nationwide. (24) NBI investigates and prosecutes child labor cases and operates a national Task Force on the Protection of Women Against Exploitation and Abuse and a Task Force on the Protection of Children from Exploitation and Abuse. (8,24) Oversees the Anti-Human Trafficking Division, which investigates trafficking and illegal recruitment nationwide. (22) PDEA enforces the Comprehensive Dangerous Drugs Act, maintains a national hotline for reporting cases of children used in illicit activities, and coordinates with the DSWD to assist during rescue operations. (8,4)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Organization/Agency	Role
Cybersecurity Law Enforcement Agencies: National Telecommunications Commission, Dept. of Justice–Office of Cybercrime, Philippines Internet Crimes Against Children Center (PICACC), Dept. of Information and Communication Technology–Cybersecurity Bureau	National Telecommunications Commission enforces the Anti-Child Pornography Law. Coordinates with internet service providers to block websites containing pornographic material involving children. (47,63) Department of Justice–Office of Cybercrime receives CyberTips reports from the U.S.-based National Center for Missing and Exploited Children regarding potential OSEC cases, conducts initial investigation into CyberTips, prioritizes cases, then sends cases to PNP's Internet Crime Against Children Center for follow up. (64) Comprises legal and investigative divisions. (64) PICACC aims to combat the online sexual exploitation of children. Comprises the PNP-WCPC Anti-Human Trafficking Division and NBI Anti-Human Trafficking Division and aims to coordinate WCPC and NBI investigation of Internet crimes against children. (24,38,65) Coordinates international investigations with the United Kingdom's National Crimes Agency (UK NCA) and the Australian Federal Police (AFP). (21,22,65-67) Receives funding from the UK NCA, AFP, and the U.S. Government. (54,68) In 2021, completed 58 successful OSEC operations. (54) Department of Information and Communication Technology–Cybersecurity Bureau provides preventative technological assistance to law enforcement and protects cybersecurity of Filipino citizens. (69) Oversees an anti-OSEC program comprising awareness-raising programs, computer software, website monitoring, cybersecurity, and a visible Internet application, a form of artificial intelligence that allows for remote screen access. Shows an educational anti-OSEC video for communities, in collaboration with the Philippines Online Corporation. (69) Coordinates efforts with the Inter-Agency Council Against Child Pornography and consults with telecommunications companies and civil society organizations to produce the National Cybersecurity Strategy. (49,69,70) Oversees CyberSafePH, an awareness campaign and capacity-building program with a 3-year roadmap aimed at combating OSEC and cyberbullying. (22,28,71) In February 2021, in partnership with ECPAT Philippines, launched an online hotline to report OSEC cases. (72)

From January to September 2021, DOLE identified 152,084 child laborers: 121,506 were referred to other agencies for the provision of necessary services, 7,784 were provided with necessary services by DOLE, and 21,935 were removed from child labor. (2)

A lack of resources, including staff and a centralized database for tracking illegal recruitment and human trafficking, is an area of concern within law enforcement agencies because it impedes their ability to act quickly on complaints of child labor, including OSEC, in both investigations and prosecutions. (22,28)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in the Philippines took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of DOLE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

From January to September 2021, DOLE's inter-agency quick action team that detects, monitors, and rescues child laborers led 10 rescue operations and removed 18 children from child labor. Since its inception in 1993 until October 2021, the DOLE quick action team has rescued 3,639 child laborers. (2)

During the reporting year, DOLE hired 500 additional contractors to assist in the inspection of priority establishments, including workplaces that performed hazardous work and employed children. (2,73) DOLE has requested that these contractor positions be converted to regular inspection positions. DOLE Bureau of Working Conditions (BWC) noted that in 2021 it was unable to inspect all workplaces due to inadequate staffing. (2) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of the Philippines' workforce, which includes approximately 42 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, the Philippines would employ about 2,852 labor inspectors. (8,74,75)

An additional $3.6 million was allocated to the BWC regional offices for administrative expenses, including for labor inspector travel and transportation costs, trainings, information system enhancement, personal protective equipment, and cellular data plan subscriptions. However, this funding does not include a budget for the salaries of the labor inspectors working outside the National Capital Region. (2) Despite these allocations, enforcement of child labor laws remained challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections and the limited number of inspectors, especially in rural areas where many vendors are unregistered and highly mobile. (1,8,13,27) The BWC also acknowledged that more specialized training on child labor is needed to enhance labor inspectors' ability to readily identify and act on child labor situations. (1,4)

From January to November 2021, DOLE-BWC inspected 58,363 establishments, which is an uptick from the decline in 2020. All inspections and assessments were conducted in the presence of the employer and employee representatives. (2) Scheduling routine inspections is based on the national target set by the DOLE Central Office. Regional offices implement inspections based on factors such as prevailing industries and geographical areas. (1,2,57) Despite this, enforcement of child labor protections is not sufficient for children employed in the informal sector and in small and medium-sized enterprises, particularly in agriculture and fishing, due to DOLE's lack of capacity and resources. (1,4,8,24,33,76) The Rescue the Child Laborers Quick Action Teams are permitted to conduct unannounced compliance visits to video karaoke bars, massage parlors, saunas and bathhouses, and farms, but they are not authorized to conduct visits to private homes to search for underage child domestic workers. However, there are mechanisms available to barangay (village level) officials to permit them to investigate domestic work-related complaints. (1,4,8)

The government did not provide information on its labor law enforcement efforts related to the number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed or collected.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in the Philippines took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Philippine National Police (PNP) that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including ineffective or slow court proceedings.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

During the reporting period, the government continued its anti-drug campaign, which began in 2016, and did not adequately protect children allegedly engaged in drug trafficking from inappropriate incarceration or physical harm. (4,77,78) The Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) continuously monitored children involved in drug trafficking. From January to October, PDEA indicated that it rescued 522 minors ages 4 to 17 during anti-drug operations nationwide and identified 2,377 children between ages 9 and 17 as drug pushers, 963 as possessors, 434 as users, 229 as drug den visitors, 16 as drug den employees, 9 as drug den maintainers, 2 as cultivators, 1 as a clan lab employee, and 2 as runners. (2) PNP reported its referral of these children to the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD), after which they were placed in either juvenile detention centers or Houses of Hope, which, in practice, closely resemble detention centers. (8, 33,79)

Children also continued to be victims of extrajudicial killings during operations carried out as part of the anti-drug campaign. (2) There were reports of collateral deaths of children caught in the crossfire during police operations connected to the drug war, with some high-level government officials suggesting that killing suspected drug traffickers and users was necessary to wipe out drug-related crime, increasing the vulnerability of children being used in the drug trade. (1,80-81) According to a children's rights NGO, 18 children were victims of extrajudicial killings during law enforcement operations between January and June 2021. (2) While there appears to be no prosecutions or convictions of law enforcement officials accused of extrajudicial killings of children, the government reported that it began investigating killings during police operations during the reporting period. In October 2021, the DOJ indicated that it would review more than 6,000 killings during police operations that were part of the drug war. (82) This decision indicates a shift from the Philippines government's defense of the drug war, which comes after the United Nations and International Criminal Court put pressure on the government to investigate practices used during the drug war. The government released details of 52 deaths related to drug war. (82) However, no cases have been filed by the Philippine DOJ against erring policemen. (82)

Philippine law allows judges to award civil compensation to human trafficking victims from damages arising from being trafficked, but victims rarely receive this restitution since perpetrators often lack sufficient assets to pay. However, in cases for which perpetrators are financially able to pay this penalty, many are able to evade doing so due to ineffective, slow court procedures. (24)

Research indicates the need for more law enforcement personnel, funds for operations, and equipment for forensic analysis of digital evidence due to the high volume of cybercrime tips related to child sexual exploitation received by the Office of Cybercrime each month. (28,33) Slow-moving courts, the need for additional training on handling digital evidence, a lack of understanding regarding the legal framework, and too few prosecutors also hindered the effective and timely prosecution of human trafficking crimes. (18,24,28,30)

Moreover, prosecutors and law enforcement received training on OSEC in a 3.5-day training session that taught them how to effectively conduct cases and build investigations on rescue and entrapment operations of cases involving OSEC. The International Justice Mission, with the assistance of Interagency Council Against Trafficking (IACAT), also provided OSEC training through live webinars to 61 prosecutors and law enforcement professionals, which included topics like OSEC fundamental concepts and maximizing digital evidence in OSEC prosecution. (2,54)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Council Against Child Labor (NCACL)	Formerly the National Child Labor Committee and reorganized after the signing of Executive Order No. 92 in 2019. Chaired by DOLE and co-chaired by DSWD. (2,4,22,24,83-86) Expanded membership includes 19 government agencies and organizations. (2,84) Coordinates national efforts to combat child labor and implements the Philippine Program Against Child Labor. (8,62,86,87) Promotes information sharing at the national, regional, and provincial levels, and is tasked with establishing and disseminating a child labor reporting mechanism for use by local and national authorities. (1,22) During the reporting year, held four regular meetings, approved five new sectoral representatives of the council, and discussed the proposed action pledge as part of the 2021 International Year for the Elimination of Child Labor. (2)
Anti-Trafficking: Inter-Agency Council Against Trafficking (IACAT)	IACAT coordinates, monitors, and oversees efforts to combat human trafficking, including child trafficking. Chaired by the DOJ, co-chaired by DSWD, and composed of 11 government agencies and 3 NGOs, IACAT comprises 24 anti-human trafficking task forces, including 2 national task forces, 16 regional task forces, and 6 inter-agency task forces in major seaports and airports. (2,22,24,88) During the reporting period, IACAT received a budget of $1,710,300, which was an increase of $312,600, with a total allotted budget of $1,397,800. DOJ added 24 new prosecutors in 2021. (2) IACAT also increased the number of its staff from 142 to 179. Additional staff were mostly assigned to the IACAT Tahanan ng Iyong Pag-asa Center, NBI-Anti-Human Trafficking Division (NBI-AHTRAD), NBI-International Airport Investigative Division, and Victim Witness Coordinator. (2) IACAT also oversees the 1343 Actionline emergency hotline for trafficking-in-persons victims. (2,88) The PNP-WCPC created the Aleng Pulis helpline, which receives direct messages from individuals on a wide range of trafficking in persons topics. (2) In 2021, IACAT and its regional anti-trafficking task forces organized or assisted with 85 training or capacity-building activities, attended by 5,242 persons. A total of $200,000 was allotted to the IACAT Secretariat's Confidential Fund in 2021, which provides resources for surveillance and rescue operations and victim assistance. (2)
Inter-Agency Council Against Child Pornography	Serves as the primary government coordinating mechanism to address issues related to child pornography. (2) Monitors and implements the Anti-Child Pornography Act (Republic Act No. 9775). (1) Comprises 12 government agencies and 3 NGOs. (87) Chaired by DSWD. (89) During the reporting year, in partnership with UNICEF Philippines, conducted two studies to enhance evidence on OSEC: (1) National Study on Online Sexual Abuse and Exploitation of Children in the Philippines, and (2) Philippine Kids Online Survey. (89)
Children Involved in Conflict: Inter-Agency Council for the Welfare of Children (CWC) and the Inter-Agency Committee on Children in Situations of Armed Conflict (IAC-CSAC)	CWC initiates, promotes, and advocates policies and measures protecting children's rights. (1,24) Operates and maintains the Protocol on Monitoring, Reporting, and Response System for reporting incidents of children in armed conflict, including monitoring the six grave child rights violations. (22,24,90) IAC-CSAC advocates protecting children and preventing the involvement of children in armed conflict. Chaired by the CWC. (18,22,24) Coordinates and monitors the implementation of the Children in Armed Conflict Program Framework. (38,91) Convenes quarterly. Ensures that international instruments, including the Optional Protocol on the Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict, are referenced in discussions. (91) Formulates guidelines and develops programs in coordination with concerned agencies for the handling of children involved in armed conflict, and monitors or documents cases of capture, surrender, arrest, rescue, or recovery by government forces. Works closely with applicable agencies in coordinating and monitoring the implementation of the enhanced CSAC program framework. (18,91) Conducts human rights training, advocacy and information campaigns, and capacity building of local government units. Implements a monitoring, reporting, and response system for grave child rights' violations in situations of armed conflict. (91) In October 2021, launched the Child Protect Mobile App, which provides the public information on violence against children, including information on relevant public and private organizations that provide intervention services. (2)
Juvenile Justice and Welfare Council	Leads community outreach and education efforts, through offices located throughout the country, to prevent the use of children in illicit activities, including in drug trafficking. Manages livelihood, rehabilitation, food, and scholarship programming. (79) Overseen by DSWD. (33,92) During the reporting year, held a Tik Tok Challenge aimed to inform youth on child protection laws, such as curfews during quarantine. (93)

IACAT and the National Bureau of Investigation, with the support of the UK National Crime Agency, opened the first Cyber-Trafficking in Persons Monitoring Center (CTIPMC) in the Philippines on July 22, 2021 to address OSEC. CTIPMC has 10 staff and aims to generate cases and police cyberspace to prevent it from being used as a medium for committing human trafficking. (2,54)

Moreover, the government also establish the Task Force Against the Trafficking of Overseas Filipino Workers to track trafficking cases referred by the Department of Foreign Affairs overseas missions. The Overseas Filipino Workers (OFW) Task Force is currently developing an Operational Handbook that will provide an effective and efficient referral mechanism for cases involving OFWs. (2,28,71) The final draft of the "Guidelines on the Investigation, Reporting, and Monitoring of Trafficking in Persons Cases Facilitated by Corruption" is now pending review with DOJ to ensure a zero-tolerance policy on trafficking-related malfeasance in government. The Manual of Operations for IACAT's Tahanan Nang Inyong Pag-Asa (TIP) Center is also being finalized, and contains all essential information on the management of victim-survivors and the entire operation of the center. (2) IACAT and International Justice Mission are co-developing a comprehensive, harmonized, and unduplicated data collection system and analysis of trafficking in persons across agencies. The initial draft of the Department Circular on the Guidelines on the Implementation of Anti-Trafficking in Persons and Modern Slavery Policy in the Department Procurement Process was presented to the DOJ-Bids and Awards Committee for comments and finalization. (2)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Philippine Program Against Child Labor Strategic Framework (2020–2022)	Aims to gradually reduce child labor through consultations with government institutions, local and international NGOs, civil society organizations, faith-based groups, professional associations, academia, the private sector, parents, and children. (4,8,94) Implementation led by DOLE's BWSC. (95,96) During the reporting period, held 35 meetings to implement the plan and endorsed 5 representatives for NCACL to the Office of the President for appointment. Also developed and approved a Communication Plan (2021–2022), which aims to increase awareness of and generate support for the campaign against child labor and the protection of rights and welfare of children, and the Strategic Plan (2020–2022), which aims to monitor the progress of this program. (2)
Anti-Trafficking Policies: National Strategic Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons (2017–2021) and the Child Protection Compact Partnership (CPC) (2017–2021)	The National Strategic Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons (Third StratPlan) aimed to address labor trafficking and sex trafficking, including OSEC. (97) Chaired by the Secretary of the DOJ and co-chaired by the Secretary of the DSWD. Employs a multi-stakeholder approach to fight human trafficking. (98) Mandated to prevent and suppress human trafficking, and ensure victim recovery, rehabilitation, and reintegration into society through four key result areas: (1) Prevention and Advocacy; (2) Protection, Recovery, Rehabilitation, and Reintegration; (3) Prosecution and Law Enforcement; and (4) Partnership and Networking. (98) In 2021, focused on two priorities: (1) developing a Task Force Manual and (2) creating a comprehensive advocacy and communication plan. (2) CPC, a plan jointly developed with USDOS, sought to increase prevention efforts and protections for child victims of OSEC and labor trafficking, while holding perpetrators accountable. (18,31,88,99) Aimed to improve the response to child trafficking, including the live-streaming of child sexual exploitation and child trafficking for labor purposes, by increasing criminal investigations, prosecutions, and convictions; strengthening the capacity of the government and civil society to identify and provide comprehensive services for victims; and strengthening existing community-based mechanisms that identify and protect victims of child trafficking. (88,100,101) The government committed approximately $800,000 for its implementation. (99) During the reporting year, in collaboration with the World Vision Development Foundation, trained 3,699 government stakeholders on how to prevent and respond to OSEC and child labor trafficking. (54) Program concluded in April 2021. (2)
Philippine Development Plan (2017–2022)	Aims to build the socioeconomic resilience of individuals and families by reducing their vulnerability to various risks and disasters; this includes the goal of universal social protection for all Filipinos. (5,102) During the reporting year, updated its strategy to focus on building a healthy and resilient Philippines after the pandemic, including setting a target goal of zero child laborers. (2,4,87)
National Plans: National Strategic Framework for Plan Development for Children (Child 21) (2000–2025), 3rd National Plan of Action for Children (2017–2022), and the Philippine National Multi-Sectoral Strategic Plan on Children in Street Situations	Child 21 sets out broad goals for national government agencies, local governments, and NGOs to achieve improved quality of life for Filipino children by 2025. (103) Chaired by the Council for the Welfare of Children. (8) Third National Plan of Action for Children (NPAC) strengthens strategies, policies, and programs for children to achieve Child 21's vision for Filipino children by 2025. (8,38,103,104) The Philippine National Multi-Sectoral Strategic Plan on Children in Street Situations, established in 2020, addresses the needs and concerns of street children using a child rights approach, and strengthens multi-sectoral cooperation among stakeholders. (4) The evaluability study of Child 21 is scheduled to be conducted from August to December 2022. The study aims to determine the extent to which it can be evaluated in a credible and reliable manner prior to its termination. (73)
Philippine Plan of Action to End Violence Against Children (2017–2022)	Multi-sectoral plan to gradually reduce violence against children through consultations with government institutions, local and international NGOs, civil society organizations, faith-based groups, professional associations, academia, the private sector, and parents and children. Consistent with the visions of Child 21 and the National Plan of Action for Children. (1,105) During the reporting year, implemented the plan in local areas for pilot-testing. (73)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (45,106,107)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the provision of adequate services for victims of child pornography.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Anti-Child Labor Programs: Child Labor Prevention and Elimination Program,† Livelihood for Parents of Child Laborers (Kabuhayan para sa Magulang ng Batang Manggagawa),‡ and Pantawid Pamilyang Pilipino Program (Conditional Cash Transfer Program)	Child Labor Prevention and Elimination Program is a DOLE anti-child labor program that implements local awareness-raising campaigns, institutes child labor-monitoring mechanisms, and requires neighborhoods to develop child labor elimination plans. (8) Includes a provision of livelihood assistance to parents of child laborers, Sagip Batang Manggagawa, and Project Angel Tree. (8,88) Project Angel Tree is a social service with local government agency benefactors, known as "angels," who provide educational supplies to communities. (57,108) From January to September 2021, conducted 92 gift-giving activities benefitting 7,321 child laborers and children at-risk wherein school supplies, food packs, toiletries, and other items were donated by civic organizations and private institutions that acted as "angels" of the projects. (2,72) Livelihood for Parents of Child Laborers is a DOLE program that provides livelihood assistance to parents, guardians, or other family members of child laborers. Seeks to prevent and eliminate child labor by providing necessary materials to start a livelihood undertaking. (2) From January–September 2021, provided livelihood assistance to 3,771 parents of child laborers, in the form of Negokart (business carts), starter kits, and other materials needed to start a livelihood. (2,72) Remained active during the reporting year. (72) Conditional Cash Transfer Program is a DSWD national poverty reduction program that provides conditional grants, local awareness-raising campaigns, and child labor-monitoring mechanisms to assist poor families with children's access to health care, adequate nutrition, and education. (1,8,24,109) Includes a child labor module within the sessions on family development for program participants. (8,27,110) Covers 1,627 cities and municipalities in 79 provinces in all 17 regions. (1,8)
Strategic Helpdesks for Information, Education, Livelihood and Other Developmental Interventions for Child Laborers†	DSWD-led project implemented in 14 barangays in Catanaun, Labo, Jose Panganiban, Paracale, Kananga, and Ormoc City, with support from the ILO CARING Gold Mining Project. (55,57) Comprises three components: Child Labor Local Registry; Helpdesk and Convergence of Services; and Advocacy, Organizing, and Capacity Building. (8,110) Focuses on areas with a high child labor incidence rate, with interventions based on data from the Child Labor Local Registry. (110) Focused particularly on eliminating the worst forms of child labor in the small-scale gold mining, deep sea fishing, and sugarcane industries. (1,8,62,111) Nationwide implementation began in July 2021. (72)
Anti-Trafficking Programs: Recovery and Reintegration Program for Trafficked Persons (RRTP)† and Strengthening Local Systems and Partnerships for More Effective and Sustainable Counter-Trafficking in Persons in the Philippines (Strength CTIP), 2019–2022	RRTP is a DSWD and IACAT program that provides recovery and reintegration services to victims of human trafficking and raises awareness in vulnerable communities. Includes the National Referral System, which strengthens coordination among agencies providing services to human trafficking victims using standard referral and reporting forms. (24) There are 149 referral networks established in 16 regions. (27) Strength CTIP works in partnership with the Advocate for the Protection and Prevention of Abuse and Exploitation of Children Consortium. Initiates and sustains countertrafficking in persons activities in selected project sites in Iloilo City, Dumaguete City, and Cebu Province. (1) Designed to accommodate the needs of victims of human trafficking, specifically children subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. (1)
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects in the Philippines that aim to eliminate child labor in its worst forms by improving the capacity of the national government, implementing the National Action Plan Against Child Labor, conducting research and data collection, developing strategic policies, drafting legislation, and supporting social services delivery for child domestic workers. Include: Against Child Exploitation (ACE) Project (2019-2023), a $5 million project implemented by World Vision; BuildCA2P: Building Capacity, Awareness, Advocacy and Programs Project (2018-2023), a $2.9 million project implemented by ChildFund International; SAFE Seas, implemented by Plan International USA; RICHES, implemented by the Grameen Foundation with the Philippines; Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAP16) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor, implemented by ILO; and CARING Gold Mining Project, implemented by ILO and concluded in 2021. (113-118) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (120,121)

Although some specialized resources exist to assist victims of human trafficking, the Philippines lacked sufficient programs to care for and rehabilitate children who have been victims of OSEC. (27) In addition, there are not adequate programs to provide insight on the impact of OSEC on child victims. (38,122,123)

DSWD works in consultation with parents and community leaders to determine how best to assist children suspected of being involved in the drug trade; however, DSWD does not have programs specifically designed to increase protections for or assistance to children engaged in drug trafficking. DSWD also lacks programming to address the heightened vulnerability of children impacted by the death of familial breadwinners in the drug war. (8,124)

PDEA continued to coordinate with DSWD when dealing with children allegedly involved in drug trafficking. From July 2016 to October 2021, Philippine law enforcement arrested 4,033 minors. (2) Upon the PDEA turning over arrested children and within 8 hours of the conclusion of their court proceedings, DSWD transferred the children to either juvenile detention centers or "Houses of Hope" (Bahay ng Pag-asa) rehabilitation and skills training centers for children in trouble with the law. (2,4,125) Local government units or NGOs operate more than 70 Houses of Hope throughout the country, with little oversight from the federal government. Although there is an accreditation process for these facilities administered by the federal Juvenile Justice and Welfare Council, only a small number of Houses of Hope have met the qualifications, allowing for continued corruption, maltreatment of residents, and failure to provide quality rehabilitative services. Reports in past years showed that many Houses of Hope operated as youth detention centers where children were subjected to physical and emotional abuse, deprived of liberty, and forced into overcrowded and unhygienic cells. (33,55,78,125-126) In two facilities, for example, there were complaints of limited access to water, insufficient amounts of food, and expired food, including a report that unused sacks of rice were infested with weevils. (55,127,128) Research, however, was unable to show whether these issues continued during the reporting year. In 2021, the Juvenile Justice and Welfare Council undertook the following actions to ensure these detention centers were compliant with safety standards: conducted regular monitoring by visiting Houses of Hope; mandated registration of children in a centralized data-base system that determines program planning and policies; and began designing a Standards and Manual of Operations Guidebook to ensure detained children are provided with comprehensive programs, services, and interventions in a safe environment, which is expected to be completed by 2022. ## VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in the Philippines (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2021
Enforcement	Increase funding to allow for the hiring of more law enforcement personnel, including police and prosecutors, training for forensic analysis of digital online sexual exploitation of children evidence, and create a centralized database to allow for quicker action on cases involving the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2021
	Establish a mechanism to assess civil penalties for child labor violations.	2015 – 2021
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice; ensure the budget for the Department of Labor and Employment, Bureau of Worker Concerns includes an allocation for the salaries of labor inspectors located outside of the National Capital Region; and increase resources available to provide sufficient coverage of the workforce, particularly in the informal sector and in rural areas where child labor is prevalent.	2014 – 2021
	Develop and provide specialized training for labor inspectors on identification of child labor.	2019 – 2021
	Allow Rescue the Child Laborers Quick Action Teams to conduct unannounced compliance visits to private homes.	2018 – 2021
	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts, including the number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed and collected.	2015 – 2021
	Enhance efforts to prevent the inappropriate incarceration of, and violence against, children suspected to be engaged in the production and trafficking of drugs and those caught in crossfire during anti-drug operations.	2017 – 2021
	Prosecute law enforcement officials and civilians responsible for the killing of children engaged in the drug trade and officials who are complicit in trafficking or allow traffickers to operate without impunity.	2017 – 2021

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that youth rehabilitation centers, including Houses of Hope (Bahay ng Pag-asa), are accredited and in compliance with standards set by the Department of Social Welfare and Development and Juvenile Justice and Welfare Council.	2020 – 2021
	Offer criminal law enforcement officials training on laws related to the worst forms of child labor, including the proper handling of digital evidence in criminal trials.	2020 – 2021
	Prosecute trafficking crimes in a timely manner and hire more criminal prosecutors to lessen the workload.	2020 – 2021
	Incorporate procedures to allow for efficient restitution to victims of trafficking.	2020 – 2021
Social Programs	Ensure that social programs are fully implemented, including the Strengthening Local Systems and Partnerships for More Effective and Sustainable Counter-Trafficking in Persons in the Philippines.	2020 – 2021
	Institute a program to address and combat the sexual abuse and exploitation of children in the production of child pornography, including live streaming.	2017 – 2021
	Provide specialized care and rehabilitative services for children who have been victimized through sexual abuse and exploitation through live streaming and in the production of child pornography by their families.	2017 – 2021
	Develop programs to increase protections for and provide assistance to children engaged in drug trafficking and children impacted by the death of a familial breadwinner to address their heightened vulnerability.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that Houses of Hope (Bahay ng Pag-asa) child detention centers in the Philippines do not subject children to physical or emotional abuse, that those who commit such crimes are held accountable, and that centers are provided with adequate resources to remedy overcrowding and unhygienic conditions.	2017 – 2021
	Increase access to free, compulsory education by eliminating unofficial school-related fees and addressing issues related to inadequate school infrastructure, including architectural barriers.	2020 – 2021

In 2021, Rwanda made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Rwanda finalized a new national action plan to combat human trafficking and launched a new hotline for the public to report child abuse, including child labor. Furthermore, the Isange One Stop Centers that provide services to human trafficking victims inaugurated the first child-safe space to provide care to child victims of trafficking. However, children in Rwanda are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining, including carrying heavy loads. Reports indicate that government officials have detained children subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and forced street begging in transit centers intended for individuals demonstrating so-called deviant behaviors, in which children often experience physical abuse. The number of labor inspectors does not meet the International Labor Organization's technical advice for the size of Rwanda's workforce. Finally, social programs do not address all relevant sectors in which child labor is present.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Rwanda are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining, including carrying heavy loads. (I-3) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Rwanda.

Table I. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	6 to 14	5.4 (156,522)
Attending School (%)	6 to 14	89.4
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	4.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		97.4

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Forestry activities (5)
	Production of sugarcane, rice, bananas, beans, coffee, manioc, pineapples, and potatoes, including carrying heavy loads† and wielding machetes (6,7)
	Production of tea, including applying fertilizers,† carrying heavy loads,† planting, plucking tea leaves, and weeding (6,8,9)
	Fishing† (10)
	Herding cattle and caring for pigs, sheep, goats, and chickens (6,11)
Industry	Construction,† including laying and making bricks (1,5,6,12)
	Mining† tantalum ore (coltan) and quarrying (1,5,6,13,14)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Industry	Producing charcoal (6)
Services	Domestic work† (5,6,12,15,16)
	Repair and cleaning of motorcycles and motor vehicles (5,17)
	Street work, including collecting scrap metal,† carrying heavy loads as porters,† begging, and small-scale vending (6,17-19)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (16,17,20)
	Forced labor in agricultural work, mining, domestic work, and begging (11,12,15,21)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Rwanda is a source and transit country for child trafficking victims, primarily those from Rwanda and neighboring countries trafficked to Saudi Arabia, Uganda, Kenya, and elsewhere in East Africa, the Middle East, and East Asia. (11,20,22,23) Within Rwanda, young girls are forced into domestic servitude and commercial sexual exploitation, and boys are exploited in forced labor in the agricultural and industrial sectors, including on plantations and in mines. (16,22-25) Children between ages 13 and 18 are often trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation in hotels, at times with the cooperation of hotel owners. Reports indicate an increase in domestic human trafficking, possibly due to the COVID-19 pandemic and restrictions on cross-border travel. (20) Homeless and orphaned children, children with disabilities, and girls are at particular risk of being trafficked. (20)

The government identified street begging as a growing problem in the country, noting that some families were renting out their children to individuals who would collect earnings from the children and pay a percentage to the families. (9,11,20) The closure of schools due to the pandemic may have contributed to an increase in forced begging, and children who begged typically worked almost 11 hours per day and were at risk of not returning to school. (9,20)

National data show that approximately 3.6 percent of all children in Rwanda are engaged in child labor, primarily in the agriculture and services sectors. (10,26) In a survey of working children between ages 5 and 17 from 11 districts in the country, Rwanda's National Commission for Human Rights reported in 2020 that more than half of the respondents indicated that they performed some type of hazardous labor, including carrying heavy loads, working in construction and brick kilns, and mining. (3,9)

Officials have indicated that children in mining often drop out of school and work in abandoned artisanal mines with their parents. (9,27) During the reporting period, police in the Musanze district of Northern Province indicated that hundreds of children had dropped out of school and many had begun working in the sugarcane and brick-making industries. (7) Poverty was identified as the key factor contributing to child labor, which in turn led to an increased incidence of children dropping out of school. (3,9)

Although the Ministry of Education established a policy that provides free basic education for 12 years, of which the first 9 are compulsory, in practice, the costs of uniforms, school supplies, and unofficial school fees may preclude some families from sending their children to school. (25,27,28) Furthermore, children with disabilities face particular difficulties accessing education due to stigma and because schools lack the capacity to accommodate special needs. (9,20,27,29)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Rwanda has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Rwanda's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the difference in the minimum age for work and the compulsory age for education.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 5 of the Labor Law; Article 2, 3, and 7-9 of the Ministerial Instruction Relating to Prevention and Fight Against Child Labor (30,31)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 6 of the Labor Law (30)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 6 of the Labor Law; Articles 4–6 of the Ministerial Order Determining the List of Worst Forms of Child Labor; Kigali City Guidelines 2012-02; Articles 7–9 of the Ministerial Instruction Relating to the Prevention and Fight against Child Labor (30-32)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 3.25 and 7 of the Labor Law; Article 178 of the Penal Code; Article 51 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child; Article 9 of the Ministerial Instruction Relating to Prevention and Fight against Child Labor (30,31,33,34)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 3.4, 3.6, 3.7, and 18–20 of the Law on Prevention, Suppression, and Punishment of Trafficking in Persons; Article 28 of the Law on Prevention and Punishment of Gender-Based Violence; Articles 225, 251, and 259–262 of the Penal Code; Article 51 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child; Article 31 of the Law Relating to the Protection of the Child; Article 9 of the Ministerial Instruction Relating to Prevention and Fight against Child Labor (31,33-37)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 3.2 and 24 of the Law on Prevention, Suppression, and Punishment of Trafficking in Persons; Articles 190, 211, and 260 of the Penal Code; Article 51 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child; Articles 34 and 35 of the Law Relating to the Protection of the Child; Article 9 of the Ministerial Instruction Relating to Prevention and Fight against Child Labor (31,33,34,36,37)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 220 of the Penal Code; Article 51 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child; Article 9 of the Ministerial Instruction Relating to Prevention and Fight against Child Labor; Article 263 of the Law Determining Offenses and Penalties in General (31,33,34,38)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 5 of Presidential Order 72/01 Establishing Army General Statutes; Article 7 of Presidential Order 32/01 Establishing Rwanda Defense Forces Special Statute; Article 50 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child (33,39,40)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Article 5 of Presidential Order 72/01 Establishing Army General Statutes; Articles 99(8) and 100(2) of the Law Determining Offenses and Penalties in General (38,39)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 221 of the Penal Code (34)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Compulsory Education Age	No	12	Article 47 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child; Articles 55–58 of the Law Determining the Organization of Education (33,41)
Free Public Education	No		Article 47 of the Law Relating to the Rights and Protection of the Child; Articles 55–58 of the Law Determining the Organization of Education (33,41)

* Country has no conscription (33,39,40)

The 2020 Law Determining the Organization of Education stipulates that primary education is free and compulsory through the first 6 years of schooling, but the law does not provide for free and compulsory secondary education. (9,41) Although Rwanda has adopted policies separate from the education law to implement fee-free 12 years basic education and compulsory education through age 15, the national education law does not provide for free basic education through the first 9 years of schooling and states that education is compulsory only up to age 12. (26,41,42) The Law Determining the Organization of Education also establishes English as the primary language of instruction, which may create a barrier to education for children whose first language is not English. (41) Furthermore, the age up to which education is compulsory makes children between ages 12 and 16 vulnerable to child labor because they are not legally required to attend school but are not legally permitted to work.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Public Service and Labor (MIFOTRA)	Enforces labor laws, including laws on child labor, in coordination with other government entities at the national and district level. (27) In partnership with the Ministry of Education, reintegrates children withdrawn from child labor with their families and enrolls them in school. Mobilizes other ministries and agencies providing social services, including the Ministry of Gender and Family Promotion, the National Child Development Agency, the Ministry of Justice, and the Ministry of Local Government, to take an active role in child labor law enforcement. (1,9)
Rwandan National Police (RNP)	Through the Child Protection Unit and Anti-Trafficking Unit, enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor and operate a free hotline to report incidents of gender-based violence and child abuse, including child labor. (1,24,29) It is unknown how many calls to the hotline, if any, were related to child labor. (43)
Rwanda Investigation Bureau	Conducts investigations into criminal matters, including child labor. In the case of the Directorate for Anti-Gender-Based Violence, assists victims of the worst forms of child labor through anti-gender-based violence officers at each of the country's 78 police stations. (1)
National Public Prosecution Authority (NPPA)	Prosecutes violations of labor laws, including laws on child labor. (1) Through its Anti-Gender-Based Violence unit, dedicates 12 prosecutors to work with an additional 60 prosecutors trained in handling relevant cases at the district level. (44)
Directorate General of Immigration and Emigration	Receives referrals for human trafficking cases and employs an anti-trafficking specialist. Trains border and immigration officials to identify potential human trafficking victims and to verify that children transported across the border are traveling with the permission of their parents or guardians. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Rwanda took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Public Service and Labor (MIFOTRA) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient allocation of human resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (9)	Yes (27)

Rwanda again significantly increased the number of labor inspections it conducted over the previous year as part of its effort to improve the efficiency of its public servants while using fewer resources. MIFOTRA indicated it has implemented a strategy of targeted planning and increased cooperation with Child Labor Steering Committees at the village level. (27) MIFOTRA also noted that despite budget cuts due to pandemic-related challenges, inspectors were among the few civil servants to receive vehicle and transportation allowances as well as other resources, in what the ministry highlighted as evidence of the prioritization of the labor inspectorate. (27) Of the inspections conducted during the reporting period, 720 specifically targeted child labor, and MIFOTRA reported removing 253 children from child labor situations. Inspectors receive at a minimum quarterly trainings on various labor-related topics, and in 2021 three new inspectors received initial training that included topics on child labor elimination. (27)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Rwanda's workforce, which includes approximately 4 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Rwanda would need to employ about 107 labor inspectors. (48) Despite MIFOTRA's indication that the labor inspectorate was sufficiently funded, research finds that limited resources, lack of personnel, high workloads, and insufficient training may limit labor inspectors' ability to enforce child labor laws and perform onsite inspections. (4,9,20,27) Reports indicate that officials at the local level had difficulty identifying characteristics of child trafficking and child labor. (11,44)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Rwanda took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Rwandan National Police that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including inadequate victim screening and identification.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (9)	Yes (27)

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (9)	Yes (27)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (9)	Yes (27)

The government identified 19 child victims of child trafficking and forced child labor in 2021. (23) In a notable case during the reporting period, the Rwanda Investigation Bureau arrested folk singer Francois Nsengiyumva and charged him with defiling a 13-year-old girl and forcing her to work for him. (27,49) Although the alleged victim herself had reported Nsengiyumva to the authorities, he was released from custody 2 months later by the Nyagatare High Court, which found that the claims against him were baseless. (50,51)

The government has acknowledged detaining thousands of street children in accordance with a 2017 law establishing a National Rehabilitation Service to address “deviant behavior” and the accompanying 2018 Ministerial Order, which defines deviant behavior to include prostitution, begging, and informal street vending. (52,53) Under the purview of these laws, authorities may detain children for exhibiting deviant behavior and place children in a transit center before transferring them to a rehabilitation center or reintegrating them into the community. (20,23,24,27) The government maintains that the purpose of the laws and the transit centers is to rescue children from the street and to provide them with life skills before reuniting them with their families. (54) However, since some types of child labor are included in the 2018 Ministerial Order definition of “deviant behavior,” children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, forced begging, and street vending may be penalized for their engagement in child labor. (23,53) Sources report that children subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and forced street begging have been detained in the transit centers, in part due to inadequate screening by law enforcement officials to identify victims of human trafficking. (20,23,55) Research indicates that children placed in the primary transit center located in Kigali, also known as Gikondo, faced overcrowding, unsanitary conditions, insufficient food or water, and physical abuse. (29,52,56) Rehabilitation services at the centers were limited, and children were detained for prolonged periods at transit centers before they were referred to a rehabilitation facility or released back into the street. (20,57,58)

Despite government efforts to combat trafficking in persons, agencies lack a centralized database to share among law enforcement agencies, hindering coordination efforts. (23)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including lack of implementation.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Interministerial Steering Committee on Child Labor	Coordinates government efforts related to the worst forms of child labor; reviews child labor laws, advocates the inclusion of child labor policies in national development plans, oversees the implementation of child labor interventions, and conducts field visits to assess the prevalence of child labor and raise awareness of child labor. (1) As part of the coordination efforts, MIFOTRA completed its annual Compliance Forum across all provinces and the city of Kigali, and held coordinating meetings with the Ministry of Local Government (MINALOC) every 2 weeks during the reporting period. (27)
Interagency Working Group on Human Trafficking	Enables national-level discussion and coordination of efforts to address human trafficking, including child labor. Includes representatives of the Ministry of Gender and Family Promotion (MIGEPROF), the Ministry of Justice, RNP, and NPPA. (1,9) The working group remained active during the reporting period, though it held fewer meetings than the previous reporting period. (43)
MIGEPROF's National Child Development Agency	Replaced the dissolved National Child Commission and the National Early Childhood Development Program in an effort to centralize the implementation of child's rights protection efforts. Monitors, promotes, and advocates for children's rights, and develops action plans to protect children from abuse and exploitation. (1,9,59,60) During the reporting period, partnered with the Rwanda Governance Board to conduct an early child development survey in 13 districts measuring various indicators of child well-being, such as child protection, to inform policy interventions. (61) Also hosted its annual National Children's Summit in 2021 to discuss issues such as school service, family violence, and sexual exploitation of children. (27)

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Child Labor Steering Committees	Monitor incidents of child labor nationwide and implement policies developed by the Interministerial Steering Committee on Child Labor in 30 districts by coordinating with district-level officials in enforcing labor laws and providing social services to child labor victims. (1) In the case of Gender-Based Violence Committees, operate at the district level to raise awareness about gender-based violence and coordinate social services to assist gender-based violence victims. In the case of Child Protection Committees, identify and report cases of child rights violations at the district, sector, and cell levels. (1,16) Since their establishment in 2018, research has since been unable to identify any meaningful activities or efforts from these committees, particularly at the sector and cell levels. (43,46)

Reports indicate that poor coordination, training, and resource constraints hindered efforts to combat human trafficking and that efforts were focused primarily on transnational rather than domestic human trafficking. (20,44)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Strategic Plan for the Integrated Child Rights Policy 2019–2024	Aims to improve coordination and implementation issues in child protection, including strategies to address child labor. Focuses on key areas of identity and nationality; family and alternative care; health, survival, and standard of living; education; protection; justice; and participation. (62) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
Anti-Human Trafficking Action Plan†	Finalized in 2021 based on analysis of the 2019 anti-human trafficking national action plan, focuses efforts on trafficking prevention, victim protection and assistance, prosecution, and strategic partnerships with various stakeholders. (23,65)
Rwanda Urban Development Project Labor Management Procedure	Lays out specific responsibilities for MINALOC to monitor and enforce child labor laws at the local level. Mandates that appointed local authorities conduct inspections, enforce child labor laws for rural development projects, and field child labor complaints from Grievance Redress Committees established at local worksites. (9,66) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (63,64)

Rwanda adopted a new National Social Protection Policy in 2020 that aims to assist families living in poverty and includes measures to ensure access to education for children and to provide livelihood development. Although the plan acknowledges that poverty is a root cause of child labor, the prevention and elimination of child labor are not integrated into the policy. (67)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequate efforts to address child labor in all sectors.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Programs to Combat Child Labor and Raise Awareness†	Include MIGEPROF's campaign to teach parents and community leaders to recognize risk factors for human trafficking and to identify victims; and the Friends of the Family Program ( Inshuti Z'Umuryango ), which trains volunteers to prevent and respond to child protection issues and establishes monitoring committees at various levels to combat child labor. (1) While the Friends of the Family Program remained active during the reporting period, research was unable to identify activities undertaken to address child labor specifically.
Victim Assistance Programs‡	Musanze Child Rehabilitation Center in Northern Province assists children separated from armed groups in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. (27,29) Gitagata Center provides education, vocational training, and psychosocial support, and aims to reunite former street children with their families. Isange One Stop Centers located in 44 hospitals and district capitals assist victims of gender-based violence and human trafficking. (1,68) The government continued to fund the rehabilitation and Isange One Stop Centers during the reporting period. (27) In 2021, the government inaugurated its first child-friendly space within an Isange One Stop Center to provide specialized services to child trafficking victims. (23)
It Takes Every Rwandan to End Child Exploitation	Advocacy campaign against child labor and sexual abuse of children supported by MIGEPROF and World Vision Rwanda. (1,69) During the reporting period, the program launched a new campaign in the Nyagatare district of Eastern Province that aims to work with children and communities to educate them about children's rights and preventing violence against children. The campaign also seeks to simplify referral mechanisms to report incidents. (70) Also in 2021, World Vision partnered with the Rwanda Extractive Industry Worker's Union to launch a new hotline to enable the public to report child abuses, including child labor. (71)
Strengthening Social Protection Project (2017–2021)	An $80 million World Bank-funded project in support of the Vision 2020 Umurenge Program that aimed to deliver cash transfers and improve social safety nets. (72) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the program during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (73)

Although Rwanda has programs that target child labor, research did not identify sufficient programming to address the extent of child labor in the agriculture and mining sectors, in which child labor is prevalent.

Observers indicate that despite efforts to protect and assist victims of human trafficking, the country's shelter system was focused on short-term needs, with few resources for individuals needing long-term support. (22,25) In addition, service providers lacked sufficient training to properly identify victims of human trafficking. (20,22)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Rwanda (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish by law compulsory education up to the age of 15 and free basic public education.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that the age up to which education is compulsory is the same as the minimum age for work.	2020 – 2021
Enforcement	Report the number of complaints received by the Rwandan National Police's hotline that relate to child labor.	2013 – 2021
	Increase the number of inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate has sufficient resources, personnel, and training to enforce child labor laws.	2017 – 2021
	Cease the practice of detaining and physically abusing children who work on the street and ensure that children in detention receive adequate screening and services, and are not subjected to abuse or unhealthy detention conditions.	2018 – 2021
	Improve ability of law enforcement agencies to share data relevant to the worst forms of child labor.	2021
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that coordinating bodies receive adequate resources and are able to combat both domestic and transnational human trafficking.	2019 – 2021

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Government Policies	Ensure that actions are taken to implement the Strategic Plan for the Integrated Child Rights Policy.	2019 – 2021
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Social Protection Strategy.	2011 – 2021
Social Programs	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement social programs during the reporting period and make information about implementation measures publicly available.	2020 – 2021
	Remove barriers to education, such as language barriers for non-English speakers, costs for uniforms and school supplies, and unofficial school fees, and ensure access for children with disabilities.	2010 – 2021
	Expand existing social programs to address all relevant sectors of child labor, including agriculture and mining.	2017 – 2021
	Expand services for human trafficking victims, including programs for long-term care in shelters.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that service providers are properly trained to identify victims of human trafficking.	2019 – 2021

Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Although research found no evidence that child labor exists in Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha, in 2021, the government made minimal advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The Government of Ascensión passed a new Employment Ordinance during the reporting period which sets the minimum age for work at 14. However, Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha is assessed as having made only minimal advancement because it continued to implement a practice that delayed advancement in preventing the worst forms of child labor. There is no functioning labor inspectorate in Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha to enforce labor laws. Labor inspections are a key tool for identifying child labor violations, and their absence makes children more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. In addition, the islands have yet to define, by law or regulation, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, other than work on vessels engaged in maritime navigation. Gaps also remain in legislation across Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha related to forced child labor and the trafficking of children for labor exploitation.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha. (1-3)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

British Overseas Territories (BOTs) recognize the jurisdiction and sovereignty of the United Kingdom (UK), but are not constitutionally part of the UK. They are self-governing, except in the areas of foreign affairs and defense. (4) Domestic UK law does not generally apply unless explicitly extended to these territories. Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha are three separate territories that generally incorporate English Law Ordinances to the extent permitted by local circumstances and subject to modification by local laws. (4,5) Under Article 35(4) of the ILO Constitution, when the UK ratifies a Convention, the Territory must consider if it will accept the Convention. If the Convention is accepted, it is considered applicable to that territory. (4) The following Conventions have been extended to and accepted by Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The Government of Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 2). However, gaps exist in Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including prohibition of forced labor.

In 2021, the Government of Ascensión passed a new Employment Ordinance into law which took effect in June 2022. This new law sets the minimum age for work in Ascensión at 14. (7,14) However, the law still does not prohibit the employment of children in hazardous work, other than work on vessels engaged in maritime navigation. Additionally, Ascensión does not have any laws prohibiting the use of children in illicit activities. (7) The laws prohibiting forced labor in Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha are not sufficient because debt bondage and slavery are prohibited constitutionally but not criminally. (9) While the UK Sexual Offenses Act, which is applicable to this territory, prohibits trafficking for sexual exploitation, it does not specifically address the trafficking of children and there are no laws prohibiting the trafficking of children for labor exploitation. (10)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor, including its worst forms. However, the absence of a labor inspectorate at the national level in Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha may impede the enforcement of child labor laws.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha (Table 3).

Table 3. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify international conventions on child labor.	2020 – 2021
	Implement legislation prohibiting children from engaging in all types of hazardous work in Ascensión, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that forced labor, debt bondage, and slavery are criminally prohibited.	2017 – 2021
	Establish laws to criminally prohibit trafficking of children for labor exploitation.	2014 – 2021
	Establish laws to criminally prohibit the use of children in illicit activities in Ascensión.	2015 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
Enforcement	Establish a labor inspectorate to enforce labor laws, including laws pertaining to child labor.	2021

In 2021, Saint Lucia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government approved the Counter-Trafficking Amendment Act, which includes provisions to protect victims of human trafficking regardless of their citizenship status. The government also increased its number of labor inspectors from four in 2020 to eight in 2021 and updated standard operating procedures for the identification, referral, and protection of victims of human trafficking. Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Saint Lucia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in the sale and distribution of drugs. Saint Lucia's legal framework does not sufficiently prohibit the commercial sexual exploitation of children and the use of children in illicit activities. In addition, policies addressing all forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children, do not exist.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Saint Lucia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and in the sale and distribution of drugs. (1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Saint Lucia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	7.5 (2,017)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	99.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	8.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		100.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 4 (MICS 4), 2012. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Street vending, including selling food and handicrafts in markets (2)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-4) Use in illicit activities, including in the sale and distribution of drugs (1,3)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Saint Lucia lacks detailed data on the extent of child labor in the country. A rapid assessment conducted by the ILO in 2016 revealed limited evidence that children are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes in exchange for rides, clothing, or cell phones, by family members or caregivers in situations of financial need. (1,2,7) Additional sources also indicate that local and foreign children are subjected to human trafficking for the purpose of commercial sexual exploitation, including by parents and caregivers. (2,4,8)

All children in Saint Lucia are entitled to free public education. However, violence in schools, some gang related, might hinder some children from attending. (9) Children who do not attend school are vulnerable to engage in child labor.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Saint Lucia has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Saint Lucia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children and the use of children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 122 of the Labor Code (10,11)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 122(2) of the Labor Code (10)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Articles 126(b) and 214 of the Labor Code (10)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 4 of the Constitution; Article 6 of the Labor Code; Articles 3, 5, and 10(c) of Counter-Trafficking Act No. 7 (10,12,13)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 3, 5, and 10(c) of Counter-Trafficking Act No. 7 (13)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Article 141 of the Criminal Code; Articles 2 and 5 of Counter-Trafficking Act No. 7 (13,14)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Articles 141 and 560 of the Criminal Code (14)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A†
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article 27 of the Education Act (15)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 16 of the Education Act (15)

* Country has no conscription (16)

† Country has no standing military (16)

During the reporting period, the government approved the Counter-Trafficking Amendment Act, which includes provisions for the protection and safety of victims of trafficking in persons regardless of their citizenship status. In addition, the government also began a comprehensive revision of the Labor Act in 2020 to specifically address certain issues related to the Labor Department's mandate. As of the publishing of this report, the revision remained under the review of the Attorney General. (17)

Saint Lucia has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (10) Although the Criminal Code prohibits the use of children in some illicit activities, such as street work, the use, procurement, or offering of children for the production and trafficking of drugs is not criminally prohibited. (14) Moreover, the use of children for commercial sexual exploitation is not criminally prohibited. (13,14)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Infrastructure, Ports, Energy, and Labor	Enforces laws on child labor through labor inspections conducted by its Department of Labor. (17)
Royal Saint Lucia Police Force	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (8) Through its Vulnerable Persons Unit, in collaboration with the Division of Human Services, investigates cases of child labor, abuse, and neglect. The Vulnerable Persons Unit consists of 2 units of 12 officers each and leads in the enforcement of child labor laws. (8,7) Uses a specific manual to investigate crimes related to children. (8)
Ministry of Home Affairs, Justice, and National Security	Coordinates and leads anti-human trafficking efforts among various ministries. (18)
Department of Human Services and Family Affairs	Leads efforts related to childcare, protection, and adoption as mandated in the 2018 Child Care, Protection, and Adoption Bill. (9,19) Monitors and implements relevant legal framework related to cases of commercial sexual exploitation and trafficking in persons, including child victims. (20) Located within the Ministry of Equity, Social Justice and Empowerment. (9)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Saint Lucia took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Infrastructure, Ports, Energy, and Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$392,313 (2)	$496,296 (21)

Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (2)	Yes (17)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (17)

In 2021, the Government of Saint Lucia increased its number of labor inspectors from four in 2020 to eight.

Saint Lucia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Although inspectors look for child labor and forced labor violations during all inspections, reports indicate that insufficient funding may hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws in all relevant sectors, especially in communities in which children are vulnerable to commercial sexual exploitation. (8) In addition, existing penalties are insufficient to deter employers from committing child labor violations. (2,22)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Saint Lucia took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient allocation of financial and human resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (2)	Yes (21)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (2)	N/A (21)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (2)	Yes (21)
Number of Investigations	30 (23)	Unknown (17)
Number of Violations Found	0 (2)	Unknown (17)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (2)	Unknown (17)
Number of Convictions	0 (2)	Unknown (17)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (2)	Unknown (17)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (17)

Although reports indicate that the Royal St. Lucia Police Force received new vehicles during the reporting period, which enabled them to respond more efficiently to violations, insufficient resources, including funding and equipment, may have continued to hamper police capacity to enforce child labor laws. (7,21) The judicial system within the Ministry of Home Affairs, Justice, and National Security has a backlog of cases, and lacks sufficient personnel and resources; however, during the reporting period, the government hired an additional judge and two prosecutors to address the backlog. (4,24)

The government did not publicly release comprehensive data on its criminal law enforcement efforts during the reporting period.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Ministry of Education, Innovation, Gender Relations, and Sustainable Development	Coordinates investigations of potential child labor cases and ensures the use of established protocols in collaboration with the Royal Saint Lucia Police Force. (2,25) In October 2021, signed an MOU with the Ministries of Agriculture, Health and Education to improve St. Lucia's National School Feeding Program and school gardens. (26)
Trafficking in Persons Task Force	Coordinates the identification and referral of human trafficking cases among law enforcement, social services, and immigration officials, under the Counter-Trafficking Act. Includes public servants, representatives from the Department of Labor, police, and victim-service NGOs. (13,27) In June 2021, hosted an online meeting for the public sector to examine its response to child sex trafficking, particularly among those economically disadvantaged by the COVID-19 pandemic. In addition, issued press releases and public service announcements promoting human trafficking awareness. (21)
Office of Gender Relations	Provides referrals to human trafficking victims for health, advocacy, crisis, and legal services. (2) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken by the Office of Gender Relations during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including no evidence of a policy addressing child labor and its worst forms.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Social Protection Policy (2014–2024)	Established a social protection policy in Phase I (2014–2019) by consolidating the Social Safety Net programs. In Phase II (2019–2024), will implement wider reforms for creating a coherent social protection policy. (7) Child protection policies are incorporated into poverty reduction concepts and promote access to education. (28) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Social Protection Policy during the reporting period.

During the reporting period, the government updated standard operating procedures for the identification, referral, and protection of victims of human trafficking. Updates aim to establish a national referral mechanism for appropriate assistance, ensure expeditious and effective law enforcement, including the conviction of offenders, and ensure the non-revictimization of victims from the time of identification to reintegration. (29)

Research found no evidence of any policies addressing child labor and its worst forms.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including inadequate funding and the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Educational Programs	Programs focused on increasing school attendance and promoting access to education. Include the Saint Lucia Social Development Fund and Public Assistance Program, which fosters school attendance; the Community Empowerment's After School Program, which aims to improve academic performance and maintain school attendance of children ages 8 to 16; the Upton Garden Girls Center, which provides education, training, and self-development opportunities to teenage girls; the Center for Adolescent Renewal and Education, which provides second-chance education, training, and self-development services to adolescents; the Boys Training Center, which supports boys ages 10 to 18 who have come in contact with the law or require care and protection; and the Koudmen Sent Lisi program, which funds textbook rentals, a book bursary that reimburses students for textbooks, a school feeding program, and a transportation subsidy program at most secondary schools. (18) Active in 2021. (21)
Building the Capacity of the Government of Saint Lucia and Promoting Awareness of Counter-Trafficking†	$105,000 government-funded, 2-year public awareness project to counter human trafficking; led by the Trafficking in Persons Task Force. Focuses on running radio and television announcements, printing posters and brochures, and maintaining a Facebook page to ensure a growing media and social media presence on human trafficking. (30) In 2019, the government assumed full financial support for this program from IOM. (30) Active in 2021. (21)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (31)

Research found no evidence of any programs with the specific goal of eliminating or preventing the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and illicit activities such as the sale and transportation of drugs. In addition, overall funding for social programs remains a concern because it does not meet the needs of all children in the country, especially children subjected to human trafficking and those engaged in illicit activities, and funding remains highly dependent on foreign assistance. (18,32)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Saint Lucia (Table 11).

Saint Lucia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit using a child for commercial sexual exploitation.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that laws prohibit procuring or offering a child for illicit activities, including drug trafficking and production.	2011 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
Enforcement	Ensure that the labor inspectorate receives sufficient funding for conducting labor inspections.	2015 – 2021
	Publish data on criminal law enforcement efforts conducted during the reporting period.	2015 – 2021
	Increase the resources allocated to criminal investigators, including funding and equipment.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that existing penalties are sufficient to deter employers from committing child labor violations.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that the judiciary has sufficient resources and personnel to allow cases to be tried in a timely manner.	2017 – 2021
Coordination	Ensure the Office of Gender Relations is active and able to carry out its intended mandate.	2020 – 2021
Government Policies	Ensure that the National Social Protection Policy is implemented and is able to fulfill its mandate.	2015 – 2021
	Adopt policies to address the worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2010 – 2021
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2021
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers to education, and make it accessible for all children by ensuring that violence does not occur at schools.	2018 – 2021
	Design and implement social programs that specifically target and assist children engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and illicit activities such as the sale and transportation of drugs.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that funding for social programs is sufficient so that it can meet the needs of all children, including vulnerable children, and that it does not highly rely on foreign assistance.	2017 – 2021

In 2021, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor.

The National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons coordinated numerous trainings for the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit of the Royal Saint Vincent and the Grenadines Police Force, frontline healthcare workers, and frontline volunteers from the Saint Vincent and the Grenadines Red Cross Society. The training modules addressed human trafficking indicators, such as victim identification, care and protection, awareness raising, and survivor and professional resources. In addition, the government distributed food parcels to 349 student participants through its program Zero Hunger Trust Fund. The government also funded and provided resources for several human trafficking awareness campaigns, including a live radio program, distributing hundreds of brochures to evacuees of the La Soufrière volcano eruption, and training to healthcare and frontline workers. However, children in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines engage in child labor in street vending, including selling fruits and vegetables at local farmers' markets. Gaps remain in the legal framework, as Saint Vincent and the Grenadines law does not fully meet international standards because the use of children for prostitution, pornography, or pornographic performances is not prohibited. In addition, the minimum age for hazardous work falls below international standards and there is no legislation prohibiting the using, procuring, and offering of children in illicit activities, including in the production of drugs.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines engage in child labor in street vending, including selling fruits and vegetables at local farmers' markets. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		104.9

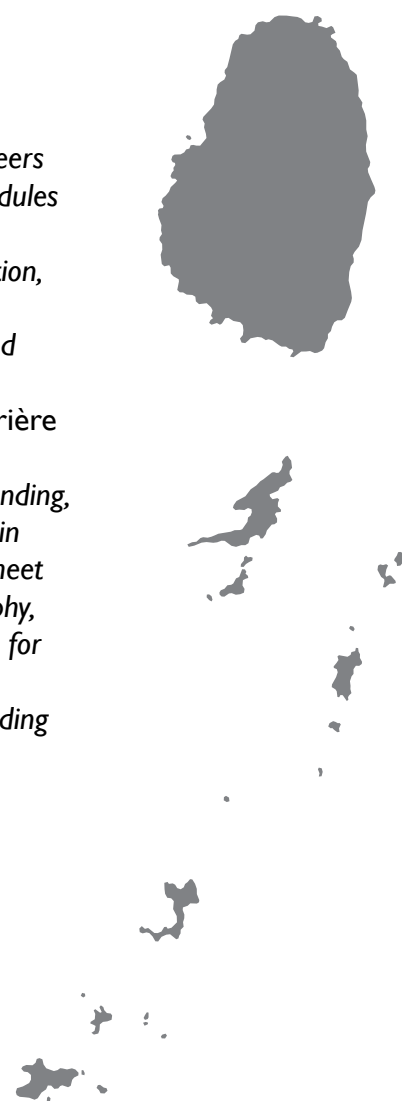

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (3)
Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2022. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Activities unknown (1,2)
Services	Street vending, including selling fruits and vegetables at local farmers' markets (5)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

All children in the country are able to access education; however, inadequate public transportation for children in rural villages causes them to walk long distances to get to school, which may make attending school difficult. (1,6,7) Children out of school are vulnerable to engaging in child labor.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines' legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 8 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (8)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No		Schedule, Part I, Articles 1, 2, and 5 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (8)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Part I, Sections 3 and 4, and Articles 1, 2, and 5 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act; Section VI(37) of the Saint Vincent and the Grenadines Occupational Safety and Health Act of 2017 (8,9)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Chapter XII, Part 207 of the Criminal Code (10)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Part II, Articles 5–8 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (11)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Part II, Article 7 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (10)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A*
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Part I, Article 2 of the Education Act (6)
Free Public Education	Yes		Part III, Articles 14–16 of the Education Act (6)

* Country has no conscription (12)

† Country has no standing military (13)

The government has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (8,9) In addition, the law does not fully meet international standards as it does not prohibit the use of children for prostitution, pornography, or pornographic performances. (11)

As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor	Enforces child labor laws through its Department of Labor, and refers victims to appropriate social services. (14) If the Department finds a criminal violation, it forwards the case to the Royal Saint Vincent and the Grenadines Police Force. (15)
Royal Saint Vincent and the Grenadines Police Force	Makes criminal arrests, including those involving the worst forms of child labor. Addresses human trafficking through the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit (ATIPU); refers survivors to appropriate social services and funds financial requests made by ATIPU. (15)
Office of the Director of Public Prosecution	Prosecutes criminal violations, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. (15)
Ministry of Social Development	Maintains the Child Protection Unit, which includes child protection officers who report cases of child abuse. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including a lack of a mechanism to assess civil penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$618,758 (1)	$591,907 (16)

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (15)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (1)	Yes (15)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (15)

During the reporting period, the Department of Labor reported that the number of inspectors and amount of funding was sufficient. (15,16)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient allocation of financial and human resources.

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (18)	Yes (19,20)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (18)	No (15)
Number of Investigations	0 (1)	0 (15)
Number of Violations Found	0 (1)	0 (15)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (1)	0 (15)
Number of Convictions	0 (1)	0 (15)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	0 (15)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (15)

In 2021, the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit (ATIPU) participated in more than 30 online learning programs on human trafficking conducted through the Criminal Justice Reform project, which aims to develop training aids for frontline responders who may encounter human trafficking survivors during their daily duties. The training modules addressed human trafficking indicators, such as victim identification, care, and protection; awareness raising; and survivor and professional resources. (19,20)

Reports indicate that insufficient resources, including limited personnel and vehicles, hampered the capacity of ATIPU to address human trafficking throughout the country. (18)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons	Develops a national plan to address human trafficking, coordinates the collection of data among government agencies, establishes policies to enable government agencies to work with NGOs to prevent human trafficking and assist survivors, and provides training to all relevant government officials and authority figures. Chaired by the Prime Minister. (11) Comprises representatives from police, immigration, public prosecutors, social services, gender affairs, the Department of Labor, and a local NGO. (21) In 2021, coordinated various trainings given to ATIPU, frontline healthcare workers, and frontline volunteers from Saint Vincent and the Grenadines Red Cross Society. (19,20)

Research shows that, outside the scope of human trafficking, there is no specific coordinating mechanism dedicated solely to addressing issues related to the worst forms of child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons (2021–2025)	Establishes procedures to eradicate human trafficking, including training for frontline staff and other relevant stakeholders; conducts awareness-raising campaigns; and provides victim protection and assistance, although the government has not identified a victim since 2019. Administered by the National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons. (22,23)
Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) on Countering Human Trafficking in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines	Outlines the responsibilities of each signatory agency in addressing human trafficking and the worst forms of child labor. Assigns tasks and responsibilities among nine government stakeholders regarding human trafficking. (24) Includes the Department of Labor; Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Trade and Commerce; ATIPU and others. (25)

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Research found no evidence of any policy addressing child labor, including street vending. In addition, research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement key policies during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address child labor in relevant sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Government-Funded Educational Programs†	Provide free meals to students and low-income families through the Supplementary Feeding Program. Active in 2021. (24)
Zero Hunger Trust Fund†	Provides textbooks, cash for the purchase of school supplies, and daily meals to over 300 grade 4 and 5 students in 12 primary schools. Seeks to alleviate poverty and improve the standard of living of primary school-age children through its "Adopt a Classroom" program. (25) During the reporting period, distributed food parcels to 349 recipients. (26)

† Program is funded by the Government of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines.

During the reporting period, the Government of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines funded and provided resources toward human trafficking awareness campaigns, including through a live radio program on Radio 705, a national broadcasting corporation; the distribution of hundreds of brochures to evacuees who were placed in shelters during the explosive eruption of La Soufrière volcano; and the training of healthcare workers and Red Cross frontline workers. (15,20)

Although the government has implemented programs to address educational and food needs, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically focused on addressing child labor in all relevant sectors.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish 18 as the minimum age for hazardous work and identify hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use of children for prostitution, pornography, and pornographic performances.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use, procuring, and offering of children for illicit activities, including in the production of drugs.	2011 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2021
Enforcement	Establish a mechanism to assess civil penalties for child labor violations.	2016 – 2021
	Increase resources, including personnel and vehicles, for the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit to expand their capacity to address human trafficking throughout the country.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure training is provided, including offering periodic refresher courses to criminal investigators during the reporting period.	2021
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to address all worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2021
Government Policies	Adopt policies to address child labor, including street vending.	2021
	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement key policies and publish results from activities implemented during the reporting period.	2019 – 2021

In 2021, Samoa made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government published the results of the Samoa Demographic Health Survey and the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 2019–2020, with data on child labor. In addition, Samoa's Ministry of Commerce, Industry, and Labor, the Samoa Child Labor Task Force, and the International Labor Organization hosted the Child Labor Forum, in which the Government of Samoa committed to becoming an Alliance 8.7 Pathfinder Country. However, children in Samoa are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including use in illicit activities, including the production and trafficking of drugs. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in street work. Furthermore, research found no evidence of laws that prohibit using, procuring, or offering children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. In addition, the government did not publicly release information on its labor law enforcement or criminal law enforcement efforts.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Samoa are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including use in illicit activities, including the production and trafficking of drugs. (1) Children also engage in dangerous tasks in street work. (1-8) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Samoa. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Use in illicit activities, including the production and trafficking of drugs (1)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

During the reporting period, the government published the results of the Samoa Demographic Health Survey and the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 2019–2020. Data were collected from 3,196 households from October 2019 to February 2020. (3,11) According to the survey, almost 14 percent of children ages 5 to 17 engage in child labor, all of them under hazardous conditions. (11)

Children who participate in street vending may work long hours, work late at night, be exposed to exhaust fumes, and have an increased risk of being hit by passing traffic. In addition, street vending, including selling of food, garlands, and other products by children is not prohibited for children under age 18. (1,3,6)

ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Samoa's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including failure to criminalize the use of children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 51 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act (12)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 51 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act (12)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 51 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act; Article 21 of the Labor and Employment Relations Regulations; Government of Samoa Public Notice on Hazardous Work for Children (12-14)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article 8 of the Constitution; Articles 2 and 18 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act; Section 157 of the Crimes Act (12,15,16)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 155–157 of the Crimes Act (16)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Sections 73, 74, 82, and 157 of the Crimes Act (16)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A†
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Article 8 of the International Criminal Court Act (17)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 2 (Section 2) of the Education Amendment Act (18)
Free Public Education	No

† Country has no standing military (17)

Amendments to the Labor and Employment Relations Amendment Act and the Child Care and Protection Bill 2020 are still under government consideration, as a months-long political impasse following the general election during the reporting period stalled legislation in 2021. (3)

The Labor and Employment Relations Regulations permit children between ages 12 and 14 to engage in light work for a limited number of hours. However, they neither specify the conditions under which light work may be undertaken nor define the activities that are permitted. (8,13) In addition, as the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (12,18) The Government of Samoa passed the Education Amendment Act 2019, which raised the compulsory education age to 16. (18)

Research found no evidence of laws that ban using, procuring, or offering of children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. (19) Samoa does not meet the international standard for prohibiting non-state military recruitment because its International Criminal Court Act does not apply to children ages 15 to 18. (17) Samoa also does not meet the international standard for the prohibition of child commercial sexual exploitation because the Government of Samoa's Crimes Act does not protect children ages 16 to 18. (8,16) In addition, laws prohibiting forced labor are not sufficient because, while they do criminalize forced labor, they do not also criminalize slavery and practices similar to slavery or debt bondage. (12,15,16)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Commerce, Industry, and Labor (MCIL)	Enforces the Labor and Employment Relations Act, which includes investigating complaints of child labor law violations. (20,21) Refers cases to the Ministry of Police and the Office of the Attorney General for enforcement. (21)
Ministry of Police, Prisons, and Corrections	Enforces criminal laws related to child labor. (3,21)
Office of the Attorney General	Prosecutes criminal cases of the worst forms of child labor. (21)
Ministry of Women, Community, and Social Development	Identifies children in situations of child labor; helps to locate families of the children, schedules home visits, and with the aid of child protection teams, educates families on the importance of attending school and on the risks and hazards of street vending. (22)
Ministry of Education, Sports, and Culture	Enforces the Education Act and assists MCIL with investigations of children suspected of being involved in child labor. (23)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Samoa took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of Ministry of Commerce, Industry, and Labor (MCIL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor (Cont.)

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Unknown (24)	Yes (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Unknown (24)	Yes (3)

The MCIL registers complaints about child labor, and the Samoa Police Service refers children found during labor inspections to the NGO Samoa Victim Support Group. (3) The government did not provide additional information on its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. While the number of labor inspectors in Samoa is unknown, it is likely insufficient for the size of Samoa's workforce, which includes approximately 54,000 workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Samoa would need to employ roughly 4 labor inspectors. (25,26)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Samoa took actions to address child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (24)	Yes (23)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (24)	N/A (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to The Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)

All new police employees in Samoa undergo a 17-week Basic Recruit Course Program that consists of police training. This training includes modules addressing child labor, including a review of legislation relevant to child labor issues. (23) However, the government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Child Labor Task Force	Comprises the MCIL; Ministry of Police, Prisons, and Corrections; Ministry of Women, Community, and Social Development; and Ministry of Education, Sports, and Culture. Aims to reduce the prevalence of child vendors in towns and cities through patrol sweeps and conducting outreach activities. (21) Formerly the Child Vending Task Force. (21) During the reporting period, MCIL, the Child Labor Task Force, and the ILO hosted a Child Labor Forum aimed at improving coordination of efforts to address child labor. (3)
Transnational Crime Unit	Investigates laws against transnational crimes in the Pacific Region, including on child and human trafficking, drugs and arms smuggling, terrorism, and money laundering. (23,27) Comprises the Ministry of Police, Prisons, and Corrections; the Ministry for Revenue-Customs; and the Ministry of the Prime Minister's Immigration Unit. (28) Active in 2021. (3)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Care and Protection Policy (2020–2030)	Sets a strategic and high-level direction for child protection in Samoa. Led by the Ministry of Women, Community, and Social Development. (3) Includes policies to prevent, eliminate, and address all forms of child labor and child trafficking; and to regulate, monitor, and evaluate child labor in the formal and informal business and employment sectors. (29) During the reporting period, the government worked on a draft Child Care and Protection Bill, with efforts led by the Ministry of Women, Community, and Social Development. In addition, the Ministry of Education, Sports, and Culture commenced a review of laws and regulations on child street vending. (30)
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	Addresses, develops, and implements strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. A multinational strategic framework program consisting of 14 South Pacific nations. (31) Activities during the reporting period were conducted under the UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022). (32,33)

During the reporting period, Samoa committed to becoming an Alliance 8.7 Pathfinder Country at the Child Labor Forum hosted by the MCIL, the Samoa Child Labor Task Force, and the ILO. Alliance 8.7 calls for the eradication of child labor by 2025, and forced labor, modern slavery, and human trafficking by 2030. (3)

The government has not integrated child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Strategy for the Development of Samoa or the Education Sector Plan (2019–2024), which detail the Government of Samoa's goals and key outcomes regarding education and development priorities. (24,34)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022)	Prioritizes children's rights including the elimination of the worst forms of child labor. Multi-country program in 14 Pacific Island countries aligned with the UN Pacific Strategy 2018–2022. (32) During the reporting period, UNICEF supported the gathering of data through the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey to better understand and eliminate child labor. (33)
The Samoa School Fee Grant Scheme and Government Grant to Mission and Public Schools†	Provide financial support to families to assist with ancillary school fees, supplies, and equipment that their child(ren) may need during the school year. (3,35) Active in 2021. (3)
One Government Grant†	Provides direct financial support to Samoan primary and secondary public schools, mission and private schools, and primary schools for students with disabilities and special needs to offset fees normally charged to students. (36,37) Active in 2021. (23)

† Program is funded by the Government of Samoa.

Although the government has implemented educational support programs, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation or street vending.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Samoa (Table 11).

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that the law's provisions addressing "light work" are specific enough to prevent children from becoming involved in child labor, including street vending.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, or offering of a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2014 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that laws prohibiting forced labor criminalize slavery and practices similar to slavery or debt bondage.	2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits commercial sexual exploitation of children between ages 16 to 18.	2018 – 2021
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age to which education is compulsory.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure access to free public education.	2020 – 2021
Enforcement	Publish labor law enforcement data for child labor law violations, penalties imposed, and penalties collected for all provinces. In addition, publish information about labor inspectorate funding, the number of labor inspectors, the number of labor inspections conducted at the worksite, whether routine inspections were targeted, whether unannounced inspections were conducted, and whether refresher training courses were provided.	2020 – 2021
	Establish a mechanism to assess civil penalties for child labor violations.	2015 – 2021
	Ensure the number of labor inspectors in Samoa meets the ILO's technical guidance.	2020 – 2021
	Publish criminal law enforcement data for the worst forms of child labor, including the numbers of both routine and unannounced investigations conducted, violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions made, and penalties imposed. In addition, publish information on whether refresher courses were provided for criminal law investigators and whether reciprocal referral mechanism exists between criminal authorities and social services.	2013 – 2021
Government Policies	Integrate strategies to eliminate and prevent child labor into the Strategy for the Development of Samoa and the Education Sector Plan.	2012 – 2021
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2021
	Institute programs to address child labor, including in street vending and commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2009 – 2021

In 2021, São Tomé and Príncipe made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government provided training for all labor inspectors on issues related to the COVID-19 pandemic, with a focus on the 2019 Labor Code. Additional training was also provided by the International Labor Organization, including the module "Labor Inspection in Fighting Against Child Labor." Moreover, in July 2021, funding for the Family Program increased from $10 million to $18 million, raising the number of program participants from 3,500 to 16,000. The distribution of these funds will continue for a period of 9 months, providing stipends twice a month for the poorest families. However, children in São Tomé and Príncipe are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. The Labor Code does not apply to children working outside of a formal labor relationship, such as children who are self-employed. Moreover, limited financial resources hampered law enforcement efforts, and criminal law enforcement did not take actions to address child labor during the reporting period. In addition, policies addressing the worst forms of child labor do not exist.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in São Tomé and Príncipe are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. (1,2) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (3,4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in São Tomé and Príncipe. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	14.2 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	92.5
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	23.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		84.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (5)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS6), 2019. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, † including weeding and fertilizing † (3,4,7)
	Fishing, † including line and hook fishing (3,4,7)
Industry	Carpentry and woodworking (1)
	Construction † (1,3)
Services	Working in shops, restaurants, and bars † (1,3,4)

São Tomé and Príncipe

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Reports indicate that children with special needs, especially those with mobility or hearing difficulties, may have limited access to education. (4)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

São Tomé and Príncipe has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in São Tomé and Príncipe's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Articles 268(2) and 269 of the Labor Code (8)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 273(2), 274, and 536 of the Labor Code; Article 171 of the Civil Code (8,9)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Hazardous Work List in Annex IV of the Labor Code (8)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Articles 159 and 160 of the Penal Code (10)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 160 and 181 of the Penal Code (10)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 179–182 of the Penal Code (10)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 279, 280, and 289 of the Penal Code (10)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	17	Legislation title unknown (11)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 1 of Decree-Law 3/83 (12)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Articles 11 and 12 of the Basic Education System Law (13)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 12 of the Basic Education System Law (13)

‡ Age calculated based on available information. (13)

The Labor Code permits children aged 14, who have completed their compulsory education, to perform light work that is not deemed harmful to their health or development; however, this framework does not establish a minimum work age and special legislation specifying the activities and conditions in which light work may be undertaken has yet to be adopted. (8) Furthermore, the minimum age protections contained in the Labor

Code do not apply to children working outside of a formal labor relationship, such as children who are self-employed. (8,14)

Laws prohibiting forced labor are not sufficient as they do not criminalize practices similar to slavery or debt bondage and forced or compulsory labor. (10)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Solidarity, Family, and Professional Training	Enforces labor laws, including child labor. (1,15)
Ministry of Justice, Public Administration and Human Rights	Enforces criminal laws against the worst forms of child labor. (1,15)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in São Tomé and Príncipe took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Solidarity, Family, and Professional Training that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$25,000 (1)	$23,000 (4)
Number of Labor Inspectors	4 (1)	6 (4)

Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	N/A	N/A
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	N/A	N/A
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (4)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (1)	Yes (4)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (16)	Yes (16)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (4)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (1)	Yes (4)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (4)

During the reporting period, two additional labor inspectors were hired by the government. There are also four assistant inspectors. (4,15) In addition, the government conducted a training session for labor inspectors on issues related to the COVID-19 pandemic, while also focusing on regulations in the 2019 Labor Code. Virtual trainings, funded by the ILO, were also provided to labor inspectors in November and December 2021, including the module "Labor Inspection in Fighting Against Child Labor." (4)

Although inspections are permitted in all sectors, they are seldom conducted in the informal sector, in which child labor is more prevalent. (4) Reports also indicate that the allotted budget for the Labor Inspectorate was insufficient to cover operating costs, including office facilities, fuel, and transportation. Inspectors' lack of technical training also hinders their ability to perform their duties. (4,17)

São Tomé and Príncipe

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Children found working during inspections by labor inspectors are referred to the Ministry of Justice, Public Administration and Human Rights or the Directorate of Social Protection and Solidarity within the Ministry of Labor, Solidarity, Family, and Professional Training for integration and counseling services. Currently, there are three official centers for child integration in the country, and each works in partnership with the government. (1,15)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in São Tomé and Príncipe took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient allocation of financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (1)	No (4)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	No (1)	No (4)
Number of Investigations	0 (1)	0 (4)
Number of Violations Found	0 (1)	0 (4)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (1)	0 (4)
Number of Convictions	0 (1)	0 (4)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (4)

During the reporting year, investigators lacked resources, including transportation, fuel, and other necessities to carry out investigations. (1,4)

Children found by Ministry of Justice, Public Administration and Human Rights officials are referred for integration and counseling services to the Directorate of Social Protection and Solidarity in the Ministry of Labor, Solidarity, Family, and Professional Training. (1,15)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Anti-Child Labor Committee	Leads efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. (1) Led by the Ministry of Labor, Solidarity, Family, and Professional Training. (18) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken by the Anti-Child Labor Committee during the reporting period.
Directorate of Social Protection and Solidarity	Provides counseling and integration services to children found during labor inspections and criminal investigations. Within the Ministry of Labor, Solidarity, Family, and Professional Training. (1,15) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken by the Directorate of Social Protection and Solidarity during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy and Strategy for Social Protection (2014–2023)	Establishes social protection strategies aimed at protecting all Santomeans by eliminating extreme poverty over a 10-year time frame, reinforcing the rights of children, and addressing child labor. The policy does not specifically cover the worst forms of child labor present in São Tomé and Príncipe, including commercial sexual exploitation. (19) Although the National Policy and Strategy for Social Protection remained active during the reporting period, reports indicate that no activities were undertaken to implement it. (4)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including addressing the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Support Centers†	Three government-funded centers run by NGOs, operating in areas with high concentrations of poor families, orphans, and street children. Provide household stipends to keep children in school and teach income-generating skills. (20,21) Active in 2021. (4)
Disadvantaged Mothers Program ( Mães Carentiadas )†	Government program that provides family stipends, including food, school materials, and uniforms on an as-needed basis. The support is distributed by social workers. (22) In 2021, the government increased the family stipends to $44 per month and changed dispersal methods; instead of the stipend being dispersed by social workers, participants are issued an ATM card and can receive their stipend every 2 months. (15)
World Bank-Funded Projects†	Includes a $10 million 4-year Family Program, which focuses on implementing education policies and provides cash stipends of $55 that are distributed twice a month to the poorest families; and a $15 million 4-year Girls Empowerment and Quality Education for All Project, which was launched in 2020, aimed at providing safe learning spaces, improving school infrastructure, working with families and communities to empower girls with relevant life skills, and increasing school readiness for both boys and girls by boosting education, particularly within the areas of literacy and numeracy. (1,23,24) In 2021, the World Bank increased funding for the Family Program from $10 million to $18 million, thus increasing the number of program participants from 3,500 to 16,000. The distribution of these funds began in July 2021 and will continue for a period of 9 months. (4,25) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Girls Empowerment and Quality Education for All Project.
Decent Work Country Program (2018–2021)†	Government program in collaboration with the ILO that aimed to address child labor through legislative action and strategic programs. (7,26) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Decent Work Country Program during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of São Tomé and Príncipe.

Although São Tomé and Príncipe has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the problem, especially in agriculture.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in São Tomé and Príncipe (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2014 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Establish by law a minimum age at which light work may be undertaken and adopt legislation defining the activities and conditions permissible for light work.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits practices similar to slavery or criminally prohibits debt bondage and forced or compulsory labor.	2021
	Ensure that all children are protected by law, including children who are self-employed.	2015 – 2021

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data identifying risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents, and ensure that inspections are conducted in the informal sector in which child labor is known to occur.	2017 – 2021
	Provide labor inspectors with adequate technical training to strengthen their ability to perform their duties and ensure that they are equipped with the necessary resources to conduct inspections, including sufficient office facilities, fuel, and transportation.	2009 – 2021
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts undertaken, including data regarding imposed penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that criminal investigators are equipped with the necessary resources, including transportation, fuel, and other necessities to carry out investigations, and ensure they receive initial training and refresher courses to better address violations of the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2021
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are active and able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020 – 2021
Government Policies	Adopt policies to address the worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement the National Policy and Strategy for Social Protection and that data on these activities are published.	2021
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2021
	Increase access to education for children with special needs, including creating programs that address children with mobility and hearing difficulties.	2021
	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement all programs, including the Girl Empowerment and Quality Education for All project and the Decent Work Country Program, and publish data on these activities during the reporting period.	2020 – 2021
	Implement programs that specifically target child labor in agriculture.	2010 – 2021

In 2021, Senegal made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government commenced activities for the 2021–2023 National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Human Beings and launched a program to support children living and working on the streets. It also held trainings for labor inspectors focused on data collection on child labor in the informal economy. However, children in Senegal are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging. Children also perform dangerous tasks in gold mining, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Hazardous work prohibitions do not include domestic work or street work, areas in which there is evidence of potential harm to child workers, and labor and criminal law enforcement agencies lack resources to adequately enforce child labor law. In addition, Senegal does not have a current national action plan or a national coordinating body for the elimination of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Senegal are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging. Children also perform dangerous tasks in gold mining, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Senegal. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	22.3 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	53.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	13.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		60.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (4)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Demographic and Health Survey (DHS), 2015. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Fishing, activities unknown (2)
	Farming, including harvesting crops (2)
Industry	Mining gold and iron, including washing ore, crushing rocks, using mercury, and carrying heavy loads† (2,3,7)
Services	Welding and auto repair (2,8)
	Domestic work (2,9)
	Street work, including vending (2,10)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in domestic work and gold mining (2,7,9,11)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,7,9,11)
	Forced begging (2,3,9,12-15)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Forced begging remains a significant problem in Senegal. (2,3) It is a traditional practice to send boys to Koranic schools called daaras, where students known as talibés receive a Koranic education from teachers known

Senegal

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

as marabouts. The traditional Islamic practice of asking for alms has in certain instances been corrupted, and some daaras force children to beg all day to collect money to enrich the marabouts. (2,3,9,14,16) Some marabouts set daily quotas and frequently beat or whip talibés who fail to collect enough. (14) An estimated 100,000 talibés are subjected to forced begging, including over 30,000 in the capital city, Dakar. (15) Talibés are often forced to live in overcrowded, unsanitary conditions, receive inadequate food and medical care, and are vulnerable to physical and sexual abuse. (3,14,15) Children from rural areas in Senegal and neighboring countries including The Gambia, Mali, Guinea-Bissau, and Guinea are particularly vulnerable to this practice and are sometimes subjected to human trafficking. (2,9,15,16)

Children in Senegal are exploited in domestic servitude and forced labor in gold mines and are subjected to human trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation, particularly within the country. (2,9,11,17) Children are particularly vulnerable to forced labor in mining and commercial sexual exploitation in the gold producing regions. (2,3,7,9) Adolescent girls are often trafficked from other countries, including Nigeria, for purposes of commercial sexual exploitation around the gold mines in Kédougou. Research shows that traffickers often tell girls that they are going to Europe, then withhold their identity documents and use debt bondage to force them into commercial sexual exploitation in Senegal. (2,7,9,11) Under a system known as confiage, Senegalese parents sometimes send their children, primarily young girls, to live with relatives and family friends to have better educational and economic opportunities, often in exchange for domestic labor. Some girls, however, are not sent to school and are subjected to forced labor and sexual exploitation. (2,9,11)

While Senegalese law provides for free and compulsory education from ages 6 to 16, approximately one-third of children in this age group do not attend school. (18) In practice, only primary school is tuition-free, and supplementary fees are often charged for secondary school. (1,18) Other barriers to education include lack of birth registration documents, distance from schools, and lack of accommodations for students with disabilities. (8,18,19) Poor sanitation infrastructure, including lack of running water and bathrooms, and sexual harassment in schools force some girls to leave school early. According to one NGO, sexual harassment and abuse is widespread in secondary schools in Senegal. In certain cases, when some girls attempted to reject male teachers' advances, they were penalized with lower grades and exclusion from class activities. (2,18,20,21)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Senegal has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention		Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Senegal's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of prohibition of military recruitment by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article L. 145 of the Labor Code; Article 6 of the Decree Establishing the Scale of Penalties for Violations of the Labor Code and Associated Rules for Application (22,23)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 1–3 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor; Article 1 of the Ministerial Order No. 3750 Determining the Types of Hazardous Work Prohibited for Children and Youth; Articles 1–3 of the Ministerial Order No. 3751 Determining the Categories of Business and Work Prohibited to Children and Youth (24-26)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 2 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor; Ministerial Order No. 3750 Determining the Types of Hazardous Work Prohibited to Children and Youth; Article 2 of the Ministerial Order No. 3751 Determining the Categories of Business and Work Prohibited to Children and Youth (24-26)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles L. 4 and L. 279 of the Labor Code; Articles 2 and 4 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor; Articles 1 and 2 of the Law Concerning the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices and the Protection of Victims (22,26,27)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 1 of the Law Concerning the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices and the Protection of Victims (27)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 2 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor; Articles 323 and 324 of the Penal Code (26,28)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 2 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor (26)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 19 of Law No. 2008-28 (29)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 3 of Law No. 2004-37 (30)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 3 of Law No. 2004-37; Articles 21 and 22 of the Constitution (30,31)

* Country has no conscription (6)

Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor bans the use of children in illicit activities, but neither this law, the Penal Code, nor the Labor Code define specific criminal penalties for this offense. (26-28) The 2005 anti-trafficking law criminalizes forced begging. However, section 245 of the Penal Code provides that “the act of seeking alms on days, in places and under conditions established by religious traditions does not constitute the act of begging,” which makes it unclear whether forced begging under these religious traditions is criminally prohibited. (3,27,28) Furthermore, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not include domestic work or street work, areas in which there is evidence of potential harm to child workers. (6,11,24,26) Because the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (22,23,30)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Social Dialogue, and Institutional Relations (MOL)	Identifies and investigates labor code violations, including child labor cases. (2,22) Empowered to refer criminal cases to the Police or Gendarmerie. (2)
Ministry of Justice (MOJ)	Responsible for the enforcement and prosecution of all criminal laws, including criminal violations of child labor laws. (2,32) Through its Department of Correctional Education and Social Protection, coordinates with the Ministry of Women, Family, Gender, and Child Protection (MWFGCP) to provide services to vulnerable children. (2,32) Through its Criminal Affairs and Pardons Branch, collects information and statistics on criminal cases involving forced child labor, child trafficking, and the commercial sexual exploitation of children. (2,32)
Ministry of the Interior and Public Security	Oversees all law enforcement agencies, including police officials who investigate cases of human trafficking and forced child begging, and arrests perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor. Houses the Children's Unit, located in Dakar, which employs three officers who specialize in child protection, victim identification, and reintegration. (32) Through its Children's Unit, receives assistance from the Vice Squad in child protection cases. Through its Air and Border Police ( Police de l'air et des frontières ), focuses on migrant smuggling and transnational crimes. (32)
Ministry of Women, Family, Gender, and Child Protection (MWFGCP)	Contributes to the creation and implementation of child protection policies and provides services to victims of exploitative child labor. Operates the Ginddi Center, which cares for children who are survivors of labor exploitation or human trafficking. (2,9,16) In 2021, chaired a 2-day regional meeting on child protection in West Africa and held informational meetings with religious leaders about the protection of children in daaras . (2)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Senegal took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the insufficient allocation of human resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (19)	Unknown (2)
Number of Labor Inspectors	68 (19)	68 (2)
Mechanism to Assess Civil Penalties	Yes (22)	Yes (22)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Senegal's workforce, which includes over 4.7 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Senegal would need to employ about 317 labor inspectors. (33,34) The labor inspectorate has assigned one inspector and one controller, who assists the labor inspector in their duties, to child labor cases. (2,22)

While labor inspectors are allowed to conduct inspections in private homes and farms, where child labor is widespread, there were no inspections in these sites during the reporting period. (2) In November 2021, the Ministry of Labor, Social Dialogue, and Institutional Relations organized a workshop for labor inspectors on data collection in the fight against child labor in the informal economy. (2) Anecdotal reports indicate that there is a lack of child labor law enforcement in the informal sector, in which most children are employed. Research suggests that the labor inspectorate only has sufficient funding to inspect the formal sector. (2) The Government of Senegal does not have a dedicated hotline or complaint mechanism to receive reports of child labor. (2)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Senegal took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal law enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (19)	Yes
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (19)	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (19)	Yes
Number of Investigations	Unknown (19)	Unknown
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (19)	Unknown
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	3 (19)	Unknown
Number of Convictions	3 (19)	Unknown
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (19)	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (19)	Yes

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts, including the number of investigations, the number of violations found, or the number of penalties imposed for violations related to the worst forms of child labor for inclusion in this report. (2)

The authorities have had limited success in prosecuting cases related to forced begging due to a lack of governmental coordination, resource constraints, and lack of political support. (2,3,9,15,35) Judicial officials often drop or reduce charges against Koranic teachers due to social and political pressures. (15) Although police stations in Senegal are expected to report cases involving children to the Ministry of the Interior and Public Security's Children's Unit, research found no evidence that this occurs regularly. Research was unable to determine how police stations handled cases that were not referred to the Children's Unit. (9) Research also indicates that training for criminal investigators was cursory and not sufficient to fully enforce existing laws protecting children against labor abuses. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the lack of an entity dedicated to coordinating efforts to address child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons (CNLTP)	Leads efforts to prevent trafficking in persons, prosecute perpetrators, and protect survivors. (36) Housed under MOJ. Includes elected officials and representatives from MWFGCP; the National Police; and the Department of Social Services. (2,35) Reports on human trafficking in Senegal and coordinates the implementation of the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Human Beings. (9,35,36) In 2021, organized trainings on trafficking in persons for law enforcement, magistrates, and local elected officials. (2)
Childhood Protection Unit (CAPE)	Housed under the MWFGCP. Coordinates government efforts related to child protection, including through the implementation of the National Strategy on Child Protection. (2) Contributes to the creation and implementation of child protection policies, and is developing a national system for collecting and disseminating data on vulnerable children. Advocates on behalf of all entities working on issues related to child begging, violence against children, and child labor. (37) Brings complaints of child endangerment before the President of the Juvenile Court. (2) In April 2021, CAPE sponsored a workshop for various stakeholders on child digital literacy and protecting children against sexual exploitation online, especially during periods of school inactivity due to the COVID-19 pandemic. (38)
Trafficking in Persons Database (Systraite)	Launched in partnership with the IOM and funding from the USDOS with the aim to track cases of trafficking in persons. Initially piloted in Dakar, Saint Louis, Thiès, Kédougou, and Tambacounda. (17,39,40) Continued to function in the pilot cities in 2021. (9)

While various bodies coordinated efforts to address forced child begging and commercial sexual exploitation of children, there was no active coordinating body dedicated to preventing and eliminating other forms of child labor, including in agriculture and domestic work. (2)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the lack of a national policy covering all worst forms of child labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Human Beings (2021–2023) †	Drafted and implemented by the National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons (CNLTP). (2) Structured around four priority areas: prevention; protection and care of victims; pursuit; and research, monitoring, evaluation, and partnerships. (42) Goals include raising awareness and advocating for legislation, conducting public awareness campaigns, improving capacity of shelters and services for survivors, strengthening the capacity of criminal law enforcement and the judicial system, and improving regional cooperation. (42) In 2021, efforts outlined within the plan commenced, including trainings for law enforcement and awareness-raising events. (36)
National Strategy on Child Protection	Aims to strengthen child protection systems in Senegal and accelerate behavioral change toward child protection. Organized around the pillars of prevention, care, and promotion of children's rights. (32) As part of this strategy, during the reporting year, the government, in coordination with the Child Protection Committee in the Dakar region, continued its program for the withdrawal and social reintegration of street children. (2)

In 2021, the government began the process of updating the National Action Plan on the Prevention and Abolition of Child Labor in Senegal, which expired in 2016. (2)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Removal and Socioeconomic Reintegration Program for Children in Street Situations †*	Government of Senegal-funded and operated program to oversee the removal and socioeconomic reintegration of street children, many of whom are victims of forced begging. (2) Provides assistance to daaras to curb forced begging. Aids child victims by returning them to their families, providing shelter in government-sponsored centers, or placing them in foster families. (2) In 2021, the program spent $603,000 and assisted 10,934 children, including 418 removed from daaras or the street by the government. (2)

Program	Description
Daara Modernization Program†	$18.5 million government-funded voluntary program implemented by Tostan and the African Meeting for the Defense of Human Rights ( La Rencontre Africaine pour la Défense des Droits d'Homme ). Aims to eliminate forced begging and to regulate, inspect, and fund daaras . (19) The program continued in 2021. (32)
Ginddi Center†	Serves abused and vulnerable children, including runaway talibés , street children, and child trafficking survivors. (8,9,16,35) Provides food, education, vocational training, family mediation, medical care, and psychological care in its shelter. (16,35) Supports a 24-hour a day toll-free hotline, staffed by French, Wolof, and Pular speakers, that allows anonymous reporting of cases of child trafficking and/or labor abuse. (9,16) During the reporting period, continued to operate its hotline and provide assistance to survivors of child trafficking and labor exploitation. (2)
Senegal Social Safety Net Program	$108.55 million World Bank-funded project which aims to build social safety nets by providing targeted cash transfers to poor households. During the reporting period, the project continued to provide cash transfers to poor and vulnerable households. (43)
Centers to address child trafficking†	Provides monitoring, education, rehabilitation, and reintegration services for survivors of child trafficking through Ministry of Justice-run transit houses in Dakar, Pikine, and Saint-Louis. (8) During the reporting period, the government continued to provide food and shelter through these centers. (9,32)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

Although the Government of Senegal has implemented programs to address child trafficking and forced begging, research found no evidence that the government has carried out programs to assist children involved in domestic work, agriculture, or mining. (2) Civil unrest for several days in March 2021 temporarily stopped the activities of the Removal and Socioeconomic Reintegration Program for Children in Street Situations program, and as of December 2021, the government has not yet resumed program activities. In addition, sometimes rehabilitated street children who are returned to their families end up again being subject to forced begging in daaras. (2,36)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Senegal (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Establish criminal penalties for the use of children in illicit activities.	2021
	Clarify forced begging provisions in the Penal Code and the Law Concerning the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons to explicitly prohibit forced begging, including alms-seeking, under any circumstances.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that the law governing hazardous work prohibitions for children is comprehensive.	2016 – 2021
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to that which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2021
Enforcement	Publish all relevant information on labor inspectorate funding and on the number of inspections conducted, including those conducted at worksites.	2013 – 2021
	Establish a mechanism to receive child labor complaints, and track cases of child labor for referral to law enforcement or social services providers.	2014 – 2021
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice, provide adequate labor inspectorate funding, and ensure that cases of child labor are formally reported.	2010 – 2021
	Ensure that labor inspections and enforcement are carried out in the informal sector, including in private homes and farms.	2014 – 2021
	Publish criminal law enforcement information on the number of investigations, violations found, and imposed penalties on the worst forms of child labor.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that courts have sufficient resources and coordination to be able to successfully prosecute cases.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that criminal cases involving child victims are referred to the Ministry of the Interior and Public Security's Children's Unit.	2021
	Ensure that training for criminal investigators adequately addresses issues related to the worst forms of child labor in Senegal.	2019 – 2021
Coordination	Establish a national coordinating body with established mechanisms to prevent and eliminate child labor.	2021

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Government Policies	Adopt a national policy to address child labor.	2016 – 2021
Social Programs	Ensure that all children have access to education by eliminating school-related fees, building additional schools, improving school infrastructure and sanitation, ensuring access for students with disabilities, providing all children with access to birth registration, and protecting children in schools from sexual harassment and abuse.	2011 – 2021
	Institute programs to address child labor in domestic work, agriculture, and mining.	2010 – 2021
	Conduct education and awareness-raising activities among families of rescued street children to ensure children are not returned to forced begging.	2021
	Restart the removal activities of the Removal and Socioeconomic Reintegration Program for Children in Street Situations program.	2021

In 2021, Serbia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed a number of guidelines to facilitate improved coordination between social services providers and labor authorities. The Labor Inspectorate also received an increased budget, which allowed inspectors to conduct more inspections than in previous years. However, children in Serbia are still subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and forced begging. Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work. Serbia's laws do not treat forced child beggars as victims of child labor, and the country's social welfare centers are overburdened, which limits efforts to provide services to victims of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Serbia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and forced begging. Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work. (4,5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Serbia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	18.8 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	20.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		97.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (6)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2019. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (4)
	Forestry, activities unknown (8)
	Fishing, activities unknown (8)
Industry	Manufacturing, activities unknown (9,10)
	Construction, activities unknown (10,11)
Services	Street work, including washing cars, collecting scrap material, vending, and begging (1,4,9,12)
	Wholesale and retail trade (8,9,11,12)
	Working in food service, information and communication, and transportation and storage (4,9,10)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,5,9,11,13)
	Forced begging (4,5,14,15)
	Use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,11)
	Domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (16,17)
	Use in illicit activities, including in petty crime (5,9,13,18)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Children from Serbia, particularly those from Roma communities, are victims of domestic human trafficking and the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation. (9,13,18,19) Girls, Roma children, and children from low-income families in rural communities are most vulnerable to child labor, including human trafficking. (1,20)

Undocumented migrants are at a significantly higher risk of human trafficking for the purposes of labor or sexual exploitation. (19) Asylum seekers and grantees are allowed to access free primary and secondary education in Serbia. (1,21) In addition, Serbia has social programs to assist migrant children with access to education. (21-23)

Some Roma, Ashkali, and Balkan Egyptian children in Serbia experience challenges in obtaining birth registration, which may make school enrollment difficult and increase their vulnerability to child labor. (9,14,24-29) The government has a program to increase the attendance of Roma children in preschool, and the law allows children to enroll in school without identity documents. However, uneven application of this policy, economic hardship, ethnic discrimination, language barriers, disabilities, and placement in non-mainstream schools sometimes discourage Roma children, especially girls, from attending school. (14,17,24,26,27,30,31) Roma children are also more likely to begin school at a later age and drop out of school more frequently than their non-Roma peers. (9,25)

Constitutional and legal protections prohibit discrimination in the education system against individuals with disabilities. (14,32,33) However, some individuals with disabilities, especially Roma children, face difficulties in accessing education due to a lack of clear, specified legal regulations and some lingering social prejudices. (24,28,29,34)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Serbia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 24 of the Labor Law; Article 66 of the Constitution (32,35)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 25 of the Labor Law; Article 66 of the Constitution (32,35)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 25, 84, 87, and 88 of the Labor Law; Regulation on Hazardous Labor of Children (35,36)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 390 of the Criminal Code; Article 26 of the Constitution (32,37)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 388 of the Criminal Code; Article 26 of the Constitution (32,37)

* Country has no conscription (39)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (32,40)

During the reporting period, government ministries reviewed a hazardous child labor list created with the assistance of the ILO for potential passage in 2022. (14) Serbia's law does not treat child beggars as victims, but rather as perpetrators and offenders. (4,42) In addition, Serbian law does not criminally prohibit use of a child in illicit activities except when it results from human trafficking. (37) Serbia's law does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation, as the use of children in prostitution is not explicitly prohibited. Additionally, the Serbian Criminal Code's provisions concerning pimping, procuring and mediation in prostitution only refer to "minors," defined as "a person over fourteen years of age but who has not attained eighteen years of age." (37)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Employment, Veteran, and Social Affairs (MOLEVSA)	Through the Labor Inspectorate, inspects businesses, including unregistered businesses. Per mandate established by the Special Protocol of Labor Inspection for Protecting Children Against Child Labor, receives and investigates child labor complaints and informs Centers for Social Work of child labor violations. (14) Has internal sub-units that focus on the protection of children with disabilities and children working on the street. (4) Through the Center for Human Trafficking Victims' Protection (CPTV), identifies victims of child trafficking and those at risk, conducts needs assessments, contributes to human trafficking research projects, and refers victims to social services. (17) CPTV is divided into two parts: the Agency for Coordination of Protection of Trafficking Victims and the Urgent Reception Center. (13,16,24) In addition, CPTV works with state institutions, international organizations, and NGOs on human trafficking prevention and protection efforts and activities. (24)
Ministry of the Interior (MOI)	Oversees the General Police Directorate and enforces laws prohibiting commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking through the Criminal Police Department. (18) Informs the Centers for Social Work of any child labor violations found. (4,16)
Republic Public Prosecutor's Office	Leads investigations on human trafficking cases and exchanges information through a network of 27 local prosecutors and NGOs. Provides financial support to CPTV. (14)
Parliamentary Committee on Children	Reviews draft legislation and monitors the implementation of laws pertinent to children's rights. (14)
Deputy Ombudsman for Children's Rights, Office of the Protector of Citizens	Monitors and conducts research on the situation regarding children's rights in Serbia. Produces reports on child begging, promotes inclusive education and legal prohibition of corporal punishment, and manages draft laws on children's rights for parliamentary approval. (4,14)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Social Welfare Centers (SWCs) provide social services, track the number of street children, and receive reports of labor violations from the Ministry of Labor, Employment, Veteran, and Social Affairs (MOLEVSA) and the Ministry of the Interior (MOI). According to MOLEVSA, the SWCs are significantly overburdened. (14,43)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Serbia took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOLEVSA that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient labor inspector training.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$3,910,898 (17)	$4,242,720 (14)

Labor inspectors are responsible for inspecting registered and unregistered businesses, including businesses in the agricultural sector. (14) The Labor Inspectorate uses a work plan for inspections that is drafted at the beginning of each year and targets high-risk sectors in which child labor is known to occur, such as agriculture and construction. (14,44) In addition, the Special Protocol of Labor Inspection for Protecting Children Against Child Labor requires labor inspectors to use a checklist to identify child labor during inspections and mandates that police and labor inspectors inform SWCs in cases of child labor. The Inspectorate also maintains a hotline number to allow observers to report illegal work activities and other labor irregularities that could impact health and safety at worksites. (14,45) Inspectorate leadership indicated that they had plans to hire new inspectors in an effort to replace a number of retiring staff, though low salaries and a lack of interested pre-retirement age applicants have hindered these plans. (14)

In June 2021, new government guidance entitled "Instruction on Conduct of Social Protection Institutions and Organizations in Providing Social Protection Services to Protect Children from Child Labor" was passed. In addition, in September, the government approved the Instruction on Conduct of the Labor Inspection in the Protection of Children from Child Labor. (14)

The Labor Inspectorate has designated experts on child labor at each of its branches to provide training to other inspectors. (17) However, new labor inspectors do not receive formal training but are trained instead on-the-job by working alongside seasoned inspectors. According to the ILO, this informal training may be inadequate without also including formal training. (4)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Serbia took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient financial resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (17)	No (14)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (17)	N/A (14)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (17)	No (14)

Number of Violations Found	22 (43)	7 (46)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	33 (43)	7 (46)
Number of Convictions	22 (43)	1 (46)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (43)	Yes (46)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (17)	Yes (14)

Training on identifying human trafficking is provided as a part of the general police curriculum given to law enforcement officials who process immigration cases. (47) Continuous training on identifying human trafficking is also provided to one public prosecutor in each of the 25 Higher Public Prosecutor's Offices. However, sources indicated that some agencies responsible for investigation of human trafficking cases lack funding. (4)

Criminal law enforcement authorities continue to adhere to the 2017 Special Protocol of Labor Inspection for Protecting Children Against Child Labor, which authorizes police and labor inspectors to inform the SWCs regarding any cases of child labor discovered during inspections. The SWCs, the primary providers of social services to human trafficking victims, also assist authorities with child trafficking cases. (17)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of efficacy in allocation of human and financial resources.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Council for Children's Rights	Coordinates government efforts to address child labor by monitoring and evaluating government activities, and includes representatives from international organizations and government ministries, such as MOLEVSA. (17) During the reporting period, the Council was active and held a number of meetings. (14)
National Council for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings (Anti-Trafficking Council)	Sets government policies on human trafficking; chaired by MOI. Drafts updated annual standard operating procedures for CPTV. (4) The National Coordinator for Combating Trafficking in Persons acts as the Secretary of the Council and manages the work of the implementation team. (17) In April 2021, the President of the Anti-Trafficking Council (the Minister of the Interior) formed a working group to draft a new annual National Action Plan under the 2017–2027 Strategy for Prevention of Trafficking in Human Beings. In addition, the President of the Council adopted a Decision on forming a working group to improve proactive detection of human trafficking cases, encourage effective prosecution strategies, and create an environment that supports the legal protection of victims of human trafficking. (14)
Refugee Protection Working Group	Serves as the main mechanism for coordinating non-food related services to refugees, including children, and shares information on protection of refugees. Co-chaired by UNHCR and the Commissariat for Refugees and Migration, with the participation of NGOs, local governments, and international organizations. (14) During the reporting period, the Working Group met on a monthly basis. (14)

The position of National Coordinator for Combating Trafficking in Persons continues to experience constraints on time and financial resources. (24,43)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant Roma policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Roadmap for Eliminating Abuse of Child Labor in Serbia (2018–2022)	Creates a roadmap for eliminating the worst forms of child labor. Focuses on the prevention and elimination of child abuse, support for children working on the streets and vulnerable families, the creation of a system within SWCs to monitor and record risks of child labor, and continuous development for professional workers. (48) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
Action Plan for Protection of Children from Violence (2018–2022)	Prevents violence against children and extends support to children who have been victims of violence. (49,50) Part of the Roadmap for Eliminating Abuse of Child Labor in Serbia. Includes enhanced interventions for the protection of children from violence, including the usage of organizational mechanisms to ensure compliance with national law in ensuring children's safety. (49) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
Strategy for Preventing and Suppressing Human Trafficking and Action Plan (2017–2022)	Creates a legislative framework, budget, benchmarks, and strategic areas in need of improvement to address human trafficking. (11,51) In September 2021, the Ministry of Education, Science, and Technological Development collaborated with the Council of Europe to revise the list of indicators utilized to identify children who are potential victims of human trafficking. (14)
Protocol on Rules and Procedures for the Institutions and Organizations Working with Children Involved in Life and Work on the Streets of Belgrade	Aims to enhance institutional cooperation among MOI, the Criminal Police Directorate, the Communal Police, city SWCs, the Belgrade City Secretariat for Education, the Belgrade City Secretariat for Health, and civil society organizations. (52) Defines street children, worst forms of child labor, child work, and child trafficking. (17,52) Stipulates lead institutions, rules, and procedures for interacting with street children. The first round of training on the Protocol was funded by Save the Children. (17) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
National Strategy for Roma Inclusion (2016–2025)	Seeks to include representatives from Roma communities in policy implementation and aims to improve access to education for the Roma population in Serbia, including access to preschool. (53) During the reporting period, representatives of the National Assembly of Serbia, the National Council of the Roma National Minority, civil society organizations, and international bodies attended a technical meeting that covered topics such as the consequences of the COVID-19 pandemic on the Roma community and how to address poverty, gender inequality, and discrimination. (54)

During the reporting period, the government worked with the UN to draft a new Development Partnership Framework. (14) In addition, the government worked with the ILO to establish a new Instruction on Conduct of Social Protection Institutions and Organizations in Providing Social Protection Services to Protect Children from Child Labor. These guidelines will be utilized by entities that work in the realm of social protection and will include indicators of potential child labor issues. (14) Child labor elimination and prevention strategies should be further integrated into the National Strategy for Roma Inclusion (2016–2025). (12)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10).

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Access to Education Programs†	World Bank, Ministry of Finance, and Ministry of Education, Science, and Technological Development project that aims to improve access to early childhood education for socially disadvantaged children. (55) Research was unable to determine whether this program was active during the reporting period.
Assistance to Roma Children in Education	World Bank, Ministry of Finance, and Ministry of Education, Science, and Technological Development project that aims to improve access to early childhood education for socially disadvantaged children. (55) In June 2021, the Government of Serbia collaborated with the European Commission to host a six-session technical meeting on the social inclusion of the Roma community. The sessions focused on Roma education and employment, in addition to housing, healthcare, and social welfare policies. (54)
Belgrade Children's Shelter†	Social welfare institution funded by the City of Belgrade; opened in 2019. (4) Caters to vulnerable children ages 7 to 18. Provides accommodation services and daytime shelter services to meet the needs of young people and street children, who are subsequently referred to competent social work centers and judicial authorities. (4) The shelter was operational during the reporting period. (56)

Program	Description
Strengthening the Identification and Protection of Victims of Trafficking†	IOM, CPTV, and MOI project that contributes to the implementation of the National Anti-Trafficking Strategy by improving mechanisms for the prevention and identification of victims of human trafficking. (25) MOI, MOLEVSA, and the Public Prosecution Office signed a Memorandum on Cooperation in the Field of Suppression of Human Trafficking and the Rights Protection of Human Trafficking Victims. The Memorandum defines mutual rights in the identification of human trafficking, assistance and protection of victims, and statistical reporting. (9,13,57) During the reporting period, CPTV continued to provide victims of human trafficking with guidance and counseling during legal proceedings. In addition, MOI formed three working groups to draft the 2021–2022 Action Plan for the Strategy for Prevention of Trafficking in Human Beings 2017–2027, to monitor and implement the Action Plan, and to encourage proactive human trafficking investigations. (15)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAPI6) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor	USDOL-funded global project implemented by ILO to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to address child labor and forced labor. (17,58) In Serbia, the project aims to build the capacity of the government and other stakeholders to address child labor in part by providing support for the country's first National Child Labor Survey. (58) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (9,13,59)

The Government of Serbia has implemented other programs on child labor and inclusive education, including the Inclusive Early Childhood Education and Care program, which is coordinated by the Ministry of Finance; the Ministry of Education, Science, and Technology; and the World Bank. In addition, the national Child Allowance Program increased the monthly payment amount of cash benefits available for families with at-risk children ages 7 or older. (14,60,61)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Serbia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law does not treat child beggars as criminals.	2017 – 2021
	Finalize and adopt the hazardous child labor list.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2021
	Ensure that the use of children for prostitution is criminally prohibited.	2021
Enforcement	Ensure that staff members at Social Welfare Centers have sufficient resources, such as personnel and funding, to address the specific needs of child trafficking victims.	2015 – 2021
	Train new labor inspectors on child labor and provide training on new laws related to child labor to all labor inspectors.	2015 – 2021
	Ensure that criminal investigators and agencies addressing human trafficking have the necessary funding and training to conduct thorough investigations.	2010 – 2021
	Publish data pertaining to labor law enforcement efforts, including the number of child labor penalties imposed that were collected and whether routine inspections were targeted.	2021
	Ensure that the National Coordinator for Combating Trafficking in Persons has a level of financial support that facilitates efforts to eliminate child labor.	2015 – 2021
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Strategy for Roma Inclusion.	2017 – 2021
	Publish information on key policies undertaken to combat child labor.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement the 2018–2022 Roadmap for Eliminating Abuse of Child Labor in Serbia.	2021
Social Programs	Address barriers to education, including access to birth registration documentation; increase access to education for children with disabilities; and increase access and retention rates for minority populations, particularly migrant and Roma children.	2013 – 2021
	Conduct research to determine the activities carried out by children engaged in child labor, including those in farming and construction.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that the Access to Education Programs initiative is active.	2021

In 2021, Sierra Leone made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government ratified the Protocol of the Forced Labor Convention, the Domestic Workers Convention, and Migrant Workers (Supplementary Provisions) Convention, as well as the Economic Community of West African States Convention on Mutual Assistance in Criminal Matters, providing the government with additional tools to apprehend and prosecute human traffickers. Sierra Leone also launched the National Policy on Radical Inclusion in Schools with the aim of ensuring education access to all children in the country. However, children in Sierra Leone are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and forced labor in mining. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in quarrying stone and fishing. The types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not cover all sectors in which child labor is known to occur, and the government does not have a sufficient number of labor inspectors to adequately enforce labor laws throughout the country. In addition, Sierra Leone lacks a national policy and social program to address all relevant worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Sierra Leone are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and forced labor in mining. Children also perform dangerous tasks in quarrying stone and fishing. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Sierra Leone. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	35.1 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	78.2
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	32.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		87.2

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020 published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (2)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2017. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cultivation of cassava, oil (palm), cocoa, coffee, peanuts, rice, and processing garri flour (4)
	Fishing,† including artisanal fishing (1,4-6)
Industry	Mining† for diamonds, gold, and sand (1,5-7)
	Quarrying† and crushing stone, including granite, and shoveling gravel (1,5-7)
	Construction, including housing construction, and serving as laborers for contractors (1,4-6)
	Manufacturing,† activities unknown (1,5,8,9)
	Production of charcoal (1,5,6,8)
Services	Scavenging scrap metals and recyclable materials from dumpsites (1,10)
	Domestic work (1,5,6,10)
	Street work, including begging, trading, and selling goods (1,5,6,10)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Portering, including carrying heavy loads† (7)
	Working as apprentices, including in auto repair shops and on transportation vehicles, including mini buses and motorbike taxis (4)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced begging (1,5,6,11)
	Forced domestic work (1,5,6,11,12)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, including prostitution, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,5,6,12)
	Forced labor in street hawking, mining, agriculture, scavenging for scrap metal, and motorbike taxi driving, quarrying granite, rock breaking, and mining for alluvial diamonds (5,7,11,12)
	Cultivation of marijuana (5,6)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Sierra Leone is a source, transit, and destination country for human trafficking of children for labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (13-16) Sierra Leone has a form of internal child trafficking called “men pikin,” meaning foster care in Krio, in which family members send children to relatives in urban areas with promises of better educational opportunities. However, some children are instead subjected to forced labor, including in street hawking, domestic work, mining, agriculture, scavenging for scrap metal, and motorbike taxi driving. (5,6,10,11,17) Some children sent to Koranic schools are also trafficked for labor exploitation. (10,16) Research indicates that a decreased number of commercial sexual exploitation cases were reported during the reporting period, likely due to COVID-19 pandemic restrictions. (4,5)

In 2019, the government published a report based on household-level survey data collected in 2018, which included a discussion of child labor in Sierra Leone. However, the data were not fully disaggregated to show the prevalence of child labor among children under age 10. (8)

Despite government initiatives to make education free through secondary school, substantial barriers remain, including a lack of schools and teachers, the costs of uniforms and supplies, limited transportation to schools, and sexual and gender-based violence by teachers and other students. (1,5,6,18,19) In particular, one report indicated that teachers demanded sex from students in exchange for higher grades. (5) Research also found that the government did not pay all teacher salaries, and that unqualified teachers were removed from schools in several rural communities without being replaced, resulting in some schools closing. All of these factors contributed to a high dropout rate, especially among girls. (5)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Sierra Leone has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

In August 2021, Sierra Leone ratified the P029 Protocol of the Forced Labor Convention. Additionally, the government ratified the C189 Domestic Workers Convention, and the C143 Migrant Workers (Supplementary Provisions) Convention. The Protocol and Conventions will go into effect in August 2022. (6,20)

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Sierra Leone's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of specific provisions on light work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Section 125 of the Child Right Act; Section 52 of Chapter 212, Employers and Employed Act (21,22)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 128 of the Child Right Act (21)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Section 128 of the Child Right Act; Sections 47–56 of Chapter 212, Employers and Employed Act; Sections 164 and 170 of the Mines and Minerals Act (21-23)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Part II, Section 2, and Part IV, Sections 14, 15, and 21 of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act; Section 19 of the Constitution of Sierra Leone (24,25)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Part II, Section 2, and Part IV, Sections 14, 15, and 21 of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act (24)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Part II, Section 2, of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act; Section 19 of the 2019 Sexual Offenses (Amendment) Act; Sections 20–34 of the 2012 Sexual Offenses Act (24,26,27)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Sections 7 and 13 of the National Drugs Control Act (28)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 28 of the Child Right Act (21)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Section 3 of the Education Act; Section 125 of the Child Right Act (21,29)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 3 of the Education Act; Section 9 of the Constitution of Sierra Leone; Section 11(c) of the Child Right Act (21,25,29)

* Country has no conscription (30)

The Child Right Act sets the minimum age for light work at age 13; however, it is not in compliance with international standards because it does not limit the number of hours per week for light work, determine the activities in which light work may be permitted, or specify the conditions in which light work may be undertaken. (21) In addition, although the Child Right Act identifies hazardous work prohibited for children, it does not cover scavenging for recyclable materials at dumpsites, in which children are exposed to toxic fumes and smoke from burning trash, sharp objects, and broken bottles. (1,10,11,21,31)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Sierra Leone

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS)	Enforces labor laws in the formal sector via its District Labor Officers. Through its Child Labor Unit, formulates, implements, and monitors compliance with child labor regulations. (6)
Ministry of Justice's Director of Public Prosecution	Undertakes criminal proceedings and prosecutions, including enforcement of criminal laws against slavery, human trafficking, forced child labor, commercial sexual exploitation, recruitment and use of child soldiers, and use of children in illicit activities. (1,6)
Ministry of Mines and Mineral Resources	Enforces regulations against the use of child labor in mining. Authorized to suspend licenses of mining operators found using child labor. (6)
Ministry of Internal Affairs' Police and Transnational and Organized Crime Unit	Leads the investigation and prosecution of sexual abuse, domestic violence, and child abuse through Police Family Support Units, which are mandated to minimize and eradicate the incidence of sexual abuse, domestic violence, and child abuse. Through its Transnational Organized Crime Unit, enforces human trafficking laws and provides statistical data and general information on cases of human trafficking. (1,6)
District Councils	Enforces child labor laws in the informal sector. (6)

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS) held several awareness-raising events on child labor. (6)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Sierra Leone took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MLSS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including a limited number of inspectors and insufficient financial resources allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$40,000 (5)	Unknown (6)
Number of Labor Inspectors	29 (5)	29 (6)

Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Number Conducted at Worksite	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	0 (5)	Unknown (6)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	N/A (5)	N/A (6)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	N/A (5)	N/A (6)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (5)	Yes (6)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (5)	Yes (6)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Unknown (22,32)	Yes (22,32)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Unknown (5)	Yes (6)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	No (5)	Yes (6)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (5)	Yes (6)

During the reporting period, labor inspectors received training on child labor, labor inspections, and monitoring on the worst forms of child labor from the ILO and the Africa Regional Labor Administration Center in Harari, Zimbabwe. (6) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Sierra Leone's workforce, which includes more than 2.6 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in least developed economies, Sierra Leone needs to employ about 66 inspectors. (33,34) In addition, there is a significant lack of resources for labor inspections because the MLSS does not have the necessary funding, and has only one vehicle for inspections. (1,5,6)

Although the Ministry of Mines and Mineral Resources can conduct inspections on mining concessions and revoke licenses from employers who are found to be using child labor, research found that a limited number of inspectors and a lack of funding may have hindered enforcement efforts. (13,35,36)

The practice of notifying employers in advance of inspections may have contributed to the lack of violations found. (37)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Sierra Leone took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient allocation of financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (5)	N/A (6)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (5)	Yes (17)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (5)	Yes (6)

During the reporting period, the government did not provide information on initial training of new investigators, training on new laws related to the worst forms of child labor, any refresher courses provided, the number of investigations done, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions handed out, as well as any penalties imposed for violations. Research found that criminal law enforcement in Sierra Leone, particularly efforts to address human trafficking, is hampered by a lack of coordination, limited funding, and a lack of training of law enforcement personnel and the judiciary. (1,16)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Ministry of Gender and Children's Affairs (MGCA)	Serves as the lead agency to oversee child protection issues, including child labor, in criminal law enforcement efforts, and refers children found through investigations to social services and interim care centers. (1,4) MGCA is currently reviewing the 2007 Child Right Act and the Street Child Strategy. (4) Research was unable to determine whether the MGCA was active during the reporting period.
National Technical Steering Committee on Child Labor	Coordinates efforts to address child labor. (1) Led by MLSS and MGCA and includes representatives from 10 other government agencies, international organizations, and NGO's. As part of the National Technical Steering Committee on Child Labor, the National Commission for Children advises the government on ways to improve child welfare. (1) Research was unable to determine whether the National Technical Steering Committee on Child Labor was active during the reporting period.
National Trafficking in Persons Task Force	Coordinates issues related to child trafficking; supports agencies that provide shelter and services for human trafficking survivors; gathers data on reported human trafficking cases; and meets regularly to develop policies related to child trafficking. (1,5) Hybrid entity made up of NGO's, civil society, and government agencies. Led by the MGCA and the Ministry of Justice. (1,6,17,38) Task Force members met monthly during the reporting period, coordinating the requirements for NGO's which provided shelter and services to human trafficking survivors. (6,17)
Child Welfare Committees	Functions under the MGCA, and promotes awareness of children's rights and report child welfare concerns to officials responsible for children's issues. Provide recommendations in giving support to children, report human trafficking cases, and address inhabitants' complaints and concerns at the village level. (1,4,5,16,17,30) During the reporting period, held an awareness-raising campaign on child labor and human trafficking, among other engagement activities. (6)

Sierra Leone

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The Child Right Act requires the establishment of a Child Welfare Committee in every village and chiefdom (the third level of administrative subdivision, below districts and provinces); however, research indicates that these committees have been established in only a few parts of the country due to budgetary constraints. (21,39)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children (2021–2023)†	Aims to coordinate cooperation between NGO's, international organizations, and government agencies in addressing human trafficking and calls for a review of Sierra Leone's Anti-Human Trafficking Act of 2005. (40,41) The plan also aligns with the ECOWAS Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons. (16)
National Policy on Radical Inclusion in Schools† 2021	Ensures that schools throughout Sierra Leone are accessible to all children, especially those typically marginalized or excluded. In particular, the policy focuses on four excluded and marginalized groups: children with disabilities; children from low-income families; children in rural and underserved areas; and girls—especially girls who are currently pregnant or already parents and in school. (6)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (1)

In January 2022, the government undertook a migration policy review and launched a new policy document which put in place further control measures to ensure that actors in migration processes can coordinate, share information on issues around migration, and fully understand their roles. According to the new policy, recruitment agencies should be registered with the government and vetted by the Transnational Organized Crime Unit before starting operations. (17) In 2021, the government ratified the ECOWAS Convention on Mutual Assistance in Criminal Matters, providing the government with additional tools to apprehend and prosecute human traffickers. (17)

Although the Government of Sierra Leone has adopted the National Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor, including child labor in mining, quarrying, and the commercial sexual exploitation of children.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Trafficking Shelters†	Government-funded program that refers child trafficking survivors to privately run shelters that house child survivors of forced labor and human trafficking. (16) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Child Trafficking Shelters program during the reporting period.
Free Quality School Education (2018–2023)†	A Ministry of Basic and Senior Secondary Education (MBSSE) program that covers the costs of school tuition and fees and provides meals, textbooks, and some teaching materials in remote communities. (1,5,42) In 2021, the MBSSE held a nationwide campaign to inform the public about education by partnering with local councils, radio stations, civil society, and school administrators (6) The MBSSE continued its radio teaching program and its awareness-raising campaign for the Free Quality School Education program. (6)
USG-Funded Projects	USDOS Program to End Modern Slavery funded a study to research the prevalence, methods, and impacts of child trafficking and child labor in Kono, Kenema, and Kailahun. Research continued during the reporting period in the Kambia District of Sierra Leone. (4)

† Program is funded by the Government of Sierra Leone.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (43)

Sierra Leone has too few and underfunded shelters and safe houses for children who have been withdrawn from working on the streets or in forced labor. (11) Although the Government of Sierra Leone has implemented programs to assist child trafficking survivors, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children working on the streets, in agriculture, and in domestic work. (1)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Sierra Leone (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the Child Right Act's light work provisions specify the activities and conditions in which light work may be undertaken and limit the number of hours of light work.	2015 – 2021
	Ensure hazardous work occupations prohibited for children are comprehensive, including scavenging at dumpsites.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2011 – 2021
	Provide labor law and criminal law enforcement officials with sufficient resources to adequately enforce labor laws throughout the country.	2012 – 2021
	Ensure the Ministry of Mines has adequate funding and resources to carry out enforcement efforts.	2015 – 2021
	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts, including labor inspectorate funding, the number of inspections carried out and conducted at worksites.	2011 – 2021
	Ensure unannounced inspections are conducted and cease the practice of employers being informed ahead of time.	2020 – 2021
	Improve coordination between criminal law enforcement agencies and provide sufficient training to enforcement personnel and the judiciary to ensure that violations are adequately investigated and prosecuted.	2014 – 2021
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts, including training for criminal investigators, the number of investigations undertaken, criminal violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions obtained, and penalties imposed for the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2021
Coordination	Ensure that village-level and chiefdom-level Child Welfare Committees are established and operational in all areas.	2014 – 2021
	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020 – 2021
Government Policies	Adopt policies to address child labor in relevant sectors, such as mining, quarrying, and commercial sexual exploitation.	2019 – 2021
Social Programs	Publish activities undertaken to implement the Child Trafficking Shelters program.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that data for household surveys are fully disaggregated and published so the prevalence of child labor at all ages, including below age 10, in Sierra Leone is known.	2019 – 2021
	Institute programs in the education sector to address issues including lack of transportation, increasing the number of schools and qualified teachers, paying teachers' salaries on time, reducing school-related costs, and eliminating abuse, including sexual and gender-based violence by teachers and other students.	2013 – 2021
	Increase the availability of and funding for shelters and safe houses for survivors of forced labor and for children removed from street work.	2009 – 2021
	Institute programs to address child labor in the sectors of agriculture, domestic work, and street vending.	2019 – 2021

In 2021, the Solomon Islands made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government developed a National Education Action Plan for 2021–2025 and held consultations on the process to accede to the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress, and Punish Trafficking in Persons. However, children in the Solomon Islands are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the harvesting of palm oil fruits. The minimum age for work does not meet international standards, and the Solomon Islands has not established a minimum age for hazardous work or delineated the types of work considered hazardous for children. In addition, there is no law that makes education compulsory, which increases children's vulnerability to child labor exploitation. The government also did not publish labor and criminal law enforcement data for the reporting year.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in the Solomon Islands are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-3) Children also perform dangerous tasks in the harvesting of palm oil fruits. (2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in the Solomon Islands. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (4)
Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2022. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Working on plantations, including harvesting palm oil fruits (2,6)
	Harvesting seafood, including diving in deep water (2,3,6)
Industry	Alluvial mining† (2,3)
	Furniture construction (2,6)
	Construction on roads and buildings, including making bricks (2,6)
Services	Domestic work, including working as cooks (2,3,6)
	Scavenging for cans and metal in garbage dumpsites, streets, and streams (2,6,7)
	Working in nightclubs, casinos, and motels (6–8)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,2,6,7,9,10)
	Use in illicit activities, including in the cultivation and trafficking of drugs (2,3,6)
	Forced domestic work, including working as cooks (6–8)
	Forced pickpocketing (3)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Solomon Islands

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In the Solomon Islands, the commercial sexual exploitation of both boys and girls is prevalent near logging camps; near or aboard fishing vessels; and at hotels, casinos, and entertainment establishments. (1,3) Children are also forced to assist in manufacturing and transporting drugs such as betel nut and marijuana. (2,3) Children in the country are vulnerable to forced labor in the agriculture sector and in harvesting seafood. (3) Children are exposed to toxic pesticides on palm oil plantations while tending to, harvesting, and collecting palm oil fruits. (2) In addition, children—mainly boys—are exposed to extreme water depths and temperatures while diving for sea cucumbers. (2,3,6,8) The government provides free education up to grade nine as part of the Fee- Free Basic Education Policy. (11) However, despite the Fee-Free education policy, schools continue to charge fees to cover costs. (8) Moreover, teacher absenteeism, and transportation limitations also make it challenging for some children to access education. (6,8) There are no nationally representative data available on the prevalence and nature of child labor in the Solomon Islands.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The Solomon Islands has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in the Solomon Islands' legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for hazardous work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	12	Article 46 of the Labor Act (12)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No		Articles 47–49 of the Labor Act. (12)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Articles 47–49 of the Labor Act (12)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 6 of the Constitution; Articles 251 and 256 of the Penal Code; Articles 70-79 of the Immigration Act (13,14)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Articles 70-79 of the Immigration Act; Article 145 of the Penal Code (14,15)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 136, 141, 143, and 144 of the Penal Code (14)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A†
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A†

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	No
Free Public Education	No

† Country has no standing military (16)

The Solomon Islands' hazardous work prohibitions do not comply with international standards that require all children under age 18 to be protected from work that could jeopardize their health and safety. While the Labor Act prohibits all children under age 18 from working at night and regulates work in mines and on ships, it does not clearly establish a minimum age for hazardous work or delineate the type of work considered hazardous for all children. (1,12) In addition, the legal framework does not prohibit dangerous work in scavenging or in agricultural activities for which there is evidence of children being exposed to injuries, extreme temperatures, or chemicals. (2,12) The minimum age for work is not in compliance with international standards because the Labor Act permits children as young as age 12 to work. (12) The Penal Code includes heightened penalties if an offense is committed against a child, but has insufficient prohibitions against child trafficking because the transfer of children is not criminalized. (10,14) The law also does not criminally prohibit the use of children in illicit activities. (6) In addition, education is not compulsory, which increases children's vulnerability to child labor exploitation. (17) Although there are no laws that provide free basic education, the Fee-Free basic education policy does provide free basic education for children up to grade nine. This policy does not cover all costs, and still allows schools to request some fees. (2,11,18)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Commerce, Industry, Labor and Immigration	Enforces child labor laws. (6,8) Through its Immigration Division, leads efforts to address human trafficking, including the trafficking of children. (2,19)
Royal Solomon Islands Police	Enforce criminal laws against the worst forms of child labor. (8) Lead investigations of internal human trafficking cases and currently chair the Anti-Human Trafficking Advisory Committee (AHTAC). (10,20)
Business Monitoring Joint Agency Committee	Monitors and investigates cases of transnational human trafficking, specifically in the logging industry. Comprises representatives from the Immigration Division, the Royal Solomon Islands Police, Customs, and the Forestry Division. (21)

While the Government of the Solomon Islands has agencies to enforce child labor laws, research found that the agencies' commitment, coordination, and priorities vary widely depending on their mandates, structural capacity, and budget allocations. (2,6)

Labor Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether labor law enforcement agencies in the Solomon Islands took actions to address child labor (Table 6).

The Government of the Solomon Islands did not respond to requests for information related to its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. Insufficient resources likely hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws, including a lack of budget transparency and enforcement efforts. (2, 17) While the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Solomon Islands would need to employ roughly 9 labor inspectors as its workforce consists of over 361,000 workers. (22)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in the Solomon Islands took actions to address child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021

The Government of the Solomon Islands did not respond to requests for information related to its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including lack of efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Anti-Human Trafficking Advisory Committee (AHTAC)	Coordinates efforts across the government to address human trafficking. (23) Comprises representatives from the Ministries of Commerce, Industries, Labor, and Immigration (MCILI); Finance; Health and Medical Services; Police, National Security, and Correctional Services; Women, Youths, and Cultural Affairs; the Office of the Public Solicitors; law enforcement agencies; NGOs; and UN agencies. MCILI acts as secretariat. (23) Research was unable to confirm if the committee met during the reporting period.
National Advisory and Action Committee on Children (NAACC)	Coordinates government and NGOs to address child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children. (24) Comprises representatives from several ministries, including the Ministry of Women, Youth, Children and Family Affairs; MCILI; and the Ministry of Home Affairs. Several NGOs participate, including Save the Children, UNICEF, and WHO. (25) Research was unable to determine whether the NAACC was active during the reporting period.

The Government of the Solomon Islands did not respond to requests for information on its coordination efforts to eliminate child labor. (2)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan Against Human Trafficking and People Smuggling (2020–2025)	Establishes a coordinated effort to eliminate human trafficking and people smuggling on the Solomon Islands. Led by AHTAC. (7,23) In August 2021, the Government of the Solomon Islands and non-government counterparts met for a national consultation to support the process of acceding to the UN Convention against Transnational Crime and to the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress, and Punish Trafficking in Persons (TIP Protocol). The consultation reconfirmed the Solomon Islands' commitment to the National Action Plan Against Human Trafficking and People Smuggling. (2)
Fee-Free Basic Education Policy	Subsidizes school fees for grades one through nine to increase access to education. (25,26) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Fee-Free Basic Education Policy during the reporting period.
National Education Action Plan (2016–2030)	Provides free primary and secondary education to boys and girls. (27) During the reporting period, the government developed the National Education Action Plan for 2021–2025 that translates the objective of the education plan for implementation across the education sector. (28)
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	A multinational strategic framework, comprising 14 South Pacific nations. Created to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (29) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the United Nations Pacific Strategy during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (29)

The Government of the Solomon Islands did not respond to requests for information regarding its policies to eliminate child labor. (2) Child labor prevention and elimination strategies do not appear to be integrated into the Fee-Free Basic Education Policy. (26) Research did not find evidence that the National Action Plan on Human Trafficking and People Smuggling contains policies to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. (23)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the government funded or participated in social programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in the Solomon Islands (Table 10).

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2021, Somalia made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Federal Government of Somalia and Federal Member States participated in a workshop to validate findings from an International Labor Organization-conducted assessment of child labor in Somalia, which will inform future programming and policies in Somalia, including the National Action Plan to address child labor. The Ministry of Defense's Child Protection Unit also organized a number of training and awareness-raising forums to support implementation of the United Nations-supported 2012 action plans and the 2019 roadmap to end and prevent the recruitment and use of children in armed conflict. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Somalia is receiving an assessment of minimal advancement because it continued to implement practices that delay advancement to eliminate child labor. During the reporting period, there is evidence that federal and state security forces continued to recruit and use children in armed conflict, in violation of national law. In other cases, government security forces detained children for suspected association with armed groups, in some cases subjecting them to lengthy interrogations and coerced confessions. Children in Somalia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in armed conflict. Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work. The government did not conduct worksite inspections in 2021. Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work. Somali laws do not criminally prohibit child labor trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, or the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups. The government did not provide complete information on its criminal law enforcement efforts to address child labor for inclusion in this report.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Somalia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in armed conflict. (1) Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work. (2,3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Somalia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report. (4) In 2019, the ILO funded Somalia's first labor force survey, which included sectoral information on child labor and IDPs. The government published the survey in 2021 and is working with the ILO to validate the statistics related to child labor. (4-6)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including planting, weeding, harvesting, and cleaning and packing crops (1,4,9-11)
	Herding livestock, including goats, sheep, and camels (1,4,9)
	Fishing, including cleaning fish (1,4)
Industry	Construction, including crushing stones, mining, and excavating (1,2,4,11)
	Producing garments and textiles (12)
Services	Working as maids or domestic staff in hotels and private residences (1,9,10)
	Domestic work (1,3,9,13)
	Street work, including shining shoes, washing cars, driving minibuses, vending, and transporting and selling khat (a legal, amphetamine-like stimulant) (1-4,9-13)
	Voluntarily recruited children used in hostilities by state armed groups (1,2,9,14)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Recruitment of children by state and non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict and supporting roles, including as cooks, porters, and informants, or to operate checkpoints (1,3,4,14,15)
	Forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, herding livestock, breaking rocks, selling or transporting khat , begging, and construction work (9,12,14)
	Use in illicit activities, including trafficking drugs, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4)
	Commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking (14)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

The Federal Government of Somalia (FGS) maintains limited territorial control outside populated areas and some forward operating bases. Al-Shabaab, a non-state armed group, occupies rural areas in south-central Somalia. (9) In other parts of the country, essential governance functions were provided by state administrations, including the Somaliland region in the northwest. (9,14)

In 2021, as in previous years, Somalia recorded one of the world's highest numbers of child abductions by non-state actors. (16-18) State and non-state armed groups recruited at 1,116 children during the reporting period. (18-20) Al-Shabaab, which forcibly recruited children as young as age 8 into its ranks, committed a majority of these violations, recruiting 854 children in 2021. (18-20) Al-Shabaab fighters infiltrate madrassas and mosques, using deception or coercion tactics to forcibly recruit victims, including children, into sexual slavery and combat and support roles. (14) Al-Shabaab also continued the practice of forcing communities to turn over male children to serve as child soldiers, imposing a financial penalty on families who refused to cooperate. (9,14,16,17,21,22) In addition, Al-Shabaab used children to plant explosive devices, act as human shields, conduct assassinations and suicide attacks, gather intelligence, and provide domestic services. Some girls also were forced into sexual servitude. (2,14,23) Somalia’s numerous clan militias also reportedly recruited children for use in armed conflict. (1,14,17) In Somalia, clan membership is often the primary point for social affiliation and community identity. (24) Children from minority clan households are uniquely vulnerable to forced recruitment by military groups, including at school. (25)

The reporting period saw continued allegations of grave violations against children linked to federal and state government security forces, including recruitment and use, killing and maiming, and sexual violence. (1618,26-28) Perpetrators included federal armed forces and security services, and regional forces and police in Galmudug, Jubaland, and Puntland. (28) In 2021, the UN verified the recruitment and use of children by the Somali Police Force (SPF-75 children recruited), the Somali National Army (SNA-60 children recruited), and the National Intelligence and Security Agency (3 children recruited); Jubaland forces (21 children recruited), Galmudug forces (14 children recruited), Puntland forces (26 children recruited), Jubaland police (2 children recruited), Puntland police (1 child recruited), and Galmudug police (4 children recruited); and clan militia (63 children recruited). (18-20,29,30) Child recruitment is in violation of Somalia's General Order No. 1, which prohibits military personnel from recruiting and employing child soldiers. (14,31)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

As Somalia passes its third decade of internal armed conflict, the country's IDP population stands at 2.95 million, with unofficial estimates approaching 3.2 million. (9,32) IDPs, including children, remain acutely vulnerable to sex trafficking and forced labor. The closure of international borders to contain the COVID-19 pandemic led to an uptick in irregular migration and human trafficking through unofficial border crossings. (33,34) These developments compounded the risks to vulnerable populations, including children. (14,33,34) Many were transited through Nairobi's Eastleigh neighborhood, a known trafficking hub. Research also found that traffickers exploit children from Somalia in forced begging in Saudi Arabia and Djibouti. (14) In Puntland, hundreds of children allegedly were exploited in forced labor or sex trafficking. (35)

Somalia lacks a countrywide birth registration system, further complicating efforts to identify victims of child labor. (9) Prior to the onset of the pandemic, international partners estimated that Somalia's out-of-school population was 3 million, or approximately 60 percent of the school-age population, which is among the highest rates in the world. (36,37) Access to education further deteriorated amidst recurrent climate shocks, protracted violence, and pandemic-related lockdowns. State and non-state forces occupied and damaged schools, further limiting access to educational facilities. (16) The limited number of public schools outside of Mogadishu and high fees charged by private schools also undercut enrollment rates. (9,25) Girls faced additional obstacles, including lower prioritization of girls' education and insufficient female teachers, which negatively affected girls' attendance and learning. (2,38)

Pastoralist communities, which account for approximately 25 percent of Somalia's population, faced additional impediments to education, as their nomadic existence makes static schools impractical. The primary enrollment rate for nomadic or pastoralist children was 3.1 percent. (2) Children and youth among these groups are considered at high risk of exploitation or recruitment into armed groups such as al-Shabaab. (9,25) For many IDP children, nearby schools do not exist; even where donors build temporary learning spaces, IDP children typically experienced disrupted education due to constant movement and unpredictable evictions from their camp homes. (2) Drought conditions and water scarcity likely exacerbated children's vulnerability to recruitment by armed groups and other worst forms of child labor. UNICEF estimates that as many as 420,000 children living under drought conditions were at risk of leaving school. (39)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Somalia has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Somalia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including prohibiting the recruitment and use of children under age 18 in armed conflict.

Compulsory Education Age	No	14‡	Articles 13 and 15 of the General Education Law (44)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 14 of the General Education Law (44)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (44)

It is unclear whether laws enacted prior to the 1991 civil war are still in effect in Somalia. However, in 2014, Parliament issued a public statement citing some pre-1991 laws, which suggests that the FGS continued to recognize relevant historic laws. (5) The Federal Member States (FMS), which are semi-autonomous regions, maintain separate legal systems. (45) Nevertheless, the FGS asserts that the 1972 Labor Code, the Provisional Constitution, and newly enacted laws apply nationally. (2) Officials in the Somaliland region, which has self-declared independence from the FGS, have criminalized human trafficking for the purposes of commercial sexual exploitation and have a draft trafficking in persons law that is pending parliamentary approval. (2,34,46,47)

In 2021, the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (MOLSA) finished drafting a National Labor Code; the legislation awaits ratification in the upper house of Parliament. (2,5,9,48) The draft Labor Code prohibits forced or compulsory recruitment of children for use in armed conflict, however Somalia currently lacks a legal standard prohibiting the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups. (38) During the reporting period, the Ministry of Women and Human Rights Development also drafted the Child Rights Bill, which will bring Somalia's legal framework into alignment with the Convention on the Rights of the Child. (5,21) The law will protect all children under age 18 from prosecution as an adult and will codify a compulsory education age. (5) It is awaiting cabinet-level approval. (2) Currently, however, the gap between the end of compulsory education and the minimum age for work leaves children age 14 vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to attend school but may not legally work. (13,44)

Although the Provisional Constitution of 2012 does not provide a minimum age for employment, the 1972 Labor Code establishes age 15 as the minimum age for work. (40) Moreover, although the Labor Code establishes age 12 as the minimum age for light work and describes the conditions under which it may be undertaken, it neither determines the activities in which light work may be permitted nor prescribes the number of hours per week for light work. Furthermore, there is no comprehensive legislation that identifies hazardous occupations and activities for children. (40) While the 1972 Labor Code enables the publication of a hazardous works list, the government has not determined by regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (9,40)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

The FGS lacks legislation prohibiting human trafficking, including of children, or the use of children in illicit activities. Laws prohibiting the commercial sexual exploitation of children also are not sufficient because the use, procuring, and offering of a child for prostitution, pornography, and pornographic performances are not criminally prohibited. (40) Furthermore, it appears that under Article 405 of the Criminal Code, children involved in prostitution are not protected from criminal charges. The Penal Code requires extensive updating, an effort that the international community has attempted to support without success. (40) Many fines in the Criminal Code equal less than $1, which does not serve as an effective deterrent. (2,43,49)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Somali Police Force (SPF)	Investigates and enforces laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (1,9) The Counter-Trafficking and Organized Crime Unit has six officers. SPF's Airport Police Task Force investigators are trained to recognize trafficked persons based on behavioral indicators and suspicious documents. (34) The SPF Criminal Investigation Division also continued to operate units dedicated to investigating cases of human trafficking for prosecution. (1,34,50,51)
Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (MOLSA)	Investigates and enforces laws related to the worst forms of child labor. MOLSA's regional office in Banaadir employs 35 labor inspectors. (2) MOLSA also maintains an Office for the Senior Advisor on Child Labor under its Department of Legal and Labor Relations. The senior advisor, who oversees a staff of six, is charged with drafting and implementing a National Action Plan to address the worst forms of child labor in Somalia. (2,52,53)
Ministry of Defense	Operates separately from civilian law enforcement bodies and leads efforts to combat the use of child recruitment and abduction by al-Shabaab. (9) Through the Child Protection Unit, screens Somali National Army (SNA) units for child soldiers. (9,10) Raises awareness of child soldier issues, and implements standard operating procedures on protecting children associated with armed conflict. (2)
Puntland Enforcement Agencies	Includes the Puntland Ministry of Justice, which prosecutes human trafficking cases within Puntland. (54) Also includes security forces that investigate and enforce human trafficking laws within Puntland. (54)
Somaliland Enforcement Agencies	Includes the Somaliland Police, who investigate human trafficking within the Somaliland region. (50) Also includes the Somaliland Attorney General's Office that prosecutes human trafficking cases within the Somaliland region. (50)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Somalia took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, the absence of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Somalia may have impeded the enforcement of child labor laws.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

MOLSA formally established a labor inspectorate in 2020, hiring and training 35 inspectors for its Banaadir regional office. (2) However, the number of labor inspectors remains insufficient for the size of the Somali workforce, which includes nearly 3 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Somalia would employ about 75 inspectors. (56,57) MOLSA's mandate allows for inspections based on requests sent by other authorities such as the police, and inspectors are authorized to issue fines indirectly upon approval of a senior advisor in the ministry. However, the labor inspectorate does not have any dedicated funding and research indicates that there were no labor inspections conducted in 2021. (2)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Somalia took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (2)	Yes (51)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (2)	Unknown (1)

Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (2)	No (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2,58)	Yes (2,58)

In 2021, the FGS Attorney General's Office undertook investigations and prosecuted 9 cases of forced labor, involving 30 defendants under the Somali Penal Code; however, research could not confirm the ages of the individuals subjected to forced labor to determine whether these cases were related to the worst forms of child labor. (51) In addition, in July 2021, the IOM reported that approximately 20 girls ages 14 to 16 were referred to Somali immigration authorities as potential trafficking victims. (51) The authorities found the girls' families and returned them to their relatives. However, Somalia lacks a standardized system to effectively respond to these types of cases. (51) The government, working with UNICEF and other NGOs, has established a limited mechanism for case management, family tracing and reunification, and the provision of social services in response to trafficking in persons and other related worst forms of child labor. (34,58)

In December 2021, the Somali Police Force's Criminal Investigation Department, with USDOS funding, established two new anti-trafficking units, one in Garowe, Puntland and one in Baidoa, South West State. (51) Between November 27 and December 2, 2021, investigators assigned to these units completed UNODC-delivered training on the investigation of trafficking in persons and smuggling of migrants cases. (51) Despite these developments, the SPF and other criminal law enforcement authorities remained understaffed and undertrained, and lacked sufficient financial resources to conduct investigations and enforce laws on the worst forms of child labor. (9) Resources to assist victims of human trafficking also were limited to government-operated Migrant Response Centers in Bosaso, Hargeisa, and Mogadishu. (9,34) Government authorities, including in the Somaliland region, continued to rely on the international community to provide support to survivors of trafficking and forced labor. (51) In addition, there were reports that in 2021, the Somali National Police recruited and used at least 75 children in police activities. (19,20,29,30)

A general command order barring the recruitment and use of children by the SNA remained in effect during the reporting period. Nevertheless, government security forces recruited and used children in 2021, highlighting gaps in enforcement and uneven command and control of some units. (59) The Child Protection Unit does not refer cases relating to child soldiers to the civilian justice system; however, it would theoretically prosecute violations in the military justice system. (9) In 2021, FGS security forces (police and SNA) detained at least 136 children, at times in the company of adults, for their suspected association with non-state armed groups. (19,20,29,30) Research finds that detained children have sometimes been interrogated without legal representation and coerced into signing or recording confessions. (17,22,42)

Somalia's FMS command separate police and military forces. These forces are not under the FGS chain of command. (60,61) The federal and regional governments did not provide information on their criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. However, research indicates that Galmudug, Jubaland, and Puntland forces recruited children during the reporting period. There is evidence that a brigade of the Jubaland Security Forces, commanded by Abdirashid Janan, forcibly recruited children during the early months of 2021. (17,33,62) There is no evidence that the FGS or member states prosecuted offenders during the reporting period. (17,33) Moreover, the Juvenile Justice Law of Puntland defines a child as anyone age 14 and under; consequently, the government detained and issued prison sentences, including life imprisonment, to children over age 14 for their association with armed groups. (22,63)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The FGS has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Child Protection Unit (CPU), Ministry of Defense	Raises awareness of child soldier issues and works with international partners and donors to implement standard operating procedures on protecting children associated with armed conflict. (2,34) Works in concert with the SPF, which is responsible for investigating and enforcing laws against the worst forms of child labor. (2) In 2021, the Federal Government of Somalia (FGS) continued to rely on CPU to screen SNA forces for underage recruits and more broadly raise awareness of child soldiers in Somalia, screening 3,296 SNA personnel during the reporting period. (51,64,65) CPU also conducted training and awareness campaigns to prevent the recruitment and use of child soldiers, which included an event commemorating the International Day Against the Use of Child Soldiers. (65) Finally, CPU continued to make progress on its African Union Mission in Somalia (AMISOM) transition strategy, including through capacity building and training. (1,64)
Children Associated with Armed Conflict Working Group (CAACWG)	Implements the 2012 Action Plan to Eliminate Recruitment and Use of Child Soldiers and the Action Plan to End the Killing and Maiming of Children in Contravention of International Law. (9) Co-chaired by CPU and UNICEF, includes other Ministry of Defense officials, representatives of the Ministry of Women and other relevant ministries, and UN officials. (60,66) In 2020, the government expanded the scope of CAACWG by including officials from the Federal Member States (FMS). (9,34) In 2021, the CAACWG met on four occasions to support the continued implementation of the 2019 Roadmap to Prevent the Recruitment and Use of Children in Armed Conflict. (65)
Human Trafficking Task Forces	FGS, Puntland, and the Somaliland region maintain different coordinating bodies to combat human trafficking. The Office of the Special Envoy for Children and Migrants' Rights, which includes a Task Force on Human Trafficking and Smuggling, leads FGS' anti-trafficking efforts. (23) It was inactive during the reporting period. (51) Separately, Puntland's Counter-Trafficking Board leads the state's anti-trafficking efforts. Somaliland's Counter-Human Trafficking Agency also coordinates the development of legislation and the collection of data in the semi-autonomous region. (23) Resources to assist victims of human trafficking were limited to government-operated Migrant Response Centers in Bosaso, Hargeisa, and Mogadishu during the reporting period. As of January 2021, the FGS Special Envoy for Children and Migrants' rights was working from Kenya and possibly had a reduced role in overseeing efforts on migration, human trafficking, and reintegration across the state and regional governments. (34)
Somali National Tripartite Consultative Committee (SNTCC)	Manages implementation of the Labor Code and the National Employment Policy. An ILO-recognized body, it meets quarterly to review progress and has taken on child labor as an area of special concern. (9) The committee has included child labor as a priority focus, which has enabled the ministry to coordinate efforts within the government and between the government and the private sector. (9) The committee was active until 2021, meeting quarterly; however, activities were suspended due to the delayed presidential elections. (1,67)

MOLSA coordinates informally with the Ministry of Women and Human Rights Development and the Ministry of Defense on child labor-related issues. Other law enforcement agencies with whom MOLSA coordinates include the SPF, the National Intelligence and Security Agency, and the Immigration and Naturalization Directorate. (2)

Somalia

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Although these agencies loosely coordinate their activities, there is no formal coordination mechanism to address other forms of child labor, including forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, and herding livestock. During the reporting period, the effects of the pandemic continued to hinder coordination due to restrictions on in-person meetings. (51)

The FGS Ministry of Internal Security, along with other cabinet-level entities, previously chaired a High-Level Task Force on Migration, which included a working group on human trafficking; however, the task force was inactive this year. Puntland independently instituted their own laws and resource mechanisms without coordinating with the FGS. (34)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the lack of scope of existing policies to address all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Employment Policy	Provides the SNTCC with a roadmap for improving labor conditions, including stipulations related to child labor. The policy was designed with ILO support under a Joint UN Project on Youth Employment in Somalia and was adopted in February 2019. (9,48) During the reporting period, FGS and FMS validated an ILO Child Labor Assessment in Somalia, which will form the basis of a forthcoming National Action Plan to Address the Worst Forms of Child Labor. The plan calls for the deployment of a national child labor prevalence survey and numerous stakeholder meetings, including with line ministries from Somalia's FMS. (68)
UN Child Soldier Action Plans	Establish a strategy for identifying and removing children from the SNA ranks through education and monitoring of military camps. (2,69) In 2012, FGS committed to two UN Action Plans to end grave violations against children—the Action Plan to Eliminate Recruitment and Use of Child Soldiers and the Action Plan to End the Killing and Maiming of Children in Contravention of International Law. In October 2019, the government committed to a UN Roadmap to expedite the implementation of the two action plans. (70,71) The adoption of the 2019 Roadmap to Prevent the Recruitment and Use of Children in Armed Conflict will address grave violations, including recruitment and use. (16) Federal governments, including Southwest and Galmudug, made efforts to implement both the 2012 Action Plan and the 2019 Roadmap on ending the recruitment and use of children in armed conflict. Somalia's Ministry of Defense, for example, collaborated with other security forces, including the Somali Federal Darwish Police and the SPF, on child protection-related issues. (17,33)
Somalia Social Protection Policy	Develops and strengthens components of a national social protection system, including safety net programs. Provisions include a guaranteed income floor for vulnerable households and families with children under age 5. (72,73) The tiered policy is designed to protect the poorest strata of society from sinking into destitution, prevent the moderately poor from sliding into extreme poverty, and promote the livelihoods of at-risk populations. (9) The policy focuses, in part, on mitigating the vulnerability of IDPs and other populations to gender-based violence and human trafficking. (1,34) A Shock Responsive Safety Net for Human Capital Project was created to implement the Somalia Social Protection Policy. (74) The project is currently active and provides cash transfers to targeted poor and vulnerable households. As of January 2022, of the 200,000 targeted households, 188,000 have benefited from the project. (74,75)
National Development Plan (2020–2024)	Broad-based security and poverty reduction policy, with provisions for ending all forms of violence against children, including child labor, and developing and implementing a national child labor policy. Under the National Development Plan's Education Sector Strategic Plan, the Ministry of Education launched a primary school curriculum and established a national secondary school graduation examination. (76,77) Research could not determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Development Plan during the reporting period. (1)

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (81)

Although the government has some policies that address child soldiers, research found no evidence of any policies to address child labor in agriculture, industry, street work, commercial sexual exploitation, or domestic work.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem in all sectors.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
ACT to Protect Children Affected by Armed Conflict†	Federal Government of Somalia awareness-raising initiative launched under the auspices of a global UN advocacy campaign highlighting children in armed conflict. (82) Throughout the year, Child Protection Units continued to disseminate radio and print media content regarding the prevention of child recruitment and conscription in armed conflict. (2,19,34) To commemorate the Day of the African Child, the United National Assistance Mission in Somalia and AMISOM, in coordination with the Ministry of Defense and the FMS Ministries of Women and Human Rights Development in Baidoa and Kismayo, organized numerous events. These included the dissemination of awareness-raising materials from the campaign "ACT to Protect Children Affected by Armed Conflict." (19) Civil society, women and youth groups and Somali security forces participated. (19)
Donor-Funded Programs	UNICEF partnerships with the FGS Ministry of Defense to address issues related to the recruitment and use of child soldiers in Somalia. (58) Includes the Defectors Reintegration Program that rehabilitates and reintegrates former combatants, emphasizing the specific needs of former child soldiers, including demobilized female combatants and their dependents. (58) Centers located in Baidoa, Beledweyne, Kismayo, and Mogadishu provide accommodations, medical care, psychological counseling, education, and vocational training to former combatants. (58,83) During the reporting period, the program facilitated the release of 1,041 children formerly associated with armed groups, providing them with reintegration support, including family reunification and access to safe shelters, medical care, and formal and informal education. (39) UNICEF programs also include educational services that provided emergency education packages to 40,723 children, school supplies reaching 20,000 children, and access to safe drinking water reaching 20,723 children. (39) UNICEF-supported awareness-raising campaigns, which focus on the prevention of child recruitment, child marriage, female genital mutilation, and gender-based violence, reached more than 170,000 people during the reporting period. (39) Donor-funded programs also include the WFP Country Strategic Plan, which provides both conditional and unconditional food or cash-based food assistance to vulnerable children. (84) In 2021, WFP provided hot meals and nutritional assistance to 110,000 boys and girls through its homegrown school feeding programs. (85)
Peace Building Fund	$2 million UN-funded project that supports the prevention of child recruitment and the reintegration of former child soldiers. (71) The project, announced in October 2019 in Baidoa, the capital of South West State, supplements SNA child soldier prevention and screening methods and calls for the identified children to be released, rehabilitated, and reintegrated into society. (21,23,71) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the program during the reporting period.
Joint Program on Youth Employment in Somalia	Joint program by the Food and Agriculture Organization, ILO, UNDP, UN-Habitat, and the UN Industrial Development Organization that seeks to improve sustainable employment opportunities for youth and develop their skills to respond to needs in the labor market. (86) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the program during the reporting period.
Global Accelerator Lab 8.7 Project*	DOL-supported global project, implemented by ILO, which will support broader and more effective action under Alliance 8.7, a global partnership to assist UN member states to end child labor, forced labor, human trafficking, and modern slavery by 2030. The project will facilitate dialogue among regional institutions on forced labor and child labor, and encourage regional and country ownership of initiatives to reduce child and forced labor. (87) In addition, the project will support countries, such as Somalia, in achieving their commitments to eradicate child labor, forced labor, human trafficking, and modern slavery, in line with the UN Sustainable Development Goals' Target 8.7, by helping countries replicate promising practices and identify and implement new solutions. (87) For additional information, please see our website.

* Program was launched during the reporting period. (87)

† Program is partially funded by the FGS. (23)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (88)

The ILO supported the MOLSA in conducting a child labor assessment to determine the key drivers of child labor in Somalia. Findings will be used to support the development of a more comprehensive National Action Plan Against Child Labor. (1,68)

Although the FGS implemented programs to address child soldiers and child trafficking, research found that existing programs were insufficient to address the scope of the problem, including in street work and forced labor in agriculture.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Somalia (Table 11).

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Related Entity	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework		Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2013 – 2021
		Ratify ILO Convention 138.	2021
		Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography.	2013 – 2021
		Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2021
		Clarify whether the pre-1991 Labor Code and Penal Code are still in effect under the Federal Government of Somalia.	2009 – 2021
		Ensure that the law's light work provisions specify the activities in which light work may be undertaken and limit the number of hours for light work.	2009 – 2021
		Determine by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, after consultation with employers' and workers' organizations,	2009 – 2021
		Raise the compulsory education age to be commensurate with the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2021
		Criminally prohibit using, procuring, and offering a child for prostitution, pornography, and pornographic performances.	2015 – 2021
		Ensure that penalties for the commercial sexual exploitation of children are sufficiently stringent to deter violations.	2013 – 2021
		Ensure that the law protects children involved in commercial sexual exploitation from criminal charges.	2011 – 2021
		Criminally prohibit child trafficking for the purposes of labor and sexual exploitation.	2009 – 2021
		Criminally prohibit the use of children in illicit activities.	2009 – 2021
		Criminally prohibit the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
Enforcement		Ensure that the labor inspectorate has dedicated funding.	2021
		Ensure that labor inspections are conducted, including in targeted sectors in which child labor most frequently occurs.	2021
		Institutionalize training for labor inspectors, including by training new labor inspectors at the beginning of their employment and providing refresher courses.	2021
		Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2020 – 2021
		Establish a referral mechanism between the labor inspectorate and social welfare services for children subjected to child labor.	2014 – 2021
		Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts.	2021
		Ensure that criminal law enforcement officials receive sufficient training and resources to investigate, prosecute, and convict violators of the worst forms of child labor.	2012 – 2021
		Cease the recruitment and use of child soldiers by the Somali Police Force, the National Intelligence and Security Agency, and the Somali National Army, as well as Galmudug, Jubaland, and Puntland forces and all allied militia. Investigate, prosecute, and punish, as appropriate, all commanders who recruit and use children.	2015 – 2021
Coordination		Ensure that children associated with armed groups are referred to social services providers while ceasing the practices of detaining them with adults, subjecting them to lengthy interrogations without legal representation, eliciting coerced confessions, and imposing long prison terms. Transfer children currently in detention to social services providers.	2015 – 2021
		Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat all forms of child labor.	2009 – 2021
		Ensure that all coordinating bodies are active and able to carry out their intended mandates.	2021
	Puntland independently instituted their own laws and resource mechanisms without coordinating with FGS.	Strengthen coordination between the Federal Government of Somalia and the Federal Member States, including Puntland.	2021

Area	Related Entity	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Government Policies		Adopt policies to address child labor in agriculture, industry, street work, and domestic work.	2018 – 2021
		Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement the Somalia Social Protection Policy and the National Development Plan and publish the results from activities implemented during the reporting period	2021
Social Programs		Adopt a countrywide birth registration system to facilitate identification of child labor violations.	2019 – 2021
		Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible and safe for all children by removing all armed groups from educational facilities, constructing schools outside Mogadishu, removing enrollment fees, and ensuring that girls, IDP children, and nomadic and rural children have access.	2013 – 2021
		Develop programs to address all forms of child labor, including in street work and forced labor in agriculture. Expand the scope of existing programs to address the use of children in armed conflict.	2009 – 2021

In 2021, South Africa made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. South Africa added an additional 484 labor inspectors, bringing its labor inspectorate staffing into alignment with International Labor Organization technical advice. In addition, Statistics South Africa published the results of its Survey of Activities of Young People, a household-level survey on children's economic activities, including child labor. Finally, South Africa began criminal prosecution of seven Chinese nationals who stand accused of forced child labor, human trafficking, and other related crimes. However, children in South Africa are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, forced begging, and use in illicit activities. Social programs are not sufficient to address the scope of child labor, and free basic education is not guaranteed by law.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in South Africa are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, forced begging, and use in illicit activities. (1-3) The 2019 Survey of Activities of Young People found that 5 percent of children are engaged in child labor with the percentage of black South African children engaged in child labor higher than that of other racial groups, and a higher percentage of non-urban children are engaged in child labor in comparison to urban children. (4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in South Africa.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	15.0 (1,559,791)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.4
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	17.7
Primary Completion Rate (%)		92.0

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Survey of Activities of Young People (SAYP), 2019. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including the production of corn (7-9)
Industry	Factory work, including processing cotton to make blankets (10,11)
Services	Food service (1,8)
	Domestic work (8,9)
	Street work, including vending and begging (8,9,12)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,8,9,13-19)
	Use in illicit activities, including in gang-related activity (20-22)
	Use in the production of pornography (13,19,23-26)
	Forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, street vending, cell phone repair shops, and begging (1-3,9)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

South Africa is a destination for child trafficking from both Southern Africa and Africa as a whole. (1,3,18) Young children within South Africa, mostly girls between the ages of 10 and 14 from poor rural areas, are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in major cities including Cape Town and Johannesburg. Traffickers often recruit domestic and foreign victims with promises of jobs and economic opportunity in urban areas. (18) Research suggests that during the COVID-19 pandemic, traffickers turned to online methods, including social media, to recruit children. (1) Government officials have indicated that child trafficking, primarily for commercial sexual exploitation, rose significantly during the pandemic. (27) South Africa is also considered a major destination for child sex tourism, though the impact of the pandemic likely reduced demand. (1,18) Children, especially boys and children with disabilities, are also subjected to forced begging. (8,9,12)

South African children are also subjected to the worst forms of child labor through recruitment and use in criminal activities. Gangs use child recruits, known as "springbokkies," to watch for police, transport guns, deliver illicit drugs, and at times, commit acts of violence, including murder. (20-22) This phenomenon is particularly prevalent around Cape Town in the Western Cape. Children under the age of 10 do not have criminal responsibility under South Africa law, so gangs recruit children to reduce the risk of criminal prosecution for their activities. (22) In recent years, there has been a significant rise of murders committed by children, some as young as age 8, affiliated with gangs. (22) Research indicates that trend continued to accelerate over the course of the pandemic. The school closures and economic impact of the pandemic increased children's vulnerability to recruitment by gangs, which provide food and money in exchange for cooperation in illicit activities. (22)

The South African constitution guarantees a right to basic education and makes education compulsory until the age of 15, and the Government of South Africa indicates that 98 percent of children ages 7 to 17 were enrolled in school. Free education, however, is not guaranteed. (4,9,28) South Africa's Department of Basic Education divides public schools into five categories based on poverty distribution, with the poorest schools receiving the most funding and the wealthiest schools receiving the least. Schools from the lowest three quintiles are designated as "no-fee" schools, and over 60 percent of South African children attend a "no-fee" school. (29,30) At schools that are not designated as "no fee" schools, parents may vote to pass a resolution authorizing the collection of school fees. (30) Despite the fact that parents may apply for fee exemption or subsidies, research indicates that sometimes children leave school due to financial constraints. Even when children do qualify for exemptions, parents must pay for school uniforms and other supplies. (8,9) During the pandemic, moreover, non-payment of fees at fee-based schools increased, making children more vulnerable to leaving education. (31) Other barriers to education include poor school infrastructure, inadequate sanitation and toilets, lack of transportation, overcrowded classrooms, and lack of accommodations for students with disabilities. (32,33)

In the very recent past, children have been denied education due to lack of documentation. Under the Department of Basic Education's former admissions policy, a student application had to be accompanied by the child's birth certificate, and in the absence of documentation, the student had to be conditionally admitted to the school until a copy of the birth certificate could be obtained from the Department of Home Affairs. (8,34,35) Difficulties obtaining proper documentation posed a serious barrier to education, and as of 2017, research suggested that roughly 40 percent of undocumented and foreign children were unable to access education. (35,36) In 2016, the Department of Basic Education in the Eastern Cape announced that school- and nutrition-scheme funding would only be based on the number of students with identity documentation, and shortly thereafter, it directed schools to unenroll students who were unable to produce documentation. (35,37) In 2019, the High Court judge ruled these measures unconstitutional in the Eastern Cape, along with several laws and regulations requiring documentation for school enrollment on the grounds that it violated the constitutional right to an education. The court ordered the schools in question to admit undocumented students on the basis of sworn affidavits from their guardians. (35,37) Shortly thereafter, in early 2020, the national Department of Basic Education issued its own circular in compliance with the judicial ruling to allow access to education regardless of immigration status or documentation. (35,37)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

South Africa has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in South Africa's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of the use of children by non-state armed groups in armed conflict.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 43 of the Basic Conditions of Employment Act (BCEA) (38)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Regulations on Hazardous Work by Children in South Africa (39)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Regulations on Hazardous Work by Children in South Africa; Articles 4–10 of the Basic Conditions of Employment Act (39,40)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 48 of the BCEA; Article 13 of the Constitution; Article 141 of the Children's Amendment Act; Sections 4 and 5 of the Prevention and Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act of 2013 (28,40-42)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 141 of the Children's Amendment Act (41)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 141 of the Children's Amendment Act; Chapter 3 of Criminal Law Amendment Act 32 (41,43)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 141 of the Children's Amendment Act (41)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 52 of the Defense Act (44)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*		Article 52 of the Defense Act (44)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Chapter 2, Articles 1–5 of the South African Schools Act (30)
Free Public Education	No		Chapter 2, Article 5 and Chapter 4, Article 39 of the South African Schools Act (30)

* No conscription (44)

The South African Constitution guarantees a right to education, but free basic education is not guaranteed by law. Article 39 of the South African Schools Act allows certain schools to be designated as "no-fee" schools, but all other public schools may charge fees to ensure a sufficient operating budget if a majority of parents at that school vote to do so at the beginning of the year. (28,30,45)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
South African Department of Employment and Labor (SADOEL)	Enforces child labor laws by conducting inspections of worksites and operates labor centers throughout the country where complaints may be lodged. (2,46) Refers victims to social workers and reports violations to the South African Police Service (SAPS) for further investigation and to the South African Department of Justice and Constitutional Development (DOJ) for prosecution. (2,47,48) Chairs the Implementation Committee on the Child Labor Program of Action. (49)
South African Police Service (SAPS)	Enforces the legislative mandate under the Children's Act to investigate cases involving the worst forms of child labor. (2,50,51) Through its Human Trafficking Desk, monitors and evaluates police efforts to investigate human trafficking crimes, trains investigators, and refers human trafficking cases to provincial SAPS units. (52)
South African Department of Justice and Constitutional Development (DOJ)	Responsible for enforcing criminal laws against the worst forms of child labor. (2) Through its Children's Courts, which are housed within every Magistrate's court, adjudicates non-criminal child protection cases involving child abuse, abandonment, and neglect. (53)
National Prosecution Authority (NPA)	Prosecutes criminal cases, including cases of human trafficking and other worst forms of child labor. (2,54)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in South Africa took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the South Africa Department of Employment and Labor (SADOEL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including inadequate allocation of financial resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$45 million (55)	$47 million (2)

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (8)	Yes (2)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (8)	Yes (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8)	Yes (2)

As the law in South Africa treats child labor as a criminal offense, labor inspectors may refer child labor cases for criminal prosecution. (2,40)

In 2021, the South Africa Department of Employment and Labor trained 68 inspectors, social workers, and other civil servants from the Northern Cape, Eastern Cape, and Gauteng provinces on employment laws, forced labor, human trafficking, and child exploitation. (19) South Africa added an additional 484 labor inspectors, bringing its labor inspectorate staffing into alignment with ILO technical advice. (2) Sources indicate that the inspectorate has limited resources to carry out its mandates. There is also concern that it is unable to attract the best candidates or specialists due to its insufficient budget allocation. (8) Labor inspectors had difficulty accessing farms due to fear of entering private property and concerns for their personal safety when conducting inspections. (8,52)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in South Africa took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including a lack of training for criminal investigators to identify and investigate child labor trafficking.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (8)	Yes (2)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (8)	N/A (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (8)	Yes (2)
Number of Investigations	15 (55)	Unknown (2)
Number of Violations Found	5 (55)	Unknown (2)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	3 (55)	Unknown (2)
Number of Convictions	2 (55)	Unknown (2)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (8)	Yes (19)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8)	Yes (2)

During the reporting period, the trial began for seven Chinese nationals who stand accused of human trafficking, child labor, and several other immigration and labor-related crimes. The 7 defendants were arrested for allegedly running an illegal factory where they forced 91 Malawian nationals, including 37 children, to work processing the inner cotton of blankets using recycled clothing. (11) In December 2021, the trial was postponed to March 2022 due to the illness of a court interpreter. (56) In addition, South Africa prosecuted and sentenced a Nigerian man for the production of child pornography and other crimes. Another Nigerian national was sentenced to three life sentences for charges including human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of a minor. (19) Two South African men, one of whom was a local police superintendent, were sentenced to life imprisonment on charges of human trafficking and rape. The former police superintendent paid the other defendant to recruit young girls between the ages of 8 and 15 for the purposes of sexual exploitation. (19)

Research indicates that the South African Police Service (SAPS) lacked sufficient resources to investigate all suspected cases of child trafficking and forced child labor. In recent years, there has been a steady decline in the number of SAPS officers. (3,19,57) Despite assistance from the NGO community with the operation of call centers as part of their complaint mechanism, SAPS reportedly experienced difficulty properly following up on reported cases and identifying victims of human trafficking during law enforcement activities. (1,3,8) In addition, victim identification and referral procedures were not uniformly implemented. Research indicates that in some provinces, the Department of Social Development only coordinated victim services upon receiving confirmation from SAPS that the individual had been subjected to human trafficking, and as a result, when SAPS did not pursue investigation of a case, trafficking survivors faced obstacles to serviced provision. (19) The government did not provide information on the number of criminal investigations, violations found, prosecutions, and convictions for inclusion in this report. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including lack of efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

South Africa

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Implementation Committee on the Child Labor Program of Action	Supports the implementation of the Child Labor Program of Action, Phase 4, 2017–2021. Led by the Department of Employment and Labor; and includes representatives from government agencies, organized labor, commercial agriculture, and the ILO. (49) The committee did not meet in the 2021 reporting year. (2)
National Intersectoral Committee of Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates the government's anti-human trafficking efforts. Led by the National Anti-Trafficking Coordinator, who is appointed by the Minister of Justice and Constitutional Development. Includes representatives from 14 government departments, including DOJ, the Department of Home Affairs, SADOEL, SAPS, and NPA. (58) Responsible for proposing improvements to anti-trafficking legislation and the national policy framework; supporting the implementation of anti-trafficking activities, including research, public awareness campaigns, and trainings in participating Departments; providing support to Provincial Task Teams (PTTs); and coordinating communication and reporting within national and provincial government structures. (58) During the reporting period, the committee met regularly and engaged with domestic and international actors on anti-trafficking efforts and reporting. (19)
National Rapid Response Team	Provides rapid coordination between national government departments when cases of human trafficking are reported or pending in the criminal justice system. Chaired by DOJ, and includes additional anti-trafficking personnel from National Prosecuting Authority, the Department of Social Development, the South African Police Service, the Department of Home Affairs, the Department of Health, the Department of International Relations and Cooperation, and South African Department of Employment and Labor. (58) Convenes interdepartmental meetings when human trafficking cases are reported, coordinates identification, support, and protection of victims and prosecution of traffickers, and manages case flow. (58) The National Rapid Response Team was active during the reporting year. (19)
Provincial Task Teams on Trafficking in Persons (PTT)	Exist in each of South Africa's nine provinces. Responsible for coordinating meetings with stakeholders, developing regional anti-trafficking plans, and establishing regional Rapid Response Teams. (58) During the reporting year, PTTs held various awareness-raising activities, including webinars on trafficking in persons. In addition, the PTT in the Mpumalanga province collaborated with officials in Mozambique to share information and discuss key trends concerning trafficking in persons across the South Africa-Mozambique border. (19)

Research indicates that the South African Police Service, the Department of Home Affairs, and the South African Department of Employment and Labor often did not fully participate or send representatives to meetings of the National Intersectoral Committee on Trafficking in Persons or the Provincial Task Teams. (19)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Labor Program of Action for South Africa, Phase IV (2017–2021)	Served as the primary policy instrument to prevent and eliminate child labor in South Africa. (52) Promoted government activities by outlining the mandate of each agency to combat child labor. (49) Provided a reciprocal referral mechanism through which SAPS informs SADOEL of suspected child labor cases. (46) Identified lead agencies in the program, including the departments of Labor, Basic Education, Justice and Constitutional Development, Social Development, and Water and Sanitation; SAPS; NPA; and Statistics South Africa. (49,52) The National Child Labor Program did not include a timeframe to meet identifiable benchmarks or to assess the progress and adequacy of implementation efforts. (49) During the reporting period, the South African government continued with activities outlined in Phase IV, including poverty mitigation strategies and the publication of survey data on child labor and children's economic activities. (2,4)
Prevention and Combating of Trafficking in Persons National Policy Framework	Created to support the implementation of the 2013 Prevention and Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act. Sets a framework for interdepartmental coordination on trafficking issues. (58) Outlines the development of procedures and training programs for police and labor inspectors on human trafficking for labor exploitation, including child labor. Enhances social assistance programs to address the needs of child survivors of human trafficking, including psychological and social support, food and shelter, school and community reintegration, and placement and protection in child- and youth-care centers. (58) Set to be updated in 2022 and every 5 years thereafter. (58,59) During the reporting period, the government carried out data collection efforts, awareness campaigns, prosecutions, and survivor assistance activities as part of this policy. (19)

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the South African Education Action Plan or the National Development Plan. (60,61)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Support Grant (CSG)†	Led by the Department of Social Development and the South African Social Security Agency, provides monthly unconditional direct cash transfers to help low-income parents and guardians meet the basic needs of their children. (8,35,52) In 2021, the government increased the CSG by 2.2 percent, and it provided an additional $35 grant to unemployed South Africans, including those receiving the CSG. (2)
Foster Care Grants (FCG)†	Administered by the South African Social Security Administration. Provides monthly payments of approximately $65 (R1050) to caretakers of foster children. (62) In 2021, the government increased the FCG by 2.2 percent, and provided an additional $35 grant to unemployed South Africans, including those receiving the FSG. (2)
National School Nutrition Program†	Provides 1 or 2 meals, consisting of a protein, starch, and fruit or vegetable, every school day to about 9.5 million school children. As of 2020, 77 percent of public-school students received meals from this school feeding scheme. (35) Despite a July 2020 court decision ordering the National School Nutrition Program to continue food distributions during school closures during the pandemic, NGOs reported that some students still did not receive meals during 2021 school closures. In a July 2021 settlement, the High Court of South Africa ordered the Department of Basic Education and provincial education departments to formulate and implement revised plans to ensure that all qualifying learners receive a daily meal under the National School Nutrition Program. (63,64)
Social Relief of Distress†	Run by Department of Social Development and the South African Social Security Agency, provides temporary food parcels, food vouchers, or cash to people in dire material need. The program continued in 2021. (35,65)

† Program is funded by the Government of South Africa

Although South Africa has programs that target child poverty, the scope and reach of social programs are insufficient to address the child labor problem. (4,8) Sources also indicate that around 1.8 million eligible children are excluded from the Child Support Grant, due primarily to issues with birth registration and identification. (8,46,66)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in South Africa (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Establish by law free basic public education.	2018 – 2021
Enforcement	Publish information on the numbers of labor inspections conducted at worksites and the number of child labor violations found.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that sufficient resources are provided to the labor inspectorate to conduct inspections, including adequate protection and security when conducting labor inspections on private property.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement officials are trained to properly identify victims of the worst forms of child labor and human trafficking.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that the South African Police Service has sufficient resources to investigate all suspected cases of child trafficking and forced child labor.	2021
	Ensure that victim identification and referral mechanisms function effectively to provide services to survivors of child trafficking.	2021
	Publish criminal law enforcement data on the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions, and convictions concerning the worst forms of child labor.	2021
Coordination	Ensure that all coordination bodies are active, include meaningful participation from relevant agencies, carry out their intended mandates.	2017 – 2021

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

In 2021, South Sudan is receiving an assessment of no advancement. Despite initiatives to address child labor, South Sudan is assessed as having made no advancement because it demonstrated complicity in the use of forced child labor. Military forces continued to recruit children, sometimes forcibly, to fight opposition groups. Otherwise, the government made efforts by supporting the Justice for Children initiative, which refers victims of child labor to special courts that have judges who are trained on how to adjudicate cases involving minors. The South Sudan People's Defense Force also launched a mobile general martial court in Jonglei and Upper Nile to commence trials for 60 suspected perpetrators of crimes against civilians, including children. Furthermore, the Ministry of General Education and Instructions, in collaboration with the United Nations Children's Fund and the United States Agency for International Development, distributed 15,498 solar powered radio sets to 70,718 vulnerable school children that facilitated lesson access during the first quarter of the year while schools remained closed due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Children in South Sudan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including use in armed conflict, and forced labor in cattle herding. The government did not hold perpetrators of child labor accountable and has yet to ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons. In addition, police continued to arrest and imprison children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation rather than treating them as victims.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in South Sudan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including use in armed conflict, and forced labor in cattle herding. (I-6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in South Sudan.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	45.6 (463,624)
Attending School (%)	6 to 14	31.5
Combining Work and School (%)	10 to 14	10.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		27.4

Sector/Industry	Activity
Industry	Making bricks (9,11)
	Gold mining, † including carrying soil and panning (9,12,13)
Services	Domestic work (9)
	Street work, including vending, polishing shoes, delivery cart pulling, preparing tea, selling black market gasoline, and ticket taking for group transport companies (9,13)
	Working in hotels, restaurants and tea houses (2)
	Collecting scrap metal and empty bottles (10)
	Working in slaughterhouses, including transporting livestock and meat (10)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Forced labor in brickmaking, cattle herding, gold mining, domestic servitude, and market vending (9,14)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (9,14,15)
	Forced recruitment of children by state and non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (6,9,15)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

The 2018 Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in the Republic of South Sudan (R-ARCSS) mandates the release and reintegration of child soldiers by all armed groups. (16,17) In 2020, signatories to the R-ARCSS agreed to extend a UN Action Plan to end and prevent all grave violations against children, including the recruitment and use of children in armed conflict, through August 2022. During the reporting period, this agreement has generally held, reducing the recruitment of children by armed groups and allowing representatives on the National Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration Commission, which is the lead body for identifying child soldiers and children associated with armed forces and armed groups to secure their release and facilitate their reintegration into civilian life. (9,18) Despite this commitment, evidence suggests that the South Sudan People's Defense Force (SSPDF), the national army of South Sudan, continued to forcibly recruit children in 2021. (4,6,19,20)

Since the onset of civil war in December 2013, government and opposition forces have recruited more than 19,000 children. (16,21) Many former child combatants have since been released or are no longer classified as children. (16,22) Although the number of grave violations continued to decline in the first half of 2021, reports indicate a significant increase toward the last half of the reporting period due to the escalation in conflicts between various armed groups in Tambura (Western Equatoria) and Yei (Central Equatoria). (3-5,23,24) During the reporting period, both government and non-state armed groups, including the SSPDF and Sudan People's Liberation Army – In Opposition (SPLA-IO), recruited and used children as young as age 12, sometimes forcibly. (9,19,23,24) The UN Country Task Force on Monitoring and Reporting (CTFMR) verified the recruitment and use of 129 children between the ages of 12 and 17. Perpetrators also included a range of opposition groups, including forces loyal to General James Nando, forces loyal to General Moses Lokujo, the South Sudan National Police Service, the South Sudan Opposition Alliance, and the National Salvation Front. (23,24) In some instances, local commissioners are known to carry out recruitment drives on behalf of the state's National Security Services and the SSPDF. (14,19,25)

In Warrap, elements of South Sudan's National Security Services and SSPDF leverage a cattle extortion scheme to procure children and young men of fighting age. Non-signatories to the ceasefire, including Paul Malong's South Sudan United Front and the National Salvation Front, also forcibly abduct children from their homes, schools, and communities. (16,19,22,26) Children affiliated with non-state armed groups perform active combat roles, perpetrate violence against civilians, and recruit other children. They also collect firewood, oversee checkpoints, and carry out other support roles, including as cooks, porters, spies, and bodyguards to senior officers. (14,27)

Children are subjected to rape and sexual slavery by armed elements; some are forced to serve as "wives" of commanders and members of armed groups. (9,28) This sexual exploitation has political and commercial elements because it is used as in-kind payment for fighters. (2) Reports indicate that persistent flooding, for the third consecutive year, and intercommunal conflict led to continued increase in child marriages and child labor

during the reporting period. Poor families exchanged their young daughters for a bride price or as restitution following intercommunal conflict. (9) Reports further indicate that girls forced into marriages as compensation for interethnic killings may subsequently be subjected to sexual slavery or domestic servitude by their husbands and in-laws. (14)

An even greater number of children fight as part of local community defense forces. (21) Of the 10,000 children engaged in tending cattle throughout the country, many are sometimes used in armed cattle raids by other tribes. (9) Children abducted by armed pastoralists may be forcibly incorporated into heavily militarized cattle rustling networks. Older boys are forced to work as soldiers, herders, or cattle rustlers. (2) Younger children tend to smaller livestock, and teenagers serve as auxiliaries for armed pastoralists or self-defense groups. (21,22) Among certain tribes, cattle raiding marks a rite of passage to adulthood. (21,22) Non-state groups often use children released from armed groups for cattle raiding or intercommunal violence once the children arrive back in their villages. (9)

As of December 2021, South Sudan hosted approximately 2 million IDPs, with 2.3 million South Sudanese refugees living in neighboring countries. These groups, including orphaned children, are at an increased risk of human trafficking and other forms of labor exploitation. (13,15) UNICEF has registered more than 26,000 unaccompanied minors since the onset of the conflict. These children are particularly vulnerable to abduction for forced labor or commercial sex. (25,26,29,30) South Sudan has never conducted a comprehensive child labor survey, so information about sectors in which child labor occurs is unavailable. (16)

Research suggests that border closures and restrictions on regional travel to contain the COVID-19 pandemic led to an increase in human trafficking, as criminal networks exploited unofficial entry points. Kenyan, Ethiopian, and Eritrean business owners recruited and exploited their compatriots who entered South Sudan, including girls who were forced into domestic servitude. (15) Children employed in hotels, restaurants, and construction are forced to work for little or no pay, and some are subjected to sex trafficking. (15) Girls in rural areas, meanwhile, who gather firewood or collect water are also at risk of violence and sexual exploitation. In gold mining regions, children work alongside their families in artisanal mining operations, especially in the Kapoeta area of Equatoria. (9) An estimated 7,600 children are employed in mining, shops, and other work in the informal economy in Kapoeta. (2) There is anecdotal evidence of children selling a drug known as “Five,” a street name for Diazepam, a benzodiazepine. The drug is imported from Uganda and sold and consumed by children on the streets. (2)

Ongoing fighting hindered the government's ability to deliver aid, provide education, and address the worst forms of child labor. (9,16,27) South Sudan's out-of-school rate is one of the highest in the world, with an estimated 1 in 13 children expected to complete a full cycle of primary education. The government does not enforce school attendance, and the majority of children have left school before age 13. (13,25,27,28) In 2020, before the onset of the pandemic, South Sudan's out-of-school population reached a record 2.8 million. Conflict, flooding, and the pandemic, among other shocks, led to additional school closures. (9) Reports indicate that since March 2020, when schools closed due to the pandemic, most schools in the country have yet to re-open. (9) Furthermore, many children are not able to attend school, because their parents cannot afford to pay unauthorized fees that schools and government officials demand. (9) Although these fees are unlawful, the government lacks the capacity to address the issue, and often perpetrates it. This practice disproportionately impacts girls, because families with multiple children, who cannot afford to pay additional fees to cover all children, prioritize educating sons. Underage marriage also prevents girls from attending school. (9)

South Sudan's education sector is chronically underfunded. Public school teachers are paid sporadically, leading to low morale and frequent absenteeism. (2,16) Teacher salaries remain unpaid, contributing to high teacher attrition. (9,13) In addition, ongoing military operations in conflict-affected areas have forced teachers to flee. Armed groups, including government forces, continue to occupy schools in contested areas, although school occupations have decreased significantly in recent years. (2,16) In 2021, armed groups occupied 14 schools and 1 hospital. SSPDF forces occupied schools in Yei, Central Equatoria and Nimule, Eastern Equatoria. (9)

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

Although the Constitution and the Child Act provide for free primary education, in practice, many families must contribute school fees to pay teacher salaries and other related costs, which may be prohibitive. (25,27,31) In addition, children in pastoralist communities generally lack access to schools, materials, or teachers. (21)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

South Sudan has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in South Sudan's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including a gap between the minimum age for work and the compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Section 12 of the Labor Act; Article 25(3) of the Child Act (32,33)

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

There are no regulations governing the Labor Act's implementation. In accordance with the Labor Act, the Ministry of Labor, Public Service and Human Resource Development (MOL) is responsible for issuing regulations to implement key elements related to child labor, including the number of hours and conditions for light work, the exceptions under which children age 16 and 17 may perform hazardous work, and a complete list of hazardous work. (1,33) Drafting regulations will require cooperation between MOL and the Ministry of Justice. (16)

Children are required to attend school only until age 13. This standard makes children between ages 13 and 14 particularly vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor because they are not required to be in school but are also not legally permitted to work. (6,32,33)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, the absence of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in South Sudan may impede the enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Public Service and Human Resource Development (MOL)	Enforces child labor laws, identifies child labor violations, and conducts workplace inspections. (9,16,32,33)
South Sudan People's Defense Force (SSPDF) Directorate for Child Protection	Prevents the recruitment of children into the army, monitors barracks, identifies child soldiers and assists with their release, investigates allegations of child soldiering, and provides training on children's rights to child protection officers and members of SSPDF. Headed by a Brigadier General, serves as liaison between SSPDF and the international community. (16)
Ministry of Interior's South Sudan National Police Services	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (9)
Ministry of Justice (MOJ)	Oversees all courts and prosecutes violations, including those related to child labor. (9)

In 2021, the Ministry of Justice assisted with a UNICEF-funded initiative in South Sudan named Justice for Children. This initiative refers victims of child labor to special courts in which judges are trained on how to adjudicate cases involving minors. (9)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, the absence of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in South Sudan may have impeded the enforcement of child labor laws (Table 6).

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Finance and Planning did not provide any regular funding to the MOL for activities. The Ministry is authorized to retain 20 percent of the fees it collects for work permits and 20 percent of the fines it collects for labor law violations. (9) The MOL divides the revenue from work permit fees between the five directorates within the Ministry to pay for basic necessities such as utilities and some salaries, as well as additional payments for employees. However, since the MOL stopped conducting labor inspections at the beginning of the pandemic in 2020, it lost the labor-law violation revenue stream and was unable to resume inspections in 2021 due to lack of funding. (9)

In addition, the MOL lacked sufficient resources, including vehicles, to investigate labor complaints, including allegations of child labor. (1,38) There is also a high level of absenteeism among ministry staff, and salaries for civil servants in nearly every ministry were not paid for several months, further hindering the labor inspectorate's ability to enforce child labor laws. (1,16)

In 2021, labor inspectors were trained on the application of existing labor laws. (9) While labor inspectors in South Sudan cannot assess penalties, they are authorized to issue citations; however, regulations do not specify monetary penalties for infractions. Labor inspectors can also refer cases to the police and any violations to the Labor Act, including child labor violations, can carry criminal penalties, including imprisonment of up to 5 years. (9,33) Furthermore, although statistics on the number of people in South Sudan's labor force are unavailable, 12 labor inspectors is likely insufficient to address the scope of the country's child labor problem. (6,39)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in South Sudan took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal law enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including inability to prosecute perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021

During the reporting period, the government initiated an investigation of a potential human trafficking case involving youths from Kapoeta, Eastern Equatoria State being trafficked to Uganda. (6)

The first Gender-Based Violence and Juvenile Court was inaugurated in 2020. This specialized court provides dedicated and expedited trials of gender-based violence and juvenile cases, including labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (15) However, the existing five Justice for Children courts in South Sudan have not been staffed due to underfunding. (9)

Due to the pandemic, international monitors maintained limited access to certain regions, and were, therefore, unable to verify alleged violations against children. These restrictions also slowed the verification and release of children associated with armed forces and armed groups in 2021. (40) Furthermore, the government has not established a referral mechanism for other victims of the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation.

In 2021, reports indicate that the CTFMR and South Sudan Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration Commission (NDDRC) and partners helped secure the release of seven children from armed groups. (9) The

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

SSPDF and SPLA-IO forces released 44 children between February 2020 and February 2021. Although both the 2017 Agreement on the Cessation of Hostilities and the August 2013 Punitive Order commit the SSPDF to hold its military officers accountable for the recruitment or use of children, the government has neither investigated nor prosecuted officers who allegedly committed such crimes. (14,41,42)

South Sudan's justice system faces enormous challenges, such as low capacity, insufficient funding, corruption, interference by the government and the SSPDF, insufficient training for law enforcement personnel, and a scarcity of judges, prosecutors, and defense attorneys. (14,43) Reports indicate that prosecutors and law enforcement officials are not familiar with legal statutes regarding the worst forms of child labor. (1,14) As a result, police continue to arrest and imprison children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation rather than treating them as victims. (14)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Technical Task Force on Anti-Human Trafficking and Smuggling of Persons	Oversees the process of ratifying the Palermo Protocol and policy development on anti-trafficking and smuggling of migrants. Members include the Ministry of Justice (co-chair), Ministry of Interior (co-chair), the National Security Service – Internal Security Bureau, MOL, and the Ministry of Child, Gender, and Social Welfare. (44) The government did not allocate a budget for the task force or for other anti-trafficking activities in the 2021–2022 budget. (9)
South Sudan Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration Commission (NDDRC)	Oversees and coordinates the disarmament, demobilization, and reintegration (DDR) of former child soldiers, with the assistance of UN bodies by convening regular meetings with DDR stakeholders. (45) Includes members of the pro-Machar Sudan People's Liberation Army – In Opposition (SPLA-IO) and South Sudan Opposition Alliance (SSOA), along with parties to the Revitalized Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in the Republic of South Sudan (R-ARCSS). (16) Responsible for the negotiation of the release, screening, and registration of child soldiers; reunification with family when possible; and educational placement or vocational training. (41) In the context of child soldiers, the NDDRC, working closely with UNICEF, maintains a network of local contacts (NGOs and community members) throughout the country who work to locate the families of rescued child soldiers, provide them with vocational training, and otherwise assist in their reintegration into civilian life. NDDRC is currently governed by the Action Plan of the Government of the Republic of South Sudan Regarding Children Associated with Armed Conflict in South Sudan, which was signed on February 7, 2020, by all parties to R-ARCSS. (2,9) In 2021, NDDRC oversaw demobilization ceremonies resulting in the release and reintegration of seven children and implemented the Comprehensive Action Plan by establishing Child Protection State Technical Committees in all states. (9) Although the government allocated funds to NDDRC in the 2021–2022 budget, NDDRC never received these funds because the government failed to pass the budget before the end of December 2021. (9)
UN Country Task Force on Monitoring and Reporting (CTFMR)	Screens and releases all children associated with armed groups, and reports on grave violations affecting children in armed conflict. Co-chaired by UNICEF, which leads child protection awareness and sensitization efforts within SSPDF. (16,44,46) Under this framework, UNICEF has coordinated the release of former child combatants in Unity, Western Equatoria, Central Equatoria, Jonglei, and Western Bahr el Ghazal states, along with the United Nations Mission in South Sudan (UNMISS) Child Protection Unit and NDDRC. (47) CTFMR's Joint Verification Committee consists of SSPDF, SPLA-IO, SSOA, the Taban Deng-allied SSPDF, NDDRC, UNMISS, and UNICEF. (48) During the reporting period, the committee conducted 2 capacity-building trainings on the implementation of the Comprehensive Action Plan for 60 senior military officers and all division commanders from all parties to R-ARCSS. (4) Furthermore, 13 knowledge and skills-based trainings were provided to 526 members of security forces, including SSPDF, the South Sudan National Police Service, the National Security Service, and SPLA-IO. (23)
Ceasefire and Transitional Security Arrangements Monitoring and Verification Mechanism (CTSAMVM)	Monitors compliance of R-ARCSS parties through its 12 Monitoring and Verification Teams (MVTs), which are located in 9 conflict-affected regions of South Sudan. (49) MVT units report all violations, including recruitment of child soldiers, to CTSAMVM headquarters in Juba. The mechanism supports NDDRC's mandate of reintegrating former child soldiers and children associated with armed groups into civilian life. (16,50) CTSAMVM provided general support for the disarmament and demobilization process during the reporting period. (13)
Ministry of Gender, Child, and Social Welfare (MGCSW)	Coordinates activities on children's rights and acts as the focal ministry for child protection. (16) MOL refers victims of the most egregious child labor violations to MGCSW for rehabilitation and support services. (2) However, as no violations were uncovered, no victims were referred during the reporting period. (9)

South Sudan

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

While the South Sudan Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration Commission (NDDRC) coordinates efforts to address children in armed conflict, the government does not have coordinating mechanisms to address other forms of child labor, because the National Steering Committee on Child Labor has not been active since it was first constituted in 2012. (9) The Ministries of Labor, Interior, and Justice are responsible for enforcement of criminal laws against child labor, child trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation of children. However, their mandates are not clearly defined, further impeding effective government action. (15)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including insufficient funding.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Revitalized Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in the Republic of South Sudan (2018)	Replaces all components of the 2015 Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in the Republic of South Sudan, including the Joint Action Plan with the UN to Combat the Use of Child Soldiers, and reaffirms commitments made under the 2017 Agreement on the Cessation of Hostilities. (17,51) Establishes the structure of a Revitalized Transitional Government of National Unity and outlines actions to be taken by signatories, including prohibiting the recruitment and use of child soldiers by armed forces or militias, and stipulates that all civilian areas, including schools, shall be immediately demilitarized. (17) Although the release of some children occurred in 2021, signatories continued to recruit or re-recruit children during the reporting period. (9)
General Education Strategic Plan (2017–2022)	Aims to improve access to and quality of education through grants and cash transfers to girls in upper primary and secondary schools, as well as payment of teachers' salaries. However, South Sudan's education sector is largely donor-subsidized, and the government did not allocate sufficient funding for the full 5-year period of the General Education Strategic Plan. (1,52) The Ministry of Education committed to funding capitation grants for primary schools but has not followed through on its commitment. (13) In 2021, UNICEF, in collaboration with the Ministry of General Education and Instructions (MoGEI), distributed 15,498 solar powered radio sets to 70,718 vulnerable school children. (9,53) The sets facilitated lesson access provided through local radio stations during the first quarter of the year while schools remained closed due to the pandemic. In addition, the USAID-supported Education Cannot Wait and Global Partnership for Education distributed school supplies, including kits for early childhood development, recreation, and for students, as well as bars of soaps and buckets to 1,825 schools during the reporting period. (53)
Comprehensive Action Plan to Prevent Grave Violations Against Children in South Sudan	Aims to prevent and mitigate grave violations against children, including the recruitment of child soldiers and attacks on schools. Applies to all state and non-state groups, and came into force under the February 2020 transitional government. (2,18) Parties to the commitment include SSPDF and Riek Machar's SPLA-IO, both of which were listed for child recruitment and use in armed conflict, as well as SSOA. (18) This document contains a list of concrete steps meant to "halt and prevent the violations against children in situations of armed conflict." (2,18) In line with the plan, SSPDF launched a mobile general martial court in Jonglei and Upper Nile states to commence trials for 60 suspected perpetrators of crimes against civilians, including children. Moreover, the Plan's first implementation report was submitted by the National Technical Committee to the High Level Interministerial committee. (5) R-ARCSS signatories agreed to extend the plan through August 2022. (9)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Joint Program for Recovery and Resilience	Joint agreement between donors, USAID, UN agencies, local leaders, and NGOs that aims to re-establish access to basic services, including psychosocial support, education, and economic alternatives for children separated from armed groups. (54-56) The Partnership for Recovery and Resilience was inaugurated in Yambio in 2018, and programs in Torit, Wau, and Aweil were launched in 2019. (57) Held a virtual conference in 2021 entitled “Communities responding to COVID-19 in complex shock environments.” (58)
UNICEF and Donor-Funded Programs	During the reporting period, UNICEF provided training in Juba, Bor, and Weil on the 2017 Labor Act and the 2008 Child Act for police, MOJ officials, and judges assigned to the juvenile courts. This was the first training ever for some of the officials who had handled these issues for years. (9) UNICEF also helped Government of South Sudan officials develop further training guidelines. (9) Between January and November 2021, UNICEF and partners reached 66,349 children with psychosocial support activities in child-friendly spaces, schools, and communities. (59) In Unity State, UNICEF supported the reopening of 24 schools in Panyijiar, Leer, Guit, Mayendit, and Rubkhona that had been closed due to flooding. UNICEF also distributed essential learning materials to 6,234 children, including provision of 7 emergency tents to allow children to resume learning. (59)
Dallaire Initiative (2018–2021)	Romeo Dallaire Child Soldiers Initiative-funded project ($2.2 million). Aims to train 1,200 South Sudanese soldiers, police, and prison personnel on addressing the use of children in armed conflict through behavior change. (12) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Dallaire Initiative during the reporting period.
Alternative Education System	Aims to improve literacy and provide out-of-school populations an alternative to formal education. (52) Includes the Accelerated Learning Program, which implements the MoGEI program primarily targeting children ages 13 to 17 who have reenrolled in lower primary classes. Also includes Community Girls’ Schools, located in closer proximity to rural communities, and the Pastoralist Education Program, which targets children and adults in pastoral areas. (52) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the Alternative Education System during the reporting period.
Measurement, Awareness Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAP 16) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor (2016–2022)	Funded by USDOL and implemented by ILO, aims to address knowledge gaps on child labor through research and data collection, the development of new survey methodologies, and capacity building programs. MAP 16 also supports partnerships to accelerate progress in addressing child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking. (60) The project likewise supports regional and sub-regional initiatives to eradicate child labor and forced labor in Africa. (60,61) Completed work on a three-country study of forced child labor in conflict zones, including South Sudan, which was published in 2021. (61) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.

Although South Sudan has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including in commercial sexual exploitation and child soldiering. In addition, the reintegration and rehabilitation services provided to child soldiers are insufficient to meet existing needs. (1,25,55,62)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in South Sudan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2021
	Raise the compulsory education age to the minimum age for work.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that the Ministry of Labor drafts and issues regulations to implement key elements related to child labor, including the number of hours and conditions for light work.	2020 – 2021
Enforcement	Ensure that the labor inspectorate is sufficiently funded to be able to investigate labor complaints, including allegations of child labor, and to resume labor inspections, including inspections targeting sectors where child labor is known to occur.	2021
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to adequately enforce labor laws throughout the country, including in the informal sector, and collect and publish labor force statistics, which are necessary to calculate ILO labor inspector recommendations.	2016 – 2021
	Publish data related to labor law enforcement, including the amount of funding provided for the labor inspectorate, whether refresher courses were provided to labor inspectors, the number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed and collected, and whether routine or targeted inspections were conducted.	2012 – 2021

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	End state recruitment and use of children in armed conflict, including forced recruitment of children by state and non-state armed groups.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that initial training and refresher courses are provided to criminal investigators and that penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor are imposed.	2015 – 2021
	Investigate, prosecute, and impose penalties on perpetrators, including government officials, who recruit or use children in armed conflict.	2013 – 2021
	Establish a mechanism to assess penalties.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that labor regulations specify monetary penalties for all labor infractions, and that specified penalties are high enough to serve as a deterrent.	2019 – 2021
	Establish referral mechanisms for victims of the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation.	2014 – 2021
	Ensure that prosecutors and law enforcement officials are familiar with the prohibitions on the worst forms of child labor; are trained in implementing all laws related to child labor; and do not treat victims of commercial sexual exploitation as offenders.	2012 – 2021
	Ensure that the Child Act's minimum age of 18 years for voluntary military recruitment is enforced by ending all recruitment and use of children under age 18 by the South Sudan People's Defense Force, the Sudan People's Liberation Movement Army – In Opposition, or associated militias.	2012 – 2021
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to address all worst forms of child labor, and ensure that mandates are clearly defined.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that the Technical Task Force on Anti-Human Trafficking and the South Sudan Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration Commission are funded.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure the South Sudan Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration Commission receives its allocated funds by passing the budget on time.	2021
	Ensure that the Ceasefire and Transitional Security Arrangements Monitoring and Verification Mechanism is active during the reporting period.	2021
Government Policies	Ensure that the General Education Strategic Plan is adequately funded.	2012 – 2021
	Ensure that signatories of the Revitalized Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in the Republic of South Sudan do not continue to recruit or re-recruit children as per the Resolution.	2021
Social Programs	Conduct a national child labor survey, including research to determine the activities carried out by children, to inform policies and social programs.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that children complete their primary education by resuming payment of teachers' salaries and subsidizing other school-related costs, and by withdrawing government forces from occupied schools.	2014 – 2021
	Improve access to education by addressing the lack of school infrastructure, including for pastoralist children.	2012 – 2021
	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement the Dallaire Initiative and the Alternative Education System.	2021
	Increase the scope of social programs to reach more children at risk of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and child soldiering.	2012 – 2021
	Continue to cooperate with child protection agencies, pursuant to Article 2.1.10 of the Revitalized Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in South Sudan, to disarm, immediately release children in armed groups, and transfer them to appropriate social services providers. Ensure that the rehabilitation services provided to child soldiers are sufficient.	2014 – 2021

In 2021, Sri Lanka made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government amended the hazardous occupations list by expanding it to include domestic labor, and amended the Minimum Wages Ordinance, the Shop and Office Employees' Act, and the Employment of Women, Young Persons and Children Act to raise the minimum age of employment from 14 to 16 years. The government also prioritized the fisheries and plantation sectors for awareness activities, conducting various trainings and other awareness-raising programs regarding eliminating child labor. In addition, it prepared a National Strategic Action Plan to Monitor and Combat Human Trafficking (2021–2025) and released a Standard Operating Procedure on the Identification, Protection, and Referral of Child Victims of Trafficking in English, Sinhala, and Tamil in partnership with an NGO. However, children in Sri Lanka are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and forced domestic work. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, it did not impose criminal penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor or publish data on its efforts to address child labor crimes. Research indicates some children in rural areas face barriers to accessing education, including difficulties in traveling to school in some regions and an inadequate number of teachers. Furthermore, the labor inspectorate lacked sufficient staffing or funding to carry out inspections, especially inspections of factories in the northern and eastern provinces.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Sri Lanka are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and forced domestic work. (I-5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Sri Lanka.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	0.8 (28,515)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	98.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	0.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		99.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (6)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Child Activity Survey (CAS), 2016. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including raising livestock (2,4,8-10)
	Fishing, including deep-sea fishing,† processing fish, and selling fish (1,2,4,9-12)
Industry	Manufacturing, including textiles and garments, and food processing (2,4,9,10,13)
	Mining† and construction† (1,2,4,9,10,13,14)
Services	Domestic work (1,2,4,5,9,10)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Vending, in stores and on the streets, transportation, and begging (1,2,4,9-11)
	Work in hotels, restaurants, and offices (9,14)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,3-5,8,15-18)
	Forced domestic work (5,8)
	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking (5,8,19,20)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

The 2016 Child Activity Survey's definition of child labor does not align with international standards because children ages 5 to 11 working less than 15 hours per week and children ages 12 to 14 working less than 25 hours per week in agriculture are not counted as child laborers. These issues may have led to an underestimation of the population of children in child labor in the Child Activity Survey. (9) The ILO and an NGO documented several cases of debt distress among workers at private, smallholding tea estates, which increased the risk of child labor in the tea sector. (1,4) Debt distress can be linked to debts that workers owed to the estate for housing and accommodating their families. (21) NGOs also report that smallholder farmers face labor shortages during harvest times and an increasing cost of labor and production, and often rely on children under the age of 12 to help during the harvest period. (22) There are reports of children subjected to child trafficking internally, including from tea estates, to perform domestic work in Colombo. In addition, child domestic workers are subjected to sexual, physical, and psychological abuse, non-payment of wages, and restrictions on movement. (1,8)

Children, predominantly boys, are also forced into commercial sexual exploitation in tourist areas as part of the sex tourism industry, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,3,4,16,18,23) In 2017, the ILO conducted a rapid assessment of the extent of commercial sexual exploitation of children in the coastal areas and found that most of the children were ages 15 to 17. (15) According to the Sri Lankan Department of Labor, children living in coastal and agricultural areas, mining areas, and firewood-producing areas were vulnerable to child labor. (1,24) During the reporting period, Save the Children released a report on the sexual exploitation of children in the tourism sector in Sri Lanka, which highlighted the increased use of mobile apps with GPS being used to indicate availability of minors for commercial sexual exploitation. The government worked with Save the Children and the International Organization for Migration on research for the report. (4,25) In 2021, local NGOs and media reports of commercial sexual exploitation of children decreased, likely because of the suppression of the tourism industry during the COVID-19 pandemic. (4,5) The government also investigated sexual exploitation of children at a state-run orphanage. (5)

Although the government provides free, compulsory education to all schoolchildren, some children in rural areas face barriers to accessing education, including difficulties traveling to school in some regions and an inadequate number of teachers. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Sri Lanka has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government's laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Sections 7, 9, 13, and 34 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act; Section 6 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons and Children Amendment Act; Section 2 of the Shop and Office Employees (Regulation of Employment and Remuneration) (Amendment) Act; Sections 2-7 of the Factories (Amendment) Act; Sections 2-4 of the Minimum Wages (Indian Labor) (Amendment) Act. (26-30)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 20A of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (26)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Hazardous Occupations Regulations No. 01; Section 20A of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (26,31)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 358A, 360C, 360A(2), and 360A(4) of the Penal Code (32)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 360C, 360A(2), and 360A(4) of the Penal Code (32)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 286A, 360B, 360A(2), and 360A(4) of the Penal Code (32)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Sections 288, 288A, 288B, and 360C of the Penal Code (32)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Sections 20A and 31 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (26)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		358(1)(d) of the Penal Code; Sections 20A and 31 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons (26,32)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 43 of the Education Ordinance; Compulsory Attendance of Children at Schools Regulation No. 1 of 2015 (33,34)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 47 of the Education Ordinance (33)

* Country has no conscription. (35)

In January 2021, the government amended the Shop and Office Employees' Act, the Factories Ordinance, Employment of Women, Young Persons and Children Act, and the Minimum Wages Ordinance to increase the minimum age of employment from 14 to 16 years. (4) In November 2021, the government expanded the list of hazardous forms of occupations under the Employment of Women, Young Persons and Children Act from 51 categories to 71 categories, including domestic work. (4,31,36)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor in the Ministry of Labor	Enforces labor law in relation to the employment of children and young persons, including overseeing labor inspectorate. Receives public complaints of child labor lodged in national and district-level offices. (1,2,37) Receives complaints from other state organizations, including from the National Child Protection Authority (NCPA). Conducts special investigations in relation to child labor and hazardous labor, and takes legal action as necessary. (1,2) In 2021, received 138 complaints on child labor and hazardous child labor. The children were directed for assistance to the relevant care organizations, including the Department of Probations and Child Care Services and the respective Divisional Secretariats. (4)
Children and Women's Bureau of the Sri Lankan Police	Enforces laws on child labor, child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation of children, and the use of children in illicit activities. (8) Also supervises the NCPA Special Police Investigation Unit, which has approximately 40 police officers who investigate complaints involving children, including complaints of child labor. (1)
National Child Protection Authority (NCPA) Special Police Investigation Unit	Investigates complaints involving children, including child labor. (8,38,39) Along with the Children and Women's Bureau of the Sri Lankan Police, receives complaints on commercial sexual exploitation and the use of children in illicit activities. (1) Has approximately 300 child protection officers based in the districts who are tasked with preventing child exploitation and protecting survivors. (1) In 2021, received a total of 171 complaints of child labor violations. Also continued to promote the "1929" child protection app along with a book entitled "The Identification, Prevention and Management of Child Abuse" and a child protection song to raise awareness about the "1929" Sri Lanka Child Protection Help Line. (4)
Department of Probation and Child Care Services	Coordinates services for child survivors of forced labor, human trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation who have been referred by the police and the court. (8) During the reporting period, launched two new programs designed to support children who leave school (Mal Uyanata) and to provide scholarships and housing assistance for children and families (Athwela). (2,40)

Several ministries, departments, and agencies have legal authority for the enforcement of criminal laws against child labor. The National Child Protection Authority, the Criminal Investigations Department of the Sri Lankan Police, and the Attorney General's Department are responsible for the enforcement of criminal laws against child trafficking and forced child labor. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Sri Lanka took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$2,194,101 (2)	$1,933,333 (4)

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (27)	Yes (27)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (2)	Yes (4)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (2)	Yes (4)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (4)

The labor inspectorate is not authorized to assess penalties. Penalties for child labor law violations are available under the Employment of Women, Young Persons and Children's Act, instead of under the authority of the labor inspectorate. (4,26) Penalties include a maximum fine of up to US $50 and up to 12 months' imprisonment. The magistrate's court levies any fines, imprisonment, or compensation for the child victim. (4) The fine is collected by the registrar's office of the court and compensation is normally given to the guardian of the child victim or deposited in a bank account under the victim's name. (4)

In 2021, the labor inspectorate conducted a special investigation of all hazardous fisheries with multi-day fishing vessels in response to a discovery of hazardous labor within the industry. The investigation did not find that children were regularly working the fisheries industry. (4) During the reporting period the Department of Labor also removed four children from child labor and hazardous child labor situations. (4) However, reports indicate that the labor inspectorate did not have sufficient staffing to carry out inspections, especially inspections of factories in the northern and eastern provinces. (1,40) In addition, the ILO reported that the labor department was not funded adequately. Finally, although the hazardous occupations list was expanded to include domestic work, labor inspectors only had the authority to inspect private residences for violations against child domestic workers if a complaint was received. (4,5)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Sri Lanka took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including a lack of resources to carry out investigations.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (42)	Yes (4)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (2)	N/A (4)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (2)	Yes (4)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (2)	Unknown (4)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (2)	Unknown (4)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (2)	Unknown (4)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (2)	Unknown (4)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (2)	Yes (4)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (4)

During the reporting period, the government arrested 41 people in a high-profile child sex trafficking case, including one Deputy Chairman of a local divisional council, 2 police officers, and a Navy officer; the investigation is ongoing. (4,36,43) It also investigated allegations of sexual exploitation of children at orphanages, leading to the arrest of the head of an orphanage, one of its staff members, and the probation commissioner with oversight of the orphanage. While the government stated that the investigation found no evidence of sex trafficking in the orphanages, allegations persist. (5) In 2021, the government also implemented a special case identification system for child abuse and human trafficking cases that prioritizes such cases when scheduling hearing dates. (4,5,36)

There were isolated reports that a lack of awareness and misunderstanding of trafficking led some local authorities to arrest or detain sex trafficking victims for alleged unlawful acts committed as a direct result of trafficking without proper screening; however, the government did not penalize human trafficking survivors for unlawful acts traffickers compelled them to commit when survivors were properly identified. (5,23,40)

Sri Lanka

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Research found that investigators did not have adequate facilities or human resources to carry out investigations. Investigators lack transportation facilities, and the Sri Lankan Police lack facilities to record evidence. (1,2,4,44) Although the government publishes some crime statistics, the Sri Lankan Police do not fully disaggregate criminal data, including cases investigated specific to forced child labor, child trafficking, child commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities. (1,2,4,42,45,46)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor Elimination	Coordinates efforts to prevent and eliminate child labor, including the implementation of the National Policy on Elimination of Child Labor in Sri Lanka. Chaired by the Secretary of the Ministry of Labor; includes representatives from key government agencies, employer and workers' organizations, ILO, UNICEF, and NGOs. (1) In 2021, convened three times and discussed a way forward to finalize a road map on Child Labor Elimination. (4) All members agreed to conduct activities with respect to the "International Year for the Elimination of Child Labor 2021." Also conducted 107 trainings for the fisheries sector and 27 programs for the plantation sector. (4)
NCPA	Coordinates and monitors activities related to the protection of children, including activities to address child labor. Consults with relevant government ministries, local governments, employers, and NGOs, and recommends policies and actions to prevent and protect children from abuse and exploitation. (2) In 2021, worked with Save the Children to release a Standard Operating Procedure on the Identification, Protection, and Referral of Child Victims of Trafficking in English, Sinhala, and Tamil. (4,25,47) Also led a multisector project bringing together 10 institutions including child affairs, education, health, tourism, labor, media, justice, disaster management, defense, and social empowerment. Conducted several consultations under the framework Seven Strategies for Ending Violence Against Children, identified gaps in each sector, and formulated an action plan that is now pending treasury validation before being presented to the Cabinet for approval. (40)
National Anti-Trafficking Task Force (NAHTTF)	Coordinates interagency efforts to address all human trafficking issues, including commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor. Includes representatives from a range of government agencies, including the Ministry of Social Services, Ministry of Women and Child Affairs, Department of Labor, NCPA, Department of Probation and Child Care, Police Criminal Division, and Bureau for the Prevention of Abuse to Women and Children. (48) In 2021, the coordination of NAHTTF was transferred from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to the Ministry of Defense and existing activities continued to be implemented. (4,48)
Child Development Committees	Coordinate activities and exchange information among child protection officers, police, and labor, education, and health officials at the village, division, and district levels. Function in 25 districts and 313 divisions. (8) During the reporting period, the committees continued to meet. (4)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy on Elimination of Child Labor in Sri Lanka	Aims to mainstream child labor issues into national development policies, improve enforcement, and support collaboration with key stakeholders. (49) During the reporting period, the minimum age of employment and the list of hazardous occupations were revised under this policy. (4)
National Child Protection Policy	Established by NCPA as a measure to reduce child sex tourism in Sri Lanka. (1,2) In 2021, established a 5-year action plan to implement the policy, and led a multisector consultation that brought together 10 stakeholders in the child affairs, education, health, tourism, labor, media, justice, disaster management, defense, and social empowerment sectors to identify gaps in each sector and formulate a response. (40)
National Strategic Action Plan to Monitor and Combat Human Trafficking	Seeks to address human trafficking by raising stakeholder awareness, improving survivor protection services, increasing the prosecution of human trafficking cases, and conducting research and data collection. Also seeks to improve coordination among National Anti-Human Trafficking Task Force members. (50) During the reporting period, the new draft of the plan was prepared and circulated among the membership for verification. (4)

Policy	Description
Decent Work Country Program (2018–2022)	Details the priorities and outcomes required to make progress toward the goal of decent work for all. Identifies key areas of work for the eradication of child labor by 2022, including operationalizing the child labor-free zone model in all districts, expanding the inspection system to cover child labor in the informal sector, raising the minimum age for employment to 16 years, revising regulations on hazardous child labor, improving the complaints and referral mechanisms, and regularly collecting data on child labor. (51) During the reporting period, provided technical and financial assistance to the Department of Labor for activities around World Day against Child Labor, led a technical discussion between ILO experts and the Department of Census and Statistics, undertook public activities and awareness programs to mark the International Year for the Elimination of Child Labor, and extended the program to 2024 due to the impact of the pandemic on children's school attendance and the risk of increased child labor. (52)
National Alternative Care Policy	Launched by the Department of Probation and Child Care Services. Includes a section addressing child victims of sexual exploitation or harmful child labor. (2) In 2021, conducted a census of Sri Lanka's child development centers, which is intended to inform a 5-year action plan to implement the policy. (40)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (2,8,53)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including a lack of implementation.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Labor-Free Zone Model†	Local government initiatives that seek to eliminate child labor through the identification of children engaged in child labor, a rehabilitation program, assistance to families of children at risk of engaging in child labor, and an awareness-raising campaign. Operated by the district secretariats, with assistance from the Department of Labor and with technical and financial support from ILO. (1) The program's start was postponed during the reporting period, and it is scheduled to be introduced in 2022, upon receipt of the final guidelines from the National Steering Committee on Elimination of Child Labor. (4)
'1929' Childline Sri Lanka‡	NCPA-funded and operated 24-hour toll-free emergency telephone service for vulnerable and abused children. Connects children in need of help to direct assistance and rehabilitation services. (2,56) In 2021, continued to direct child labor complaints received during pandemic lockdown periods to the Department of Labor for response. (4)
Shelter for Victims of Human Trafficking	Ministry of Women and Child Affairs shelter that provides children and female victims of human trafficking and domestic violence with safe shelter and access to medical, psychological, and legal assistance. (24,57) A magistrate's order is required for victims to receive services at the shelter. (41) During the reporting period, the government provided $62,000 in assistance to operate the shelter. (36)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement (MAPI6) Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor	$220,000 USDOL-funded project implemented by ILO that aims to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to address child labor and forced labor. The project began in March 2020 and is expected to run until June 2022. Additional information is available on the USDOL website. (2,58,59)

‡ The government had other programs that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (1,4,60)

In 2021, the Sri Lanka Coast Guard conducted public awareness programs regarding child labor in the fishing industry. (4) A cash transfer program initiated to support families who have lost their income due to the pandemic continued to be implemented. (2,4) In addition, the Department of Labor launched a film competition and an awareness program that included a YouTube channel to raise awareness of the labor law and five short videos on the hazardous forms of child labor. (4,5,52,61,62) The Department of Probation and Childcare, in partnership with UNICEF and NGOs, initiated a new project that aims to establish a database of children at risk of child labor. (60)

During the reporting period, schools in rural areas with lower rates of COVID-19 transmission resumed in-person education while schools in other areas continued to be conducted remotely. State media and telecommunication providers reduced Internet charges to facilitate remote learning. (4) In addition, the Department of Probation and Child Care Services introduced a new program called Mal Uyanata to assist children who left school and children who are vulnerable to dropping out of school. However, the School Child

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Protection Program, a program designed to empower children to protect themselves from human trafficking and child labor, was not implemented during the reporting period due to school closures related to the pandemic and a teacher strike. (1,40)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Sri Lanka (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Collect and publish disaggregated information on investigations, prosecutions, convictions, and sentences of cases involving forced child labor, child trafficking, child commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities.	2020 – 2021
	Provide investigators with additional funding and adequate facilities, including transportation and facilities to record evidence, and human resources to adequately investigate forced labor, child trafficking, and the commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2011 – 2021
	Provide adequate staffing in the northern and eastern provinces for the labor inspectorate to carry out inspections.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that the Department of Labor has adequate funding.	2021
	Ensure labor inspectors have the authority to inspect private residences for violations against child workers regardless of whether a complaint is received.	2021
Social Programs	Ensure that the definition of child labor used in national child labor surveys to calculate child labor statistics clearly aligns with international standards.	2017 – 2021
	Eliminate barriers to education, including difficulties with transportation to schools and an inadequate number of teachers.	2012 – 2021
	Institute programs to address the risks of child labor in tea estates and in coastal, agricultural, mining, and firewood-producing areas.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement social programs to address child labor.	2020 – 2021

In 2021, Suriname made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government drafted an annual plan to implement its National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor, which includes 21 action points, including the appointment of a Special Child Labor Rapporteur and capacity strengthening for the labor inspectorate. The Trafficking in Persons Working Group also drafted a victim-centered strategic plan and operations manual, which includes consideration for child survivors of human trafficking. Moreover, the government conducted an evaluation of Suriname's implementation of the United Nation's International Convention on the Rights of Children. However, children in Suriname are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. The compulsory education age does not reach the minimum age for employment, leaving some children vulnerable to labor exploitation. Suriname also lacked targeted inspections in risk-prone sectors.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Suriname are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1) Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Suriname. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	7.2 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	95.3
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	7.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		85.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2019, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (4)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6), 2018. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Harvesting crops, applying pesticides,† carrying heavy loads† (6,7)
	Fishing, hunting, and forestry (8)
Industry	Mining, particularly gold mining (1,6,7)
	Construction,† including carrying heavy loads† (6-8)
	Wood processing, including carrying heavy loads† (2,9)
Services	Street work, including vending (7,8)
	Domestic work (8)
	Carrying luggage for airport passengers, including carrying heavy loads† (7)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,6,7)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, including in informal mining camps in Suriname's remote interior. (2,3,10,11) Throughout the coastal areas of Suriname, children work in agriculture, and in the capital of Paramaribo, they primarily engage in street vending. In addition, children, mostly boys, work carrying heavy loads in small-scale gold mines in the southeast region of the country, where they risk exposure to mercury and cyanide. (2,9-11) Children have also been reported to be working in small-scale construction and wood processing companies outside Paramaribo. (2,9) Migrant populations, especially those residing in the country illegally, are particularly vulnerable to both sex and labor trafficking, due to challenges associated with their precarious legal status. (12) Moreover, economic downturn has led to businesses closures and job losses, making children more vulnerable to trafficking as children are increasingly seeking work in order to support their families. (12)

Although Suriname’s net attendance percentage for primary school is high, it drops significantly for secondary school. Research indicates that there are disparities in education completion rates based on geographic and socioeconomic status, and that secondary school completion rates in the interior are as low as 15 percent. (13) Children from low-income households, particularly in the interior, face difficulties accessing education due to long distances to schools, transportation costs, and school fees. (1,7,14) Research also indicates that some LGBTQI+ students are bullied in schools. (15) In addition, children are sometimes forced to engage in commercial sexual exploitation in order to pay for educational expenses or to support their families. (16) Although children who are not citizens of Suriname can access free public education if they provide a birth certificate and vaccination records, there is limited reporting of instances in which children were denied access to education due to incomplete paperwork or their citizenship and residency status. These cases were reported among the Guyanese population in Suriname’s western border district, Nickerie, and the Brazilian population in Paramaribo. (7,17,18) Research suggests that families residing illegally in the country have also kept their children out of school to avoid being reported to authorities. (7)

The COVID-19 pandemic made access to education more complicated for low-income families, and costs of distance learning proved too expensive in the interior and for low-income families, particularly single-income households with multiple children. Schools in the interior did not engage in distance learning and did not develop adequate plans to ensure students caught up on materials and classes missed due to the pandemic. (7) These schools also faced additional closures due to teacher shortages. (7)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Suriname has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Suriname's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of forced labor.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Articles 1 (j–l), 3, and 11 of the Children and Young Persons Labor Act (19)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 1 (k and l) and 11 of the Children and Youth Persons Labor Act; Article 1 of the Decree on Hazardous Labor for Youth (19,20)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 2 and 3 of the Decree on Hazardous Labor for Youth; Article 11 of the Children and Youth Persons Labor Act (19,20)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 334, 338, and 339 of the Penal Code; Article 15 of the Constitution; Article 1 of Law on Labor for Children and Young Persons (19,21,22)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 307 and 334 of the Penal Code (22)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 291, 293, 297, 298, 303a, and 306 of the Penal Code (22)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No

Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	No	12	Article 39 of the Constitution; Article 20 of the Law on Basic Education (21,24)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 38 and 39 of the Constitution (21)

* Country has no conscription (25)

The Constitution guarantees free public education for all citizens, and the September 2014 amendment to the Citizenship and Residency Law reaffirmed citizenship to children born in Suriname of foreign-born parents who would otherwise be stateless are nationals of Suriname. (21,26) Article 20 of the Law on Basic Education requires children to attend school until they are at least age 12. (24) This leaves children ages 12 to 16 particularly vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor because they are no longer required to attend school, but are not yet legally permitted to work. For instance, while 96 percent of working children at the age of 14 are in school, at the age of 15 school attendance drops to 64 percent, and at age 16, it falls to 28 percent. (13)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In December 2021, the Government of Suriname announced that an independent human rights consultant would evaluate Suriname's implementation of the UN's International Convention on the Rights of Children, which is an important step toward identifying a path forward in the implementation of the Convention. (7)

Suriname does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation of children because the use of a child under 16 for prostitution is not criminally prohibited. In addition, while the Penal Code establishes penalties for the production and trafficking of drugs, it does not appear to specifically prohibit the use, procuring, and offering of a child in the production and trafficking of drugs. (22)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Employment Opportunity and Youth Affairs (MOL)	Enforces laws related to child labor. (11) Reports suspected forced labor cases, including the worst forms of child labor, within 45 minutes of identification, to the Trafficking in Persons (TIP) Unit of the Suriname Police Force. (9)
Suriname Police Force	Enforces criminal laws related to child labor. (11) Includes the Youth Affairs Police, who cover law enforcement involving children under age 18 and are jointly responsible for child labor-related crimes. Also includes the TIP Unit, which investigates reports and allegations of human trafficking and forced sexual exploitation nationwide, including cases involving children. (2,9,27)
Prosecutor's Office	Investigates and prosecutes human trafficking cases, and enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (9)
Bureau for the Rights of the Child of the Ministry of Social Affairs	Manages Suriname's reciprocal referral mechanism, which identifies services to children involved in child labor. (7) In 2021, raised awareness of issues related to children's rights through its Facebook page and managed the website of the Integrated Child Protection Network. Also continued piloting the referral system, which was developed in collaboration with UNICEF in 2019. (7)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Suriname took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Employment Opportunity and Youth Affairs (MOL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including lack of targeted inspections in risk-prone sectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021

The Labor Inspectorate was placed at the head of a COVID-19 Cluster Team, a multi-organizational team with representatives from the Ministries of Labor, Health, Justice and Police, Regional Development and Sport, and Defense. Each representative was charged with inspecting a different aspect of pandemic protocols. (7) This effort provided the Labor Inspectorate with the opportunity to expand general inspections for labor law violations, and the high number of inspections for 2021 was largely accomplished through these COVID-19 Cluster Team inspections. (7)

Of the labor inspectors hired in 2020, 6 inspectors completed their basic training and were promoted to junior inspectors in 2021, while 11 inspectors are still in the process of completing basic training. Of the 50 labor inspectors, 25 have received special social inspection training, which includes additional focus on child labor issues. (7) The MOL noted that there is an insufficient number of labor inspectors to ensure the enforcement of labor laws in the informal sector, particularly in mining and agricultural areas, fisheries, and the country's interior. (11) However, all labor inspectors are trained and authorized to enforce child labor laws. (2,9,10) The Decree on Labor Inspection passed in 2017 gave the Labor Inspectorate more tools to adequately perform its functions and updated the legislation for a more developed labor market and new sectors. (7)

Although the MOL does not provide disaggregated funding information, the Labor Inspectorate reported that its funding is insufficient to adequately cover all sectors in the country, including the formal and informal sectors. In addition, high-risk sectors are not specifically targeted because labor inspectors mainly conduct routine inspections in the formal sectors, which have lower incidences of child labor. (2,7,10) High-risk sectors include the agricultural sector in the coastal area, and manufacturing companies and small construction enterprises on the outskirts of Paramaribo. Research indicates that child labor inspections are mostly conducted when cases are reported. (7) No inspections were reported in the artisanal gold mining sector in the interior of the country. (7) During the reporting period, inspections in and around Johan Adolf Pengel International Airport discovered young people from nearby villages who were between the ages of 10 and 15 on the airport grounds offering to carry luggage for passengers. This issue was discussed during the meeting of the Council of Ministers, but research did not discover what, if any, measures were taken. (7)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Suriname took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including lack of initial training for new criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (2)	No (7)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (2)	N/A (7)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (2)	Yes (7)
Number of Investigations	0 (2)	2 (7)
Number of Violations Found	0 (2)	2 (7)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (2)	11 (7)
Number of Convictions	0 (2)	0 (7)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (2)	No (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (7)

Suriname's referral system, managed by the Bureau for the Rights of the Child of the Ministry of Social Affairs, was developed in collaboration with UNICEF in 2019 and is still in a pilot phase. (2) Reports from the referral mechanism are first filed with the police, who then pass on the complaint to the Labor Inspectorate or the Youth Affairs Police. During the reporting period, the Ministry of Social Affairs announced a full review of the referral mechanism with the assistance of UNICEF, as the mechanism is not sufficient to provide long-term solutions to child labor issues that are reported to it. (7)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2021, there were two investigations involving commercial sexual exploitation of minor girls. The first case resulted in the arrest of 11 suspects, including 3 police officers, on various charges including human trafficking and sexual abuse of a minor. (7) The second case did not result in any charges and was referred to the Youth Affairs Police. The TIP Unit reported in 2021 that it removed three minor girls from situations of exploitation, two of whom were victims of sex trafficking, and referred them to counseling and other services. (7) One of the three girls was returned to her parents. (7)

The number of investigators is insufficient to respond to human trafficking cases, and, according to the Prosecutor's Office, investigations are initiated primarily as a result of complaints filed and are limited by a lack of resources, especially for travel to the interior of the country. (11,30,31) Resource constraints were made worse by the pandemic. (2) Suriname has a mechanism for the referral of victims for social services. In addition, the Bureau for Victim Services within the Ministry of Justice and Police provides counseling, the Bureau for Legal Services can provide a victim with legal assistance, and other services are arranged by the Trafficking in Persons (TIP) Unit of the Suriname Police Force. (7)

The TIP Unit has 11 staff members who investigate human trafficking and human smuggling cases for the country. Initial investigations of trafficking are usually conducted by police who do not receive human trafficking training as part of their basic training. (7) Moreover, research finds that the government did not effectively identify trafficking in persons victims among children, migrants in the interior, and in brothels operating within private homes. (3) During the reporting period, the TIP Unit was appointed a new head and a strategic plan was drafted for the unit. This included descriptions of the functions and roles of staff in the unit and an analysis that identified barriers to optimal functioning of the department. (12) Lack of funding and resources were identified as the greatest problems facing the unit. The strategic plan further identified the training needs of the unit. (12)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission on Combating Child Labor	Serves as the leading body in drafting child labor policies. (10) Coordinates and monitors efforts to address child labor, including the execution of the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor. Also coordinates with the Integrated Child Protection Network to maximize awareness-raising efforts. (9) Mandate was renewed in August 2021 and is valid through December 2023. (7) Adopted a new National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor during the reporting period that includes the appointment of a Special Child Labor Rapporteur and capacity strengthening of the Labor Inspectorate. (7)
Trafficking in Persons Working Group	Coordinates the government's anti-human trafficking efforts. Provides care to survivors of human trafficking through government-supported NGOs. (30) Comprises nine government agencies, including organizations that target the worst forms of child labor. (11) In 2021, updated its annual national action plan. As part of the working group, the TIP Unit of the Suriname Police Force also drafted its own strategic plan, which serves primarily as an operations manual for the unit and features a victim-centered approach, including toward child victims of human trafficking. (7)
Integrated Child Protection Network	Prevents child abuse, neglect, and exploitation, including child labor. Led by the Ministry of Social Affairs, includes the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Ministry of Justice and Police, Office of the First Lady, National Assembly, and NGO stakeholders, with support from UNICEF. (11) In 2021, approved the establishment of a Sub-Council designed to simplify the process of approving policies related to child protection. The Sub-Council includes representatives from the Ministry of Social Affairs, Justice, and Police and the MOL. (7)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor (2019–2024)	Aims to address child labor by removing children from child labor and by addressing issues that lead children to become involved in child labor, including poverty and lack of educational opportunities. Also addresses the social and educational reintegration of these children. (9) During the reporting period, drafted an annual plan for 2021–2022, which identifies 21 activities that the National Commission on Combating Child Labor intends to work on through the end of 2022. (7)
National Action Plan for the Prevention and Response to Trafficking in Persons (2021–2022)†	Aims to address and prevent human trafficking, including through prevention, detection and investigation, criminal prosecution, and victim support and rehabilitation. (7,32) During the reporting period, the Annual National Action Plan was updated. Activities included in the plan have a combined budget of $114,000. (7)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including a lack of services for child victims of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Decent Work Program	ILO program that supports capacity building of the Labor Inspectorate and constituents, as well as of the National Commission on Combating Child Labor for implementation, monitoring, and evaluation of the National Action Plan. (33) During the reporting period, the program published and reported on findings related to creating an enabling business environment and improving productivity. (34)
My Line ( Mi Lijn )†	Government-run, 24-hour hotline that provides confidential advice to children in need, including victims of the worst forms of child labor, victims of domestic violence, and persons in need of mental support. Research indicates a significant increase in calls to the hotline during the reporting period. (7)
Anti-Trafficking Hotline†	Government-sponsored hotline that allows citizens to provide information to the police about human trafficking cases. (9) Reported to be active in 2021, though no calls related to human trafficking were reported. (7)
Second Basic Education Improvement Program (2015–2040)	Inter-American Development Bank-funded $20 million, 25-year loan implemented by the Ministry of Education to develop curriculums and textbooks, provide teacher training, renovate classrooms, build housing for teachers in the interior, and build a center for teacher training and professional development. (7,35) Phase Two of the program, which mostly focused on writing and producing new school curriculums, concluded in 2021. (7)
Regional Initiative Latin America and the Caribbean Free of Child Labor	ILO and Cooperation Agency of Brazil program to improve youth transition from school to work in Caribbean countries, including Suriname. (36) During the reporting period, the Initiative participated in a virtual event with other Caribbean countries to raise awareness about child labor on social media platforms. (37)

† Program is funded by the Government of Suriname.

The government continues to support initiatives to eradicate child labor, but existing social programs are inadequate to fully address the problem. (11) In particular, Suriname lacks programs to assist child victims of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (38)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Suriname (Table 11).

Suriname

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use, procuring, and offering of a child for illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2015 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use of a child under 16 for prostitution.	2021
	Increase the compulsory education age to at least age 16, the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2021
	Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2020 – 2021
Enforcement	Publish information on Labor Inspectorate funding.	2012 – 2021
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate and the Trafficking in Persons Unit of the Suriname Police Force are sufficiently funded and adequately staffed to cover labor inspections in both the formal and informal sectors of the labor force, including in risk-prone sectors, such as in fisheries, mining, and agricultural areas in which child labor is likely to occur, particularly in the interior of the country.	2014 – 2021
	Provide training on the worst forms of child labor, including on identification of trafficking in persons, to new criminal investigators and to the Trafficking in Persons Unit of the Suriname Police Force.	2021
	Ensure that labor inspectors adequately carry out their mandate and address child labor when identified in all sectors, including at Johan Adolf Pengel International Airport.	2021
	Ensure the child labor referral system can adequately provide long-term solutions to child labor issues that are reported to it.	2021
Social Programs	Develop social programs to prevent and eradicate child labor in agriculture and mining and to improve secondary school attendance, particularly in the interior.	2015 – 2021
	Strengthen social services to assist child victims of commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking.	2014 – 2021
	Increase access to education by eliminating school-related fees, reducing transportation costs, increasing access to schools in remote locations, and removing requirements for documentation.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that all children, including children of foreign-born parents, have access to free public education regardless of citizenship and residency status, and that school registration is not used to report families without proper residential status.	2021
	Address issues of bullying in schools, including for LGBTQI+ students.	2021

In 2021, the United Republic of Tanzania made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government issued a circular directing that girls be able to return to school following the completion of their pregnancy, reversing its previous support of permanently expelling girls who had become pregnant. The government also committed additional resources to address other barriers to educational access, including provision of additional classrooms and latrines, as well as desks. In addition, the government facilitated awareness campaigns related to human trafficking and trained 17 local committees focusing on child labor and other issues related to violence against women and children. However, children in Tanzania are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in mining, quarrying, and domestic work. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. The Mainland government did not publicly release information on its labor and criminal law enforcement efforts. Other gaps remain in the legal framework and enforcement of laws related to child labor, including protections for the use of children in illicit activities and domestic work and the likely insufficient number of labor inspectors for the size of Tanzania's labor force.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Tanzania are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in mining, quarrying, and domestic work. (1-3) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1,4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mainland Tanzania.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	29.3 (3,573,467)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	74.3
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	24.6

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Plowing, weeding,† harvesting,† and processing of crops, including coffee, sugarcane, sisal, tea, tobacco, and cloves (1,4,7,8)
	Chasing away birds on rice farms (4)
	Seaweed farming (8,9)
	Production of sugarcane (4,8)
	Livestock herding, including tending cattle (4,10,11)
	Fishing† and fish descaling, including for Nile perch (1-3,9,12)
Industry	Quarrying† stone and crushing and breaking rocks to produce gravel (1,4,13)
	Mining,† including gold and tanzanite, and using mercury (1,2,4,5,14-18)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Domestic work, including child care, cooking, and washing† (1,2,14,18,19)
	Garbage collecting† (20)
	Street work, including vending,† selling charcoal, shoe shining, small business, and scavenging† (10,18,21-23)
	Work in bars† (10)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3,7,23)
	Forced begging (3,10,24)
	Use in illicit activities, including the selling of drugs (25)
	Forced labor in agriculture, including cattle herding and tobacco cultivation, domestic service, mining, fishing, commercial trading, quarrying, shining shoes, pushing carts, and working in factories and bars (25,26)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Human traffickers exploit domestic and foreign children in sex trafficking and forced labor in Tanzania, and traffickers exploit children from Tanzania abroad. Traffickers exploit individuals from underserved communities—particularly impoverished children, orphans, and children with disabilities from rural areas—in forced labor in domestic work, mining, agriculture, and begging, as well as commercial sexual exploitation in urban areas, such as Arusha, Dar es Salaam, Dodoma, Mbeya, and Mwanza. (3) Parents, particularly from poor and rural households, entrust their children to the care of wealthy relatives and community leaders who sometimes coerce the children to perform domestic work. (3,26) Exploitation of girls in commercial sexual exploitation or forced labor in domestic service frequently occurs in tourist hubs along the Kenyan border and may occur in Zanzibar. (2,19,27,28) Although child trafficking primarily occurs internally within Tanzania, traffickers also exploit migrant children, particularly from Burundi and Rwanda, in domestic servitude and commercial sexual exploitation. (2,3,29) According to reports, refugee children living in Tanzania are increasingly vulnerable to exploitation, including commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as result of human trafficking, and forced labor in farming in western Tanzania. (3,30,31)

Children in Tanzania engage in a number of hazardous work activities, including mining, quarrying, and working on tobacco plantations. (4) Children working in mining are exposed to hazards, such as mercury poisoning and being trapped when tunnels collapse, especially in smaller unlicensed operations. (16,17,32,33) A 2019 report identified children grinding and pounding rock for production of gravel in Pemba. The children working at these sites were using dangerous tools and were exposed to being hit by rock fragments. (13) The Mainland 2019 Statistics Act restricts the sharing of government-collected data and information with people and organizations, including information related to child protection and child labor. (2,34)

Schools, particularly in rural areas, lack adequate teachers, classrooms and desks, food, and sanitation facilities. (11,25) Families are often required to financially contribute to offset these deficits and pay for costs of uniforms, books, and other school materials, creating economic barriers to education for some children. (2,11,35) In addition, schools often lack resources for children with disabilities or learning disorders, resulting in many of these students dropping out and becoming vulnerable to child labor. (2,11)

In November 2021, the government issued a circular outlining the unconditioned readmission to school of girls who previously left education on account of a pregnancy. The circular marks a departure from senior government officials' past endorsement of a practice by which schools expelled girls who had become pregnant and denied them the opportunity to return to school following their pregnancy. (36-38) This practice, which had been backed by senior-level government officials, had led to girls being subject to forced pregnancy tests and expulsion for morality if they were pregnant, making them vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (11,36) Under the government's new position, girls can return to education following the completion of their pregnancy. (37) Girls, however, can still be removed from school during the duration of their pregnancy, which reduces the likelihood that they will return to education. (39)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tanzania has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Tanzania's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including a lack of minimum age protections for children in domestic work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

	Zanzibar	Yes		Section 59 of the Zanzibar Education Act (50,51)

*Country has no conscription (48)

Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar's non-union matters are governed by distinct territorial jurisdictional laws, leaving each territory to determine its own child labor laws. (10,44) The minimum age for work laws in Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar do not meet international standards because they do not extend to all working children, including children engaged in domestic work. (40,42,43) Mainland Tanzania's hazardous work list for children does not specify weeding and processing as activities that are dangerous agricultural tasks in the production of tobacco, cloves, coffee, sisal, and tea. (32,40,41,52) In addition, Mainland Tanzania does not stipulate penalties for using children for illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.

Although Zanzibar has a policy establishing compulsory education through age 15, this standard has not been put into law; the Education Act stipulates a compulsory education age of 13, which is below the minimum age for work. (50,51) In the Mainland, there is no free basic education for children as established by law, and the compulsory education age is below the minimum age of work, increasing the risk of children's involvement in child labor. (49)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Related Entity	Role
Minister of State in the Prime Minister's Office for Policy, Labor, Employment, Youth, and the Disabled	Mainland	Enforces child labor laws. Assigns area labor officers to each region to respond to reports of child labor violations, issues non-compliance orders, and reports incidents to police and the Ministry of Health, Community Development, Gender, Elderly, and Children. (25) Through its Labor Administration and Inspection Section, provides legal guidance upon request, disseminates information to employers and employees on their rights and obligations, and helps area offices conduct labor inspections. (25)
Ministry of Community Development, Gender, Elderly, and Children	Mainland	Enforces child protection laws and regulations, and health and social welfare policies. Employs officers to monitor child labor at the district and village levels, and reports findings to the President's Office of Regional Administration and to local governments. (25) Promotes community development, gender equality, and children's rights by formulating policies, strategies, and guidelines in collaboration with stakeholders. (25,53)
Ministry of Home Affairs	Mainland	Enforces anti-trafficking laws, including child trafficking, and laws prohibiting commercial sexual exploitation of children and the use of children in illicit activities. (53) Includes the Anti-Trafficking Secretariat, which coordinates the government's response to human trafficking. (24)
Zanzibar Labor Commission	Zanzibar	Ensures compliance with child protection and child labor laws, including inspections, through its Child Protection Unit. (53) Located within the Zanzibar President's Office of Economy and Investment, investigates child labor cases reported by the police and refers cases to social welfare officers. In 2021, the Zanzibar Labor Commission was moved from the Ministry of Empowerment, Adults, Youth, Women, and Children to the President's Office of Economy and Investment. (2)

Tanzania Police Force	Mainland and Zanzibar	Investigates cases of child labor and other forms of child endangerment reported to police stations; in some cases, refers cases to labor officers or seeks assistance from social welfare officers and the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions to take legal action. Includes a Human Trafficking desk, and Gender and Children's desks to handle cases pertaining to children. (10,53,54)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Tanzania took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority and operations of the labor ministries that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient financial resources.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

As the law in Zanzibar treats child labor as a criminal offense, labor inspectorates may initiate prosecutions for violations related to child labor. (42) Mainland inspectors may issue compliance orders, notifying employers of labor violations; however, these orders do not stipulate a specific financial or other penalty. (55) The Mainland government did not provide information on labor enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (10)

Despite regulations in both the Mainland and Zanzibar requiring that one or more labor officers be assigned to each region, research was unable to determine whether this was followed during the reporting period. An international organization reported that there are only 73 labor inspectors in the Mainland, although the Mainland government has not provided information on the size of its labor inspectorate. (59,60) Although the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in least developed economies, Tanzania would need to employ roughly 726 labor inspectors because its workforce consists of over 29 million workers. (25,59,61,62)

Figures on Mainland labor inspectorate funding remain unavailable, but NGOs have noted that labor enforcement efforts would benefit from additional funding and increased numbers of inspections. (53) Although the government has a complaint mechanism for individuals to report potential cases of child labor, research indicates this mechanism is not consistently used because of insufficient tools and resources and budgetary constraints. (58) The Zanzibar labor inspectorate, meanwhile, lacks sufficient personnel, office facilities, transportation and fuel, and other resources to adequately enforce child labor laws. (2)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Tanzania took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including a lack of published information on criminal law enforcement efforts.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	Related Entity	2020	2021

	Zanzibar	Yes (2)	Yes (2)

The Mainland government did not provide complete information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. The Anti-Trafficking Secretariat, however, reported that in 2021, it had rescued and assisted 56 children from human trafficking for forced labor, including in domestic service; the children were ages 14 to 18. (63) Officials also undertook 113 investigations and 18 prosecutions related to human trafficking; however, the government did not provide information on ages of victims to determine whether these pertained to worst forms of child labor. (24) An NGO operates a child abuse hotline and in 2021 reported 30 complaints of child labor to government authorities, resulting in referrals to health and social services providers, parental interventions, and, in some cases, referrals to criminal investigative authorities. (64)

In 2021, immigration officials repatriated 543 migrant children to their countries of origin in Burundi (402), the Democratic Republic of the Congo (2), Rwanda (86), Uganda (51), Zambia (1), and Ethiopia (1) as part of a national crackdown on immigration. Many of these children were reportedly in child labor in domestic service, farming, and herding cattle and livestock. (65) The children received care before being returned to their countries of origin. (66)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including inefficacy of coordinating bodies with respect to their mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Related Entity	Role & Description
National Education Task Force on Child Labor	Mainland and Zanzibar	Reviews existing laws, regulations, and strategies related to children's issues, including the National Strategy on the Elimination of Child Labor. Evaluates curriculum and programs, identifies gaps, and suggests strategies to resolve barriers to accessing education. (67) Research was unable to determine whether the National Education Task Force on Child Labor was active during the reporting period. (24)
Zanzibar Child Labor Steering Committee	Zanzibar	Coordinates various implementing agencies responsible for child labor and provides policy guidance on the Zanzibar National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor. (53) Chaired by Zanzibar's Ministry of Empowerment, Adults, Youth, Women and Children. (59) Research was unable to determine whether the Zanzibar Child Labor Steering Committee was active during the reporting period. (25)
National Protection Steering Committee	Mainland and Zanzibar	Provides overall policy guidance and coordination at the national and local levels of the National Plan of Action to End Violence Against Women and Children in Tanzania (NPA-VAWC) through the merger of the National Inter-Sectoral Coordination Committee and the Multi-Sector Task Force on Violence Against Children. (54,68) Operates the NPA-VAWC National Protection Technical Committee and Thematic Working Groups at the national level. (53,54) Research was unable to determine whether the National Protection Steering Committee was active during the reporting period.
National Anti-Trafficking Committee and Anti-Trafficking Secretariat	Mainland and Zanzibar	Promotes, defines, and coordinates policy to prevent human trafficking through engagement with local NGOs. (45,68) Chaired by the National Anti-Trafficking Secretariat within the Ministry of Home Affairs, includes representatives from the ministries of Health, Community Development, Gender, Women and Special Groups, Constitutional and Legal Affairs, and the Commission for Human Rights and Good Governance. The Anti-Trafficking Secretariat organized 8 awareness campaigns during the reporting period, reaching 282 religious leaders, law enforcement officials, social welfare officers, teachers, journalists, and community leaders. (24) The Anti-Trafficking Committee met once during the reporting period. Financial and resource constraints, however, hindered the committee from meeting quarterly according to its mandates. (24)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including a lack of implementation of existing policies.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Related Entity	Description
National Strategy on Elimination of Child Labor (2018–2022)	Mainland and Zanzibar	Coordinates prevention and responses to the worst forms of child labor at the national level. (69) Although the government finalized the National Strategy on Elimination of Child Labor in 2019, it has not been formally launched, and research cannot determine whether the government has taken any actions to implement it. (25) The government reported that it is planning to review the strategy ahead of its expiration; however, to date, there are no specific activities the government has taken to update it. (25)
National Anti-Trafficking in Persons Plan of Action (2021–2024)*	Mainland and Zanzibar	Articulates shared objectives, resources, and activities for the government's response to human trafficking through survivor treatment, increasing knowledge and skill of enforcement officers, and community awareness. Includes integration of human trafficking concepts into secondary education activities, data collection, and mainstreaming human trafficking issues into the children's desk at police stations. (70) The government approved the National Anti-Trafficking in Persons Plan of Action in late 2021, and publicly launched the action plan in March 2022. (24)
NPA-VAWC (2017–2022)	Mainland and Zanzibar	Prevents and responds to all forms of violence against women and children through comprehensive multi-sectoral collaboration at all levels and combining eight national action plans. (54) Details responsible agencies to address multiple challenges, including education and poverty reduction. (53) On June 15, 2021, the government facilitated a stakeholder discussion on the achievements, challenges, and learnings in implementing the NPA-VAWC with respect to child labor. The government also supported the training of 17 community and district NAP-VAW/child labor committees on data collection and reporting. (66)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (51,53,71)

Tanzania does not have a law requiring free public education, but it does have an education policy that allows children to attend primary school and lower secondary school without paying tuition fees. (72) The Mainland government, however, regulates access to secondary education through the Primary School Leaving Examination. Students who do not pass the exam do not have an opportunity to re-take the exam and must drop out of public school at the end of compulsory education at age 14. (68) Despite its stated intention to phase out the exam by 2021, there is no evidence that the government has made efforts or preparations to do so. (68,73,74)

Since 2006, the Zanzibar government has administered education under the Zanzibar Education Policy, which establishes compulsory education through Form 4 (approximately age 15). (51,75) However, research indicates that implementation of this policy has been slow due to limited resources and teachers within schools. (76) The Zanzibar Education Policy, moreover, does not include child labor elimination and prevention strategies. (51) Research indicates that a large proportion of students in Zanzibar leave the formal education system below the minimum age for work, leaving them at increased risk for child labor. (77)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequate scope of programs to address child labor in all relevant sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Tanzania Social Action Fund Conditional Cash Transfer Program†	Government-funded conditional cash transfer program to provide financial assistance to vulnerable populations, including children. (24) In 2021, the Tanzania Social Action Fund expanded, registering an additional 420,000 households to benefit from cash transfer support. In total, the program targets 1.4 million low-income households that are vulnerable to coping mechanisms, including child labor. (24)
Rural Enterprise Support to Eliminate Child Labor*	Project implemented by the ECLT foundation as a follow-up to the Promoting Sustainable Practices to Eradicate Child Labor in Tobacco program that ended in 2020. Aims to support farmers and reduce child labor in Chunya, Kaliua, Sikonge, and Urambo districts. (2,25,53) In 2021, the program trained 17 community and district child labor committees on data collection and reporting and supported the development of 17 community child labor action plans in the 3 regions of Tabora, Mbeya, and Songwe. (25)

Program	Description
Eradicating the Worst Forms of Labor in the Eight Mining Wards of the Geita District	French Development Agency-funded program, implemented by Plan International, to eliminate child labor and other forms of violence against children, especially girls, in the small-scale mining and fishing sectors. The project covers 15 wards and 63 villages in 3 Geita districts: Geita, Nyang'hwale, and Chato. (25) In 2021, the program supported the establishment of 81 child protection committees in 15 wards and 63 villages. The committees aim to raise awareness on child protection, child labor prevention, and response. (25) The program also supported 957 children with school materials and return to school, and supported an additional 908 youth with skill-building opportunities through Youth Saving and Lending Associations. (25) The project was extended to its third phase, which will run through February 2023. (66)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Tanzania.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (53)

During the reporting period, the government committed to allocating additional resources to address barriers to education, particularly the shortage of school desks. The government received a $576 million COVID-19 Rapid Credit Facility loan from the IMF, including $100 million for Zanzibar, with some of the funds directed to construct 15,000 classrooms in secondary schools and 3,000 in primary schools, as well as latrines in Mainland Tanzania; in addition, the government directed schools to cease sending children home from school because they lack appropriate uniforms or school supplies. (25)

An evaluation of Tanzania's Conditional Cash Transfer Program found that it had achieved little reduction of child labor, because the work of children only shifted from outside to inside the household. Furthermore, the program had not achieved reductions in excessive working hours and engagement in hazardous activities among children. (79)

The scope of government-funded social programs is inadequate in that it does not cover other forms of agriculture beyond tobacco, nor does it include construction, domestic service, fishing, and informal sectors in which children engage in child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Tanzania (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Related Entity	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Mainland and Zanzibar	Ensure that minimum age protections apply to all children, including those engaged in domestic work.	2013 – 2021
	Mainland	Expand the list of hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children to ensure that the list includes weeding and processing in the production of tobacco, cloves, coffee, sisal, and tea.	2016 – 2021
	Mainland	Criminalize the use of children in illicit activities, particularly in producing and trafficking drugs.	2012 – 2021
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Criminalize the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Establish by law a compulsory age for education that is the same or higher than the minimum age for work.	2017 – 2021
	Mainland	Establish by law free basic public education.	2016 – 2021
Enforcement	Mainland	Establish a mechanism to assess civil penalties for child labor violations.	2017 – 2021
	Zanzibar	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors, including training new labor inspectors at the beginning of their employment and refresher courses.	2019 – 2021
	Mainland	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts.	2011 – 2021
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Ensure the appointment of a dedicated labor officer for each region and publish this information.	2013 – 2021

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Area	Related Entity	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Mainland and Zanzibar	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2013 – 2021
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Provide sufficient funding to ensure adequate enforcement of labor laws.	2013 – 2021
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Ensure that the child labor complaint mechanism has sufficient resources to carry out operations.	2021
	Zanzibar	Institutionalize training for criminal law enforcement investigators, including by training new investigators.	2019 – 2021
	Mainland	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor.	2012 – 2021
	Zanzibar	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor, including trainings, number of investigations, and imposed penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2021
Coordination	Mainland and Zanzibar	Ensure that coordinating committees are active and able to carry out their intended mandates.	2018 – 2021
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Ensure that the National Anti-Trafficking Committee and other coordinating bodies have sufficient resources to accomplish their mandates.	2021
Government Policies	Mainland and Zanzibar	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement the National Strategy on Elimination of Child Labor and publish results from activities implemented during the reporting period.	2020 – 2021
	Mainland	Eliminate provisions in the Primary School Leaving Examination that are barriers to education, such as the no re-take policy.	2016 – 2021
	Zanzibar	Incorporate child labor prevention and elimination strategies and ensure the full implementation of the Zanzibar Education Policy to limit dropouts.	2018 – 2021
Social Programs	Mainland	Ensure educational access for girls removed from school during pregnancy.	2021
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible to all children in Tanzania by ensuring adequate resources for children with disabilities and learning disorders, increasing resources for teachers, classrooms, food, and sanitation facilities, while defraying informal costs imposed on families, including school uniforms, books, and other learning materials.	2010 – 2021
	Mainland	End legal restrictions that limit the sharing of information related to child labor.	2020 – 2021
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Improve harmonization of child labor prevention and elimination measures into the Social Action Fund Conditional Cash Transfer Program to increase its effectiveness in preventing and eliminating child labor.	2020 – 2021
	Mainland and Zanzibar	Integrate programs that include the agricultural, construction, domestic service, fishing, and informal sectors to address children engaged in child labor.	2017 – 2021

In 2021, Thailand made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the Government of Thailand approved the third National Policy and Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor Phase III (2021–2022), which included the Ministry of Labor signing a memorandum of understanding with 13 business associations to prevent child and forced labor in the shrimp, fishing, sugarcane, and garment industries. The government also published statistics on the number of investigations conducted, violations found, and convictions secured for crimes related to the worst forms of child labor. Moreover, the Ministry of Education implemented a program in cooperation with the Ministry of Labor, the Office of the Ombudsman, and other related government agencies to provide education on labor rights, assist with vocational training, and share job vacancies to 1,127 student trainees. However, children in Thailand are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children, some as young as age 12, also participate for remuneration in Muay Thai competitions, an area of hazardous work in which there is evidence of serious head injuries. Thailand does not meet the international standard for the minimum age for work because the law does not grant protections to children working outside of formal employment relationships. Lastly, child labor law enforcement remains a challenge due to an insufficient number of inspectors and resources to physically inspect remote workplaces.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Thailand are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children, some as young as age 12, also participate for remuneration in Muay Thai competitions, an area of hazardous work in which there is evidence of serious head injuries. (1–16) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Thailand.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	13.0 (1,302,267)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	96.3
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	14.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		95.1

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (17)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 3 (MICS 3), 2005–2006. (18)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Processing shrimp and seafood† (4,19–22)
	Fishing, including work performed in fisheries and on sea vessels† (4,20,23–25)
	Planting and harvesting sugarcane (19,26,27)
	Production of rubber (22,28)

	Street work, including begging and vending (4,16,22,24,25,32,35)
	Muay Thai fighting (2-4,6-12,14,16,25,36,37)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,4,5,22,24,25,32,33,38,39)
	Forced labor in vending, begging, and domestic work (4,5,16,25,32)
	Forced labor in the production of garments, agriculture, and in shrimp and seafood processing (4,22,40)
	Forced labor in fishing, including fisheries (4,23,25,32,41)
	Use in the production and trafficking of drugs, including narcotics, amphetamines, kratom, and marijuana (4,22,25,28,40)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Thai children and children from Burma, Laos, and Cambodia, are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in Thai massage parlors, bars, karaoke lounges, hotels, and private residences. In addition, children are increasingly being individually lured by predators online through social media and private chat rooms and coerced to produce pornography and perform sexual acts. (4,5,24,25,32,33,38,42) Clients of child sex trafficking victims attempt to avoid law enforcement by arranging appointments in private residences, randomly changing venues, and paying children directly. The Thai government reported that some recruiters and traffickers are active or former child sex trafficking victims themselves. (25)

Incidents of child labor in the shrimp and seafood processing industry have decreased in recent years, but children, particularly migrants from the Greater Mekong Sub-region, continue to engage in hazardous work in this industry. (4,21,32,41,43) Children working in agriculture face health risks from lifting heavy loads, risk injury from operating dangerous machinery and using sharp equipment, and are exposed to pesticides, sun and heat, and long hours from very early in the morning until nighttime. (16,25,28) Thai and migrant children who accompany their parents working in the construction sector are exposed to child labor at and around construction sites, including performing construction work or working as caretakers for younger children or as housekeepers, and are not always enrolled in school. (4,25,30,31,44)

Children also participate in Muay Thai competitions, an area of work in which there is evidence of serious head injuries. Children receive remuneration in the form of prize money or wages, and research found that betting and illegal gambling on the outcome of children’s matches occurs often during Muay Thai competitions. (2,4,6,12,14,36) The Government of Thailand began drafting its Boxing Act Amendment in 2018, but the draft amendment to add a minimum age requirement for Muay Thai is still being considered by the Sport Committee at the House of Representatives. No changes had been enacted to the Thai Boxing Act as of December 2021. (4,16,25,37,45-47)

Thai law provides for 12 years of free education for all children in Thailand. (22,25,48) However, language barriers prevent some children, particularly migrants and ethnic minorities, from accessing basic education as school instruction and school applications are only available in Thai. (4,25,45,49) Although children without identity documents or a registered address cannot be denied enrollment in public schools, research found that there is a lack of clarity among school officials regarding the type of documentation that non-Thai students need to possess to enroll in school, which may be a barrier to education access. (25) Children identifying as LGBTQI+ and those experiencing poverty, drug addiction, family problems, and teen pregnancy, may have additional barriers to education access due to increased harassment and bullying, which may increase their risk of dropping out of school and engaging in child labor. (16,50,51)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Thailand has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Thailand's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including not meeting the international standard for the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Section 5 and Chapter 4, Section 44 of the Labor Protection Act; Section 148/1 of the Labor Protection Act (No. 5) (52,53)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Chapter 4, Sections 49 and 50 of the Labor Protection Act; Section 148/2 of the Labor Protection Act (No. 5); Section 4 and Chapter 2, Article 26(6) of the Child Protection Act; Chapter 4, Section 20 of the Home Workers Protection Act (52-55)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Chapter 4, Sections 49 and 50 of the Labor Protection Act; Clause 4 of the Ministerial Regulation concerning Labor Protection in Sea Fishery Work; Clause 2 of the Ministerial Regulation Identifying Tasks that may be Hazardous to the Health and Safety of Pregnant Women or Children Under the Age of Fifteen Years (52,56,57)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 312 and 312 bis of the Penal Code; Section 6/1 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act (No. 3); Sections 1 and 2 of the Amendment of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act (58-60)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 282 and 283 of the Penal Code; Section 6 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act (No. 3) (58,59)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Section 8 of the Prevention and Suppression of Prostitution Act; Section 6 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act (No. 3); Sections 282 and 285-287 of the Penal Code; Section 26 of the Child Protection Act; Amendment to the Penal Code Act No. 24 (54,58,61,62)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 26(5) of the Child Protection Act; Section 93 of the Narcotics Act; Section 84 of the Penal Code; Section 22 of the Beggar Control Act (54,63-65)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Section 25 of the Military Service Act (66)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Section 25 of the Military Service Act (66)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 17 of the National Education Act (48)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 10 of the National Education Act; Section 54 of the Thai Constitution (48,67)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

During the reporting period, the Government of Thailand began prosecuting cases under Section 6/1 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act and began developing implementation guidelines, including a Standard Operating Procedure for referral and case management between agencies to include law enforcement, labor inspectors, and Port-In-Port-Out (PIPO) inspectors, in order to address gaps in investigating forced labor crimes. (68,69) The Anti-Human Trafficking Committee also approved a draft amendment to the Penal Code that would make online sexting and online grooming of children criminal offences, in line with Constitutional Standards and the UN CRC. The draft amendment will be sent to the Cabinet for approval. (68) Furthermore, the National Committee on Prevention of Official Complicity in Human Trafficking approved an amendment to the Office of the Prime Minister's Regulations on Management Measures in Preventing Official Complicity in Human Trafficking and sent it to the Cabinet for consideration. This amendment would allow law enforcement to take action against officials facilitating migrant smuggling, which may eventually lead to the individual being trafficked. (68) In addition, the Department of Labor Protection and Welfare (DLPW) began the process of amending the Home Worker Protection Act B.E. 2553 (2010) to raise the minimum age for home workers to age 15. (22)

However, the minimum age for work in Thailand does not comply with international standards because the law does not grant protections to children working outside of employment relationships. In addition, because the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, and the law does not require 15-year-olds to complete compulsory schooling before seeking work, some children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (48,52,53)

Moreover, although Thailand has identified fishing on sea vessels as a form of hazardous labor, the government is in the process of amending the Ministerial Regulation on Protection of Fishery Work 2014 to allow owners of fishing boats to employ relatives as young as age 16 as interns. (25,70) Research indicates that there is inadequate oversight of fishing vessels to ensure that youth workers are relatives of adult crew. (25)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established relevant institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor Protection and Welfare (DLPW) of the Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Enforces child labor laws through workplace inspections. (28) Operates Hotline 1509 and staffs 86 DLPW offices in every province to answer questions about working conditions and receive complaints from the public about child labor. (4,45,71) During the reporting period, DLPW's Call Center received 257 calls and 223 complaints related to the violation of child labor laws. Most of these calls related to employment of children under the minimum age for work. (22,25) In 2021, DLPW's labor inspectors filed charges against 7 enterprises for employing children under the minimum age for work in violation of Thailand's child labor law. There were 20 suspects and 10 child labor victims in these cases, which took place in construction sites, fisheries, restaurants and markets. (25)
Anti-Human Trafficking Units	The Anti-Trafficking in Persons Division of the Royal Thai Police (RTP) enforces laws related to forced labor, human trafficking, child pornography, and commercial sexual exploitation of children, and operates Hotline 191 to receive complaints on human trafficking and violence against children. (71) The Department of Trafficking in Persons Litigation under the Office of the Attorney General (OAG) investigates human trafficking offenses, including cases of labor, sex, and child trafficking, and monitors provincial human trafficking cases to improve the quality of prosecutions. (45,72,73) The Thailand Anti-Trafficking in Persons Task Force (TATIP) investigates and enforces laws against human trafficking in the sex trade and mainstream industries. TATIP teams comprise police officers, social workers, and selected NGO representatives. (45,72,73) The Department of Special Investigation's (DSI) Bureau of Human Trafficking Crime is tasked with enforcing and investigating human trafficking cases. (4,44) During the reporting period, the RTP investigated 57 cases in which children were used, provided, or offered for prostitution and identified pornographic performances and materials involving 78 child victims. (22,25) The RTP also investigated 39 cases of child labor involving 57 children and removed 36 child victims from situations of exploitation and placed them in Ministry of Social Development and Human Security (MSDHS)-run long-term shelters or NGO-run shelters. (25) DSI conducted a rescue operation of 18 Burmese migrant workers, which included 2 victims under the age of 18, who were being held against their will in a confectionary factory. (25) Moreover, DSI reported four prosecutions for human trafficking and child exploitation with one child labor victim. Between January 1 and September 30, 2021, OAG reported 72 victims associated with 43 ongoing cases related to sexual exploitation or prostitution. (25)

Organization/Agency	Role
Thailand Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force (TICAC)	Investigates and enforces laws against child trafficking and online commercial sexual exploitation of children, including the distribution and production of child pornography through the media. (4,5,22,24,25,74) Comprises police officers, DSI agents, social workers, and selected NGO representatives. (4,22,25,29,44,72,73) During the reporting period, TICAC partnered with NGOs such as HUG Project, Spring Project, and Freedom International Foundation to enhance the capacity of officials to provide child-centered and trauma-informed care and organized online campaigns and workshops to raise awareness of online sexual exploitation. (68,69) TICAC also investigated 79 cases of trafficking, sexual exploitation, child pornography and other abuses involving a total of 49 child victims. (68)
Ministry of Social Development and Human Security (MSDHS)	Organizes trainings and enforces child protection and human trafficking laws through close collaboration with the RTP, DSI, DLPW, and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Oversees Hotline 1300, which receives human trafficking and child labor complaints. Operates 77 temporary shelters located in every province and 9 long-term shelters for human trafficking survivors, including a shelter dedicated solely to boys. (4,5,22,25,32,54,75)

In 2021, the Office of the Attorney General's (OAG) newly established working group developed a Standard Operating Procedure for public prosecutors aimed at enhancing child-friendly justice and supporting a trauma-informed approach when helping child survivors through interviews and preparation for testimony. (68)

The Government of Thailand monitors the shrimp and fishing industries for child labor through 30 PIPO Centers and 21 Forward Inspection Points (FIP) along the coasts. These operations enforce laws related to fishing, forced labor, child labor, and human trafficking. (4,21,23,29,43,44) However, research finds that PIPO inspections are inadequate and inspectors did not identify any cases of trafficking in persons on fishing vessels during the reporting period. (68)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Thailand took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$1,135,774 (16)	$1,006,683 (25)
Number of Labor Inspectors	1,889 (16)	1,889 (22)
Mechanism to Assess Civil Penalties	Yes (52)	Yes (52)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (16)	Yes (22)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	Yes (16)	Yes (22)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (16)	Yes (22)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	39,729 (76)	22,890 (22)
Number Conducted at Worksite	39,723 (16)	22,890 (22)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	10 (16)	31 (22)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	10 (16)	13 (22)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	10 (16)	Unknown (22)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (16)	Yes (22)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (16)	Yes (22)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (52)	Yes (52)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (16)	Yes (22)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (16)	Yes (22)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (16)	Yes (22)

During the reporting period, there were 31 violations related to child labor laws involving 70 offenders. Of these cases, 7 cases included hiring children younger than the legal working age. (22)

In 2021, the DLPW organized a special team responsible for child labor inspections. (25) The inspectorate prioritized employment and working conditions with the aim of eliminating the worst forms of child labor;

Thailand

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

however, the number of labor inspectors is insufficient for the size of Thailand's workforce, which includes approximately 38.1 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Thailand would employ about 2,540 labor inspectors. (77) In addition, there are anecdotal reports of child labor inspections in informal sectors being insufficient due to labor inspectors' inability to access remote work places and safety concerns for inspectors. (16,25) Pandemic-related restrictions on movements also inhibited inspections in the formal and informal sectors. (16)

During the reporting period, the Ministry of Labor (MOL), Ministry of Interior, Ministry of Social Development and Human Security (MSDHS), and Royal Thai Police sent 115 officers and 433 labor inspectors and other relevant officers to participate in 3 workshops run by the U.S. Department of Labor-funded ATLAS Project. The workshops focused on building capacity for human trafficking and forced labor investigations. (25) DLPW also organized a training on laws related to forced labor and labor trafficking that was attended by 93 law enforcement officials and a training on enhanced law enforcement skills and screening for victims of labor trafficking that was attended by 100 labor inspectors. (25)

The Thai Maritime Enforcement Command Center has authority over the Command Center for Combating Illegal Fishing's (CCCIF) PIPO and FIP operations and the mandate to enforce Thai labor laws on fishing vessels—including stopping, searching, detaining, and arresting violators on vessels—within Thai waters or those fleeing to international waters. (4,5,16,22,29,71,78) During 2021, 135 integrated inspections of fishing vessels at sea were conducted, involving 716 fishing vessels and 8,532 workers. (22) However, NGOs report that inspections and efforts to enforce the Work in Fishing Convention No. 188 and the Protocol of 2014 to the Forced Labor Convention (P29) to identify victims on fishing vessels are inadequate. (24,25)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Thailand took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including lack of training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (16)	Yes (22)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (16)	Yes (22)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (16)	Yes (22)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (16)	39 (22)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (16)	Unknown (76)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	26 (16)	30 (22)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (16)	Unknown (22)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (16)	Yes (22)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (16)	Yes (22,25)

In 2021, the Thai Department of Juvenile Observation and Protection (DJOP) reported 2,872 cases of children involved in the production and trade of narcotics. Child victims involved in criminal activities were taken to DJOP facilities, where they received rehabilitation services and other social services during the judicial process. (25) The Government of Thailand also reported the rescue of 57 child victims of commercial sexual exploitation and 5 child victims of human trafficking. (22)

During the reporting period, 1,257 police investigators and administrators were trained on policies, laws, and techniques to conduct criminal investigations and prosecutions related to the worst forms of child labor and human trafficking crimes through training conducted by the government and donors. (25) The OAG also organized 5 trainings on trafficking in persons prosecution for 279 newly assigned public prosecutors in provincial offices to enhance expertise on child trafficking and online sexual exploitation of children, using a victim-centered and trauma-informed care approach. (68) However, research indicates that human trafficking may be underreported due to inconsistencies in the identification process and enforcement training gaps, including understanding the gravity of human trafficking crimes and victim identification training amongst police, prosecutors, and judges. (24,47,79) This includes a lack of understanding of the use of male children in commercial sexual exploitation among some provincial government and court officials due to the notion that boys should be able to defend themselves against perpetrators. (5,29)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Committee to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Coordinates the implementation of child labor policies, facilitates cooperation among relevant ministries, and reports annually to the Thai Cabinet on child labor issues. Chaired by MOL, with representation from other government agencies, employer and worker associations, and civil society groups. (22,25) Oversees two subcommittees responsible for monitoring the National Policy and Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor. (40) Held one meeting during the reporting period. At this meeting, the Committee discussed the results of the government of Thailand's efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor and upcoming national policies and plans related to child labor, including World Day Against Child Labor and the "Prevention and Correction of Child and Forced Labor" MOU. (22,25) Participants also discussed a draft report on the government's efforts to address child labor in 2021 and a draft amendment to the occupations considered to be hazardous for children. (22,25)
National and Provincial Committees on Child Protection	Coordinate with government agencies and private sector representatives to monitor and protect children's social welfare and safety, including monitoring public and private workplaces for child labor violations. (22,54) Led by MSDHS with participation from DLPW and the Ministries of Education and Public Health. (44) During the reporting period, the committee held three meetings. Activities included approving the Local Performance Assessment on Child and Youth Development budget for 2022, and requesting that the Ministry of Interior (MOI) develop a capacity-building plan for the Department of Local Administration officers responsible for protecting and caring for children. (76)
Fishing Regulatory Units	The National Policy Committee on Anti-Trafficking in Persons and Illegal, Unreported, and Unregulated Fishing coordinates anti-trafficking in persons policies and activities and oversees five subcommittees, including the Subcommittee on Child Labor, Forced Labor, and Migrant Workers. Chaired by MOL. (4,22,40) The Provincial Coordination Center for Sea Fishery Workers (operated jointly by MOL, Marine Police, Provincial Administration, and Fishers' Association) compiles registration records and information on work permits for migrants working on fishing vessels, and works with vessel owners to ensure that undocumented migrant workers are registered. Also monitors and coordinates inspections of working conditions on fishing vessels, provides trainings on labor protection, receives human trafficking complaints, and coordinates with other agencies to provide assistance, remedy, and rehabilitation services for survivors. (29) The Thai Maritime Enforcement Command Center oversees government efforts to combat illegal fishing and human trafficking in the fishing industry, including searching, investigating, and arresting vessel operators who are suspected of using illegal labor onboard. (22) The Department of Fisheries operates 30 Port-In-Port-Out (PIPO) Centers and 21 Forward Inspection Points (FIP), which are located in every coastal province. (22,29,71,78) Carries out inspections in the fishing industry. (22,78,80) PIPO Centers enforce laws related to fishing and labor, including child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking, through inspections at ports and at sea. PIPO Centers are staffed by officers from the Department of Fisheries, the Marine Department, DLPW, Department of Employment, and interpreters. (22,29,45) During the reporting period, PIPO Centers investigated 14,265 fishing vessels. (22)
Division of Anti-Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates anti-trafficking activities, including those involving forced child labor, child trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation. Monitors 76 Provincial Operation Centers for the Prevention and Suppression of Human Trafficking. (40) Provides assistance and welfare protection to survivors of human trafficking. (22) Acts as the secretariat for both the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Committee and the Coordinating and Monitoring of Anti-Trafficking in Persons Committee. Operates under MSDHS. (5,25,40) During the reporting period, held a training for officials from 76 provinces on screening for and assisting survivors of human trafficking and forced labor, and a training for officials working in protective shelters on innovative therapy methods to prevent psychological trauma in survivors of human trafficking. (25)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including a lack of efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Thailand

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy and Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor Phase III (2021–2022)†	Seeks to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in Thailand in accordance with international labor standards. Focused on (1) preventing the worst forms of child labor, (2) rescuing, protecting, and rehabilitating children from the worst forms of child labor, (3) integrating systems and mechanisms for the elimination of the worst forms of child labor, and (4) communicating with the public. (22) During the reporting period, commemorated World Day Against Child Labor (June 12) by publishing resources about child labor and hosting online events with 219 participants from the public and private sectors, civil society, and students. In addition, in March 2021, the MOL and 13 business associations in the shrimp, fish, sugarcane, and garment industries signed an MOU titled "Prevention and Correction of Child and Forced Labor" to prevent child labor and forced labor by applying Good Labor Practices to these industries. (22) MOL plans to hold trainings for member associations on labor practices and laws, and to conduct audits to ensure compliance with the MOU. (22)
Cyber Tipline Remote Access Policy	Seeks to eliminate the online sexual exploitation of children in Thailand by partnering with the U.S. National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. Supports TICAC by permitting the RTP to request warrants to search the residences and electronic equipment of individuals for child pornography and initiate criminal prosecution. (22,80-83) In 2021, the network of cooperation was expanded to cover two more areas in Chiang Rai, led by ECPAT, and in Bangkok, led by Spring Program under the Education Foundation for Life and Society. (76)
National Strategic Plan (2018–2037)	Seeks to improve education access, particularly for vulnerable and poor children in remote areas, by increasing transportation to school, reforming the school subsidy program for poor families, and providing scholarships for children who stay in school. (4,22,84) Research could not determine what activities were held within the reporting period.

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (22)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Government Welfare Protection Centers for Victims of Trafficking†	MSDHS-operated human trafficking shelters, including 77 short-term and 9 long-term shelters that offer medical care, psychosocial services, education, and life skills education. (25) While reported to be active during 2021, research could not determine what activities were held during the reporting period. (76)
Migrant Learning Centers‡	NGO- and government-operated centers that provide basic education, life skills training, and vocational training to children in migrant communities along Thailand's borders. (4,22,25,45) During the reporting period, the Centers disseminated a document on "Measures for Educational Institutions to Prevent and Control the Spread of COVID-19"; however, no in-person activities were held. (76)
Child Advocacy Centers (CAC)†	Provide child-friendly spaces to conduct social, legal (including forensic interviews), and repatriation services to children who are survivors or vulnerable to human trafficking, including children trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation. (22,32,75,85) Between January–October 2021, 5 CACs provided services to 60 child victims in 45 investigations. (22)
Attaining Lasting Change for Better Enforcement of Labor and Criminal Law to Address Child Labor, Forced Labor, and Human Trafficking (ATLAS)	USDOL-funded project implemented by Winrock International to build host governments' capacity to address child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking by strengthening their laws and regulations, enforcement, and coordination. During the reporting period, the project hosted 8 workshops attended by a total of 362 government officials from MOL, MOI, MSDHS, Ministry of Justice, and RTP on child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking investigations. (22,76) Additional information is available on the USDOL website. (4,16,24,86)
UN Programs	Accelerating Progress towards an Integrated and Modernized Social Protection System for All in Thailand: (2020–2022), $ 2,661,815 funded by the Joint SDG Fund, 2-year project implemented by ILO, United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), IOM, and United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN WOMEN) to improve social protection coverage, including by increasing the number of children covered under the Child Support Grant to 2 million children. (22,87)

† Program is funded by the Government of Thailand.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (22,45,71,85,88)

During the reporting period, the MSDHS established the Child Protection Funds and Occupational Funds to support low-income and homeless families. The Ministry of Education also implemented a program in cooperation with MOL, Office of the Ombudsman, and other related government agencies to provide education on labor rights, assist with vocational training, and share job vacancies to 1,127 trainees who were identified as low-income, above the age for compulsory education, and were no longer continuing their studies. (22,25)

However, the lack of available research and data on the prevalence of child labor in high-risk sectors, such as agriculture, garment manufacturing, domestic work, and construction, makes it difficult for the Government of Thailand to design appropriate programs to address these issues. In addition, while access to education for migrant children has increased, some Migrant Learning Centers lack accreditation. (4,44,89)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Thailand (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the minimum age for work applies to children working outside of employment relationships.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Raise the minimum age for work to match the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children are comprehensive and include sectors in which child labor is known to occur, including paid participation in Muay Thai, in which there is evidence that children are exposed to physical dangers.	2018 – 2021
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2015 – 2021
	Collect and publish comprehensive data on the number of violations found, convictions, and penalties that are collected for all crimes related to child labor, including the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2021
	Ensure provincial government and court officials are provided adequate training on human trafficking issues—specifically in cases of male children in commercial sexual exploitation—to afford boys the same protections and victim assistance as girls.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure law enforcement officials report all human trafficking incidences.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure labor inspectors are provided training and resources necessary to conduct inspections at remote informal sector workplaces, including in agriculture and domestic work.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure Port-In-Port-Out centers are able to carry out their mandate, including by improving training and inspection capacity, and that the Work in Fishing Convention No. 188 and the Protocol of 2014 to the Forced Labor Convention (P29) are enforced so that victims of trafficking in persons on fishing vessels can be effectively identified.	2021
Coordination	Publish activities undertaken by coordination bodies, including the National and Provincial Committees on Child Protection.	2021
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor, including the National Strategic Plan (2018–2037).	2021
Social Programs	Improve access to education, especially for ethnic minority and migrant children, including by clarifying to school officials, either under the Ministry of Education or local governments, the necessary documents non-Thai students need to submit for enrollment, raising awareness of migrant children's right to education, and addressing language barriers for non-Thai speaking students, including on public school applications, and ensure Migrant Learning Centers are accredited. Ensure that there are sufficient social programs to assist children from vulnerable groups, such as LGBTQI+ children, who face additional barriers to education that may increase their risk of dropping out of school and engaging in child labor.	2012 – 2021
	Publish activities undertaken to implement key programs related to child labor, including the Government Welfare Protection Centers for Victims of Trafficking.	2021
	Conduct research and data prevalence surveys to ensure that there are sufficient social programs to address child labor in the agriculture, garment manufacturing, domestic work, and construction sectors.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that there are sufficient social programs to assist children from vulnerable groups, such as migrant children, who are at high risk of the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2021

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2021, Timor-Leste made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government established the Commission to Combat Trafficking in Persons and convicted two perpetrators of child sex trafficking, its second and third convictions under the 2017 Law on Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Persons. However, despite recent efforts to address child labor, Timor-Leste is receiving an assessment of minimal advancement because it continued to implement a practice that delays advancement to eliminate child labor. While no law or policy prohibits pregnant girls from attending school, reports continued of orders from school principals that forced girls to leave school when they became pregnant, making them more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Children in Timor-Leste are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor in street vending and commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. In addition, while Timor-Leste law provides for criminal penalties for the worst forms of child labor, there is a lack of authorization for labor inspection agencies to inspect or enforce labor standards in the informal agriculture and commercial sectors.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Timor-Leste are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in street vending and commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,2) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Timor-Leste.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	12.3 (40,337)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	83.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	12.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		105.2

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including cultivating and processing coffee† and growing vegetables and other crops (1,3,6,7) Fishing,† including work on boats and repairing nets (1,2,8-10)
Industry	Construction,† including brickmaking (1) Operating weaving and knitting machines (6,11)
Services	Domestic work† (1,3,7,10) Street work, including vending, begging, and scavenging (1,3,12) Shop keeping and selling goods in markets (6,10)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (7,10,13,14) Domestic and agricultural work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,7,9,14) Forced labor in street vending (3,15)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In Timor-Leste, some children are trafficked from rural areas to the capital city, Dili, and subjected to domestic work, commercial sexual exploitation, or forced labor. (7,9,16,17) Some rural families send children to live with relatives in Dili for school and work; however, there are reports that some of those children are forced to work, including as street vendors, to earn their keep. (17) The new Commission to Combat Trafficking in Persons is responsible for collecting government data on human trafficking. (18) Other children are trafficked transnationally, including to Indonesia. (16) Although data are limited, it is reported that children are sometimes directed to work on family farms against their wishes to supplement family incomes or to pay off family debts. (7,9,10,17,19)

Data from the most recent child labor survey in 2016 identified more than 26,000 children engaged in child labor under "other service activities," including domestic work, and identified 588 children as engaging as street vendors. However, in July the Commission for the Rights of the Child cited a slightly smaller figure of 300 children engaging as street vendors, sometimes in situations of forced labor. (3,15)

Although there is no government policy prohibiting girls from attending school while pregnant, research indicates that there were at least some school principals who forced pregnant girls to leave school. As a result, some pregnant students may also attempt to transfer schools, but they face additional difficulty obtaining transfer documentation, which is at the discretion of school principals. (9,10,19-21) This practice may make pregnant girls more vulnerable to involvement in child labor, including its worst forms. The Ministry of Education has drafted a policy to encourage girls to return to school after giving birth, but this policy has remained in draft status for several years, and there is no policy on providing education for girls during their pregnancy. (20)

Timor-Leste's education law requires 9 years of compulsory education; however, in practice, children must pay additional school fees to attend school. (22) Commonly required fees include school uniforms and supplies, which can hinder access to education, particularly for children from poor and rural areas. (3,19,23) In addition, the lack of sanitation facilities at schools can result in girls dropping out of school upon reaching puberty, and children with disabilities are often unable to attend school due to accessibility and infrastructure challenges. (3,19)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Timor-Leste has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Timor-Leste's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for hazardous work.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 68 of the Labor Code (24)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	17	Article 67 of the Labor Code (24)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		List of Hazardous and Prohibited Activities to Children Under the Age of 18 (25)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 155, 162, 163, and 166 of the Penal Code; Articles 8 and 67 of the Labor Code (24,26)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 81 of the Immigration and Asylum Act; Articles 162–164 and 166 of the Penal Code; Article 67 of the Labor Code; Article 18 of the Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking (24,26-28)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Fourth Amendment to Articles 163 and 164 of the Penal Code; Articles 155 and 174–176 of the Penal Code; Article 67 of the Labor Code (24,26,29)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 155 of the Penal Code; Article 67 of the Labor Code (24,26)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 17 of the Law on Military Service (30)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 14 of the Law on Military Service (30)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 125 of the Penal Code (26)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 11 of the Education System Framework Law (22)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 59 of the Constitution of the Democratic Republic of Timor-Leste; Article 11 of the Education System Framework Law (22,31)

A draft Child Protection Act was completed and submitted to Parliament during the reporting period, but it has not yet been passed. (3) A List of Hazardous Work has also been prepared, but it has not yet been approved by the Coordinating Ministry for Economic Affairs and will still need to be approved by the Council of Ministers. As a Decree Law, however, it will not require parliamentary approval. (3)

Research indicates that various sections of the Penal Code only criminalize the use, procuring, and offering of a child for prostitution, production of pornography, and pornographic performances when the child victim is younger than age 17. The Labor Code also only protects minors younger than age 17 in its prohibition on the use of child labor in hazardous work. (19,23,24,26,32,33) The 2017 Law on Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Persons raised the age of a minor from under age 17 to age 18 in that it imposes penalties to anyone “recruiting, transporting, transferring, housing, or harboring minors under the age of 18 for the purpose of exploitation.” The amendment states that exploitation includes a person’s labor or services, forced labor or debt bondage, begging, and slavery. (29)

Additionally, the minimum age of 17 for hazardous work is not in compliance with international standards because Timor-Leste fails to ensure that children receive adequate training in accordance with international standards in which the minimum age identified is below age 18. (23,24,26,33) The government has a draft Decree Law that will raise the minimum age of hazardous work to age 18, but it has not yet been submitted for approval to the National Parliament. (10,33) Although Timor-Leste has adopted the List of Hazardous and Prohibited Activities to Children Under the Age of 18, it is uncertain how this law will interact with the Labor Code, which only considers those under age 17 as children. (23,25,34) Lastly, although the Labor Code specifies the conditions and number of hours permitted for light work for children ages 13 to 15, it does not specify which activities qualify as light work. (24)

The minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (22,31)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

The government has yet to complete drafting implementing regulations and guidance on the 2017 Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking. (7,16)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Administration of the Labor Inspectorate General (IGT)	Falls under the Coordinating Ministry of Economic Affairs and conducts labor inspections (MCAE). Provides civil oversight of laws related to child labor; investigates incidents of forced labor; and refers potential criminal violations of labor laws to the Timor-Leste National Police (PNTL). (35)
National Police of Timor-Leste (PNTL)	Enforces criminal laws against forced labor, commercial sexual exploitation, child abuse, and human trafficking. Includes the Vulnerable Persons Unit, the immigration police, and the border police. (8,10)

The Ministry of Social Solidarity and Inclusion (MSSI) provides child victims with appropriate support services based on its own information and in response to referrals from agencies that are responsible for conducting child labor investigations, including the Administration of the Labor Inspectorate General (IGT) and the National Police of Timor-Leste (PNTL). (35) The MSSI maintains at least 1 technical officer in each of the country's 13 districts and 2 child protection officers in each of the 65 sub-districts, all trained to follow the government's standard operating procedures for identifying and referring victims to service providers. (16,17)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Timor-Leste took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the IGT that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including an insufficient number of labor inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Although Timor-Leste does meet the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 labor inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, the IGT reported that the number of labor inspectors is insufficient to conduct the required labor inspections. (8,9,19)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Research found that there are insufficient child labor enforcement protections for children working on family farms or in domestic work because IGT inspectors are only empowered to inspect formal workplaces, despite the fact that inspectors with the National Commission Against Child Labor routinely identify child labor in domestic work. (10,19) The IGT also had limited capacity to conduct inspections in Timor-Leste's rural areas, where child labor in the agricultural sector is prevalent. This limitation was due to a lack of available transportation, including funds to pay for fuel for government vehicles. (10,19)

Four inspectors and two administrative personnel received training on child labor during the reporting period. (3) Inspectors have dedicated office spaces and access to other non-monetary necessities to carry out inspections; however, government officials assessed that this amount was insufficient to fully discharge its mandate. They noted that of this amount, only $20,000 was dedicated for child labor issues. (3) In 2021, the IGT assessed this number as inadequate and stated that 6 of Timor-Leste's 13 districts have no resident inspectors. The IGT estimated that 5 inspectors in each district (for a total of 65) are needed to carry out its mandate. (3)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Timor-Leste took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	N/A (10)	No (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (10)	No (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (10)	No (3)
Number of Investigations	0 (10)	Unknown (3)
Number of Violations Found	0 (10)	Unknown (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (10)	1 (18)
Number of Convictions	0 (10)	2 (18)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (10)	Yes (18)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (10)	Yes (3)

The Vulnerable Persons Unit (VPU) of the PNTL is charged with the enforcement of criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (9,20) During the reporting period, the VPU did not receive any funding to carry out investigations. (3,10)

The curriculum for new and existing members of the judiciary includes trainings on human trafficking that criminal prosecutors can use to develop new human trafficking investigations and prosecutions. These trainings include methods for handling evidence, as well as questions that prosecutors can ask of witnesses and victims to more clearly delineate whether a case is trafficking-related, thus increasing chances of conviction. (37) However, the government has not finalized or disseminated comprehensive, government-wide standard operating procedures for victim identification. (7) The VPU has no records of child labor, forced child labor, child trafficking, child commercial exploitation or use of children in illicit activities in 2021. (3)

There are only 33 judges and 34 prosecutors to handle the criminal and civil caseload of the entire country, and, as a result, cases can remain pending without a court date for long periods of time. (16) In addition, potential human trafficking cases can be misclassified due to a lack of evidence confirming trafficking, as well as unfamiliarity with trafficking in persons cases though it is improving. (16,38) During the reporting year, the government convicted two perpetrators for child sex trafficking in the second case convicted under the 2017 Law on Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Persons. The government also opened a case involving five perpetrators, including a village police officer, in a child sex trafficking case of a Timorese victim. (39)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

The VPU reported that no new child labor complaints were reported to it in 2021, leading to no investigations made or violations found. (18) The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report, including information on training for criminal investigators, number of investigations, and number of violations found.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of information on steps agencies have taken to address child labor during the reporting year.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission Against Child Labor (CNTI)	Facilitates information sharing on child labor issues among government agencies and serves as the coordinating mechanism for filing and responding to child labor complaints. (3) Develops child labor policies, raises awareness, and contributes to efforts to ratify and implement international conventions related to child protection. Develops the national plan against child labor. (20,33) Disseminates formal information on the normative and technical framework applicable to child labor. Elaborates, approves, and periodically reviews the hazardous work list of jobs prohibited for children under age 18. (20,33) Chaired by the Secretariat of State for Professional Training and Employment Police (SEPFOPE). (3,40) Other members include the PNTL; Timorese Labor Union Confederation; youth empowerment NGO Forum Tau Matan; Ministry of Tourism, Commerce, and Industry; Ministry of Social Solidarity and Inclusion (MSSI); Ministry of Education, Youth, and Sports; Ministry of Justice; and MCAE. (3) Met regularly in 2021. (3)
Commission to Combat Trafficking in Persons*	Replaced the Inter-Agency Anti-Trafficking Working Group. (3) Ensures inter-ministerial coordination among government and civil society stakeholders to effectively implement the government's laws and policies to combat human trafficking. Promotes cooperation with foreign entities in the fight against human trafficking and monitors implementation of the conventions that Timor-Leste has ratified or will ratify in this matter. (3) Established in June 2021 and held its first meeting in November. (3,17) Developed a 1-year action plan that focuses on strengthening the government's prosecution, protection, and prevention efforts relating to human trafficking cases, including those involving children, and is responsible for coordinating its implementation. (17)
MSSI—National Commission for Children's Rights	Overseen by MSSI. Responsible for conducting awareness-raising campaigns related to child labor. (9,10) The National Commission for Children's Rights was active in 2021 in advocating for the Child Protection law currently under review in the National Parliament. The Commission celebrated International Children's Day and was active in coordinating the work of government ministries to implement the National Action Plan for Children in Timor-Leste. (18)
Provedor for Human Rights and Justice	Assumes responsibility for sharing information related to child labor with CNTI, SEPFOPE, and PNTL. (9) Coordinates with SEPFOPE, PNTL, the National Commission for Children's Rights, MSSI, the Ministry of Justice, and the Ministry of State and Administration. (20) Remained active during the reporting year, including sharing information on child labor to other agencies. (3)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Timor-Leste National Action Plan Against Child Labor	Aims to strengthen implementation of ILO C. 182 by establishing the Child Labor Commission Working Group, developing a hazardous work list, and creating a national action plan against child labor. Launched in 2009 in partnership with the ILO and the Government of Brazil. (3,10) During the reporting year, the action plan was finalized but has not yet been approved by the Council of Ministers. (3)
Timor-Leste Strategic Development Plan (2011–2030)	Provides short-term and long-term plans for the nation's development, including the eradication of the worst forms of child labor, poverty alleviation, and implementation of social transfer programs. Specifies commitments to improve the educational system over the next 20 years. (41) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement Timor-Leste's key policies related to child labor during the reporting period.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Although the National Action Plan Against Child Labor—which aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in Timor-Leste by 2025 and all forms of child labor by 2030—was finalized in 2016, the Council of Ministers had yet to approve it as of January 2022. (3,10,33,42,43)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Mother's Purse ( Bolsa da Mãe )†	MSSI program that provides an annual cash subsidy of $60 to $180 to poor families with a female head of household. Aims to improve the well-being of children by conditioning the subsidy on children's school attendance and regular medical visits. (44) In September 2021, the government approved a subsidy for a new generation of this program, with the intention to expand the program across the country within 5 years. (45)
Preparation for the New Generation ( Preparasun ba Jerasaun Foun )*†	Provides a monthly cash subsidy of $20 to families with children from 100 days of pregnancy to age 6. Program is still in pilot stage. (3)
Casa Vida †	Joint program between MSSI and the Australian Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade's Nabilian Program and Shelter Initiative. Provides shelter, health assistance, and psychological counseling to minor victims, including victims of child labor and its worst forms. (46) Provides specialized assistance for girls up to age 18 who have escaped situations of sexual violence. (20) Receives referrals from civil society organizations as well as the PNTL Vulnerable Persons Unit. (47) Remained active during the reporting period. (48)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor (MAPI6)	USDOL-funded global project implemented by the ILO to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, strengthen policies and government capacity, and promote partnerships to combat child labor and forced labor. (49) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Timor-Leste.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (50-52)

The government developed a 1-year action plan on addressing human trafficking for 2022, the first phase of a 5-year plan that will run from 2022–2026 once finalized. (17)

Although the government has implemented programs to address child labor, research found no evidence that it has developed programs to assist children working in agriculture and on family farms, or children involved in the worst forms of child labor. The Commission to Combat Trafficking in Persons' work plan includes raising awareness of human trafficking among the populations most at risk, including students, minors, and large families. (18)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Timor-Leste (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law protects children between the ages of 17 and 18 from engagement in all the worst forms of child labor, such as illicit activities, hazardous work, and commercial sexual exploitation.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that children receive adequate training specific to the type of work they are undertaking, and ensure that their health, safety, and morals are protected in accordance with international minimum age standards for hazardous work.	2017 – 2021
	Raise the minimum age for hazardous work to age 18 to meet international standards.	2020 – 2021

Timor-Leste

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the List of Hazardous Occupations and Activities Prohibited for Children is harmonized with the Labor Code and Penal Code.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions specify the activities in which light work may be undertaken.	2016 – 2021
	Finalize the implementation regulations and guidance on the 2017 Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking.	2020 – 2021
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2021
Enforcement	Ensure that the IGT is staffed with the appropriate number of labor inspectors to conduct the targeted number of labor inspections.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that labor and criminal law enforcement officials receive sufficient training related to the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking victim assistance.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that the Administration of the Labor Inspectorate General has the legal authority to conduct inspections in the informal sector, including on family farms and domestic work.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that labor and criminal law enforcement agencies receive sufficient funding to carry out inspections and investigations, especially in rural areas of Timor-Leste, including funding for vehicles and fuel.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that the Vulnerable Persons Unit receives funding to carry out investigations.	2020 – 2021
	Finalize and disseminate standard operating procedures related to human trafficking victim identification.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that criminal and civil cases are tried in a timely manner and that cases of human trafficking are properly classified.	2019 – 2021
	Collect, disaggregate, and publish criminal law enforcement data related to human trafficking.	2020 – 2021
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020 – 2021
Government Policies	Publish activities undertaken to implement key policies to address child labor during the reporting period.	2017 – 2021
	Adopt the National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor.	2016 – 2021
	Finalize and adopt the National Action Plan on Combating Human Trafficking.	2020 – 2021
Social Programs	Create a centralized database to capture human trafficking data that is accessible to all relevant government stakeholders.	2019 – 2021
	Improve access to education by eliminating school-related fees, making schools accessible for children with disabilities, and providing safe and healthy sanitation facilities, especially for girls.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that the Ministry of Education draft policy encouraging female students to return to school after giving birth is approved, and that a policy providing education for girls during their pregnancy is drafted.	2020 – 2021
	Publish activities undertaken to implement Mother's Purse (Bolsa da Mãe) and Casa Vida social programs during the reporting period.	2018 – 2021
	Institute programs to address child labor and the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation.	2017 – 2021

In 2021, Togo made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government created a new National Commission Against Trafficking in Persons and passed a new Labor Code that strengthened enforcement mechanisms. In addition, the government waived school fees for the 2021–2022 school year for all secondary school students due to the ongoing impact of the COVID-19 pandemic. However, children in Togo are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in domestic work. The government has not devoted sufficient resources to address child labor, and in 2021, the budget for the labor inspectorate declined by nearly 40 percent. In addition, the government does not publish data related to its criminal enforcement efforts with regard to laws on the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Togo are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in domestic work. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Togo. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	29.6 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	86.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	29.5
Primary Completion Rate (%)		88.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (4)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Demographic and Health Survey (DHS), 2013–2014. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Working in agriculture, including spraying pesticides and handling fertilizers (1,2,6) Herding animals (2,7)
Industry	Working in gravel quarries and sand mines, including excavating, crushing rocks, sifting gravel, using machinery, and carrying heavy loads† (2,7,9) Construction (8) Production of charcoal (2)
Services	Domestic work† (1,2,10) Begging and working as vendors and porters in the markets, sometimes carrying heavy loads† (2,5,8,9) Work as motorcycle repairmen (8,11,12) Garbage scavenging (8,11) Working at restaurants, sometimes at night (2)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced begging (9,11) Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2,3,13) Forced labor in agriculture, including in the production of coffee, cocoa, and cotton; in mining; in mechanic shops; in domestic work; in quarries; and in markets (3,10,14)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Togo is a source, transit, and destination country for child trafficking. Children from Benin and Ghana are trafficked to Togo for forced labor, including commercial sexual exploitation, while Togolese children are often trafficked to neighboring West African countries, where they are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor in agriculture and domestic work. (3,15,16) Children are also trafficked within Togo, primarily for domestic work, work in agriculture and markets, and commercial sexual exploitation. (6,16,17) The rural areas in central and northern Togo are major source regions for child trafficking. Traffickers illicitly and deceptively recruit children by promising impoverished parents lucrative employment for their children. (3,16) In addition, in a practice known as confiage, parents sometimes send their children to live with a friend or relative in a larger town or city. These children are often not sent to school and are subjected to labor exploitation and sexual abuse. (2,10,14) Research suggests that the economic impact of the COVID-19 pandemic may have led to an increase in children subjected to labor and sexual exploitation. (16)

While free public primary education is guaranteed under Togolese law, due to funding shortages, some primary schools charge supplemental fees to pay volunteer teachers not employed directly by the government. (18) Free education is not yet guaranteed at the secondary level. As a result, there is a significant decline in school enrollment between primary and secondary school, leaving children vulnerable to child labor. (19,20) In 2021, in response to the impact of the pandemic, the government announced that school fees would not be collected for public secondary schools for the 2021–2022 academic year. (2,21) Even when school fees are not charged, associated costs—including uniforms, books, and school supplies—make education prohibitively expensive for many families. (6,18,22,23) Research found that insufficient numbers of schools; poor school infrastructure, including inadequate sanitation and lack of access to toilets and water; physical and sexual violence; and long travel distances to school pose additional barriers for some children, especially in rural areas. (2,18,19,22,24)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Togo has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Togo's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of guaranteed free basic education.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 192 and 193 of the Labor Code; Article 262 of the Children's Code; Article 881.1a of the Penal Code (25-27)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 192 and 193 of the Labor Code; Arrêté 1556 Determining Dangerous Work Forbidden for Children (27,28)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 263 and 264 of the Children's Code; Articles 319.9 and 882 of the Penal Code; Articles 192 and 193 of the Labor Code; Articles 1–11 of Arrêté 1556 Determining Dangerous Work Forbidden for Children (25,27-29)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 7 and 192 of the Labor Code; Articles 264 and 411 of the Children's Code; Articles 150.3 and 151 of the Penal Code (25-27)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 192 of the Labor Code; Articles 2–6 of Law No. 2005-009 Suppressing Child Trafficking in Togo; Articles 264 and 411–414 of the Children's Code; Articles 150.3, 151, 317–323, and 882 of the Penal Code (25-27,30)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 192 of the Labor Code; Articles 264, 276.f, and 387–390 of the Children's Code; Article 224 of the Penal Code (25,27,29)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 192 of the Labor Code; Articles 264, 276.i, and 405 of the Children's Code; Articles 317.7, 319.9, and 329.8 of the Penal Code (25,27,29)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 426 of the Children's Code; Article 42 of Law No. 2007-010 Regarding the General Statute of the Togolese Armed Forces (25,31)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes*		Article 426 of the Children's Code; Articles 146.14, 147.11, and 342 of the Penal Code (25,26)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 426 of the Children's Code; Articles 146.14, 147.11, and 342 of the Penal Code (25,26)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article 35 of the Constitution; Article 255 of the Children's Code (25,32)
Free Public Education	No		Article 35 of the Constitution; Law No. 97-16 For the Creation of a Support Fund for Education; Décret 2009-129/PR for the Abolition of School Fees in Pre-Primary and Primary Schools (32-34)

* Country has no conscription (31)

In 2021, Togo adopted a new labor code that strengthened enforcement and penalty mechanisms. (27) While Togo's Arrêté 1556 prohibits several types of hazardous work for children under age 18, it still permits children as young as age 15 to perform some hazardous tasks, such as transporting heavy loads. This permission violates Article 3(3) of Convention 138, which permits children as young as age 16 (but not age 15) to perform hazardous tasks as long as their health, safety, and morals are fully protected, and they receive adequate training. (28,35,36) In addition, the law provides for free schooling only through primary school, while basic education is a total of 9 years and includes 3 years of lower secondary school. The failure to provide for complete free basic education may increase the risk of children's involvement in the worst forms of child labor. (32-34)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Civil Service, Labor, and Social Dialogue (MFPTDS)	Conducts labor inspections and enforces all labor laws, including child labor laws. (2) Runs a Committee for Social Reintegration of Children. (6) Through its Unit to Combat Child Labor, withdraws children from child labor situations, raises awareness, and collects data. (37)
Ministry of Justice and Government Relations	Enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor and prosecutes violators. (2,6,37)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Social Action, Promotion of Women, and Literacy (MASPFA), Director General for the Protection of Children	Raises awareness on child labor issues, enforces laws against the worst forms of child labor; provides technical assistance, and leads government efforts to address child trafficking. (2,12,16) Supports a network of 42 foster families in 4 regional capitals. (38) Operates the Allô 1011 hotline for reporting child abuse, including child trafficking. (3,38,39) Accepts reports to Allô 1011 via SMS text message, through a mobile application, or through a real-time interactive website. In 2021, received 31,333 calls to the Allô 1011 hotline, of which 2,036 were substantive and 38 were related to child trafficking or exploitation. (2,16) In 2021, undertook training on child trafficking and protection that included 214 participants and launched sensitization campaigns that reached approximately 8,000 people via radio broadcast. (2)
Ministry of Security's General Directorate of Judicial Police	Investigates crimes involving child victims, including child trafficking. Operates as part of the National Police in all five regions of Togo. (2,6,40)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Togo took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Civil Service, Labor, and Social Dialogue (MFPTDS) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$73,162 (6)	$39,061 (2)
Number of Labor Inspectors	128 (6)	123 (2)
Mechanism to Assess Civil Penalties	Yes (29)	Yes (27)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (6)	No (2)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A (6)	N/A (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (6)	N/A (2)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	819 (41)	Unknown (2)
Number Conducted at Worksite	250 (41)	Unknown (2)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	22 (35)	Unknown (2)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	8 (35)	Unknown (2)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	0 (35)	Unknown (2)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (6)	Yes (2)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (35)	Unknown (2)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (29)	Yes (27)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (6)	Yes (2)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (6)	Yes (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (6)	Yes (2)

The MFPTDS lacks sufficient resources for fuel and transportation, which may hinder its ability to conduct inspections. (2,41) From 2020 to 2021, the labor inspectorate's total budget declined by nearly 40 percent. (2) Routine inspections were conducted in the formal sector; however, the majority of child labor occurs in the informal sector, in which inspectors are legally allowed to inspect, but rarely do. (8,29) Although they are legally permitted to do so, inspectors did not inspect private farms or homes, in which children work in agriculture and domestic work. (2,27) The government did not provide information on the numbers of labor inspections conducted, inspections conducted at worksites, child labor violations found, penalties imposed, penalties collected, or the targeting of routine inspections for inclusion in this report.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Togo took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies, including deficient structures for investigation and prosecution planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (6)	Yes (2)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (6)	Unknown (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	N/A (6)	Unknown (2)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (6)	Unknown (2)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (6)	Unknown (2)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (6)	Unknown (2)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (6)	Unknown (2)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (6)	Unknown (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (6)	Yes (2)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts, including on the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions, and penalties imposed, for inclusion in this report. Investigators lacked the resources to adequately enforce the law. (2)

Assize Courts in Lomé and Kara handle all human trafficking cases, but research indicates that the courts are overburdened and slow, which deters victims from participating. While there is a referral mechanism between criminal law enforcement and social services, shortcomings exist in the coordination between police, social workers, and the justice system during the prosecution process. (16) An NGO reported that trafficking survivors are often reluctant to testify or assist with prosecution because their family members were complicit in the trafficking case. (16) Cases involving child trafficking may be settled outside of court due to difficulties gathering evidence. In addition, Ministry of Justice officials may be reluctant to impose fines or prison sentences in cases in which parents are involved due to a fear of perpetuating the poverty that originally led them to violate child trafficking laws. (6,9,38)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including insufficient allocation of financial resources.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee to Combat Child Labor	Serves as the coordinating government body for child labor issues. Includes representatives from 17 ministries and NGOs. (2) Was active during the reporting period promoting the 2020–2024 National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (PANLTE). (2)
National Commission Against Trafficking in Persons*	Responsible for drafting and implementing a national plan of action against trafficking in persons. Created in 2021 as a coordinating body to address and prevent trafficking in persons. (2,16)
National Committee for the Reception and Social Reintegration of Child Victims of Trafficking (CNARSEVT)	Manages anti-child trafficking efforts, acts as the government's central hub of information for human trafficking in Togo, and drafts an annual report providing data on human trafficking, which is sent to the Economic Community of West African States. (3,16) Housed under the Ministry of Labor and includes representatives from the Ministries of Justice, Health, Security, and Foreign Affairs. (2,13) Conducted awareness-raising campaigns for Arrêté 1556, which revised the list of prohibited hazardous work for children, and for the 2020–2024 National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (PANLTE). (16,41)
Federated Bodies	Includes 84 community-based child protection entities. Holds community dialogues to raise broad child abuse issues—including child trafficking—and to identify and implement programming such as awareness raising, counseling, and reporting. (3,35) Research was unable to determine the activities of these entities during the reporting period.

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

Research suggests that despite receiving funds from the ILO, UNICEF, and Expertise France, the National Committee for the Reception and Social Reintegration of Child Victims of Trafficking faced operational challenges due to lack of financial resources. (16)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including lack of implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (PANLTE) (2020–2024)	Taking a multisectoral approach, aims to take into account the formal and informal economies in the effort to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. (6,7,35) From March to July in 2021, was promoted by the government in national campaign to raise awareness for PANLTE. (2,35)
Trilateral Agreement to Combat Child Trafficking	Trilateral agreement between the Governments of Togo, Benin, and Burkina Faso to address child trafficking. Lays out specific responsibilities for origin, transit, and destination countries and aims for enhanced border controls and regional coordination (8,16,43) Due to the impact of the pandemic, the government was not able to fully implement the agreement during the reporting period. (16)
National Development Plan (2019–2022)	Aims to improve economic growth, structurally transform the Togolese economy, and strengthen social protection and inclusion measures, including the implementation of a national biometric identification system. (8,44) In December 2021, the government issued an update to the National Development Plan due to the impact of the pandemic. (2)

While the Education Sector Plan (2020–2030) does not directly address eliminating child labor, it includes efforts to stimulate demand for education, including targeting localities where school access and retention are weak, especially for girls. It also proposes the gradual expansion of free lower secondary education for all students, and free upper secondary education for girls. (18,35)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Reference Center for Guidance and Care of Children in Difficult Situations	MASPFA-run shelter in Lomé that receives child trafficking and child labor survivors referred through Allô 1011. Provides shelter as well as legal, medical, psychological, and social services. (16) The shelter was active during the reporting year. (16)
Novissi Cash Transfer Scheme	Run by Ministry of Digital Economy and Digital Transformation in cooperation with U.S.-based non-profit Give Directly. Makes direct cash transfers of roughly $20/month through mobile phones to Togo's poorest citizens in order to mitigate the worst effects of the pandemic. (45,46) Uses mobile phone data to identify the most vulnerable rural residents to receive cash transfers. (45,46) In February of 2021, expanded into the Savanes region, where over 244,000 additional people received transfers. Since 2020, has provided over 800,000 Togolese nationwide with direct cash transfers. (45,46)
McGovern-Dole Food for Education Program, 2020–2024	Provides free school lunch to an estimated 66,000 participants. Funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and implemented by Catholic Relief Services. (2,6) The program continued in 2021. (2)
Program of Cooperation UNICEF/Togo, 2019–2023	Aims to enhance child survival, education and development, child protection, and social inclusion in Togo. Includes efforts to reduce child vulnerability to exploitation, including by enhancing access to education, especially for girls. (47) During the reporting period, over 30,000 children in 158 schools received school supply kits, and 5,106 children who had been subjected to violence received legal, educational, and social services. (48)
World Bank-Funded Programs	Aim to address child labor by improving social safety nets for vulnerable families and by increasing access to education. The Safety Nets and Basic Services Project, a $29 million project implemented by MASPFA and the Ministry of Grassroots Development (ANADEB), aims to provide social safety nets to poor communities. (2,49–52) During the reporting period, the program continued to be implemented, and it extended to 2023. (2) Employment Opportunities for Vulnerable Youth Project (2017–2021), a $15 million program implemented by ANADEB, provided access to income-generating opportunities for targeted poor and vulnerable youth in Togo. (2) The program was completed in 2021. (2) The Improving Quality and Equity of Basic Education Project (2020–2026) aims to improve teaching and learning quality, to improve equitable access to basic education in select regions, particularly among girls, and to strengthen sector management. (20)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (16,38,53)

Social programs focus on alleviating poverty and promoting education rather than targeting specific sectors of child labor, such as domestic work, commercial sexual exploitation, and agriculture. The government relies heavily on NGOs and international organizations for the implementation of social programs. (2) A shortage of funds may hinder program implementation. (8)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Togo (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that written law prohibits children from performing all types of hazardous labor.	2020 – 2021
	Establish by law free basic education, including lower secondary education.	2021
Enforcement	Ensure that labor inspectors have the time and financial resources to carry out their primary duties of inspection and monitoring of labor laws.	2009 – 2021
	Conduct labor inspections in the informal sector as well as private homes and farms, in which children work in agriculture and domestic work.	2021
	Publish data on labor law enforcement efforts, including the numbers of labor inspections conducted, inspections conducted at worksites, child labor violations found, penalties imposed, penalties collected, or the targeting of routine inspections.	2021
	Publish data on criminal law enforcement efforts, including the number of investigations conducted, criminal violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions obtained, and penalties imposed for the worst forms of child labor.	2010 – 2021
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement officials receive training, including training for new officials, refresher courses, and training on new laws.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that criminal investigators have sufficient financial and physical resources to adequately enforce criminal laws against child labor.	2017 – 2021
	Enforce legal penalties for criminal violations, such as child trafficking.	2014 – 2021
	Ensure that court system processes for addressing child trafficking are timely so as not to deter victims from reporting.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure effective coordination between the criminal justice system and social services to allow survivors to receive adequate support during judicial proceedings.	2021
	Ensure federated bodies are active and report on their activities.	2021
Coordination	Ensure that the National Committee for the Reception and Social Reintegration of Child Victims of Trafficking receives adequate funding.	2021
	Fully implement any agreement signed to protect child trafficking.	2020 – 2021
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Education Sector Plan.	2013 – 2021
Social Programs	Increase access to education by eliminating school-related fees; ensuring that schools are free from sexual and physical violence; and increasing the number of schools; and improving school infrastructure and transportation, especially in rural areas.	2010 – 2021
	Ensure that social protection programs to address child labor receive adequate funding and are sufficient to address the scope of the problem in all relevant sectors.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that social programs specifically target child labor in commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and agriculture in addition to alleviating poverty and promoting education.	2019 – 2021

Although research found no evidence that child labor exists in Tokelau, in 2021, the government made no advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The government has not established adequate legal protections to prevent the worst forms of child labor, as the law does not criminally prohibit forced labor and child trafficking. In addition, Tokelau has not established a minimum age for work and does not prohibit hazardous occupations for children.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Tokelau. Table 1 provides one key indicator on children's education in Tokelau.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Primary Completion Rate (%)		109.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (6)

Although education in Tokelau is free, some children struggle to access reliable transportation to attend school. (1,2)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tokelau is a territory of New Zealand; however, New Zealand statutory law does not apply to Tokelau unless it is expressly extended to Tokelau. (3) International treaties are applied only with the consent of the Government of Tokelau. As a result, New Zealand's ratification of conventions does not apply automatically to Tokelau. (2,3) None of the key international child labor conventions ratified by New Zealand have been made applicable to Tokelau, including ILO Convention 138, Minimum Age of Work; ILO Convention 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor; the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC); the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict; the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography; and the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons. (2)

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 2). However, gaps exist in Tokelau's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	17	Article 33 of the Government of New Zealand's Defense Act (4)

NO ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 63(1) of the Tokelau Crimes, Procedures, and Evidence Rules Act (5,6)
Free Public Education	Yes		Part 1, Section 3 of the Government of New Zealand's Education Act (7)

* Country has no conscription (8)

† Country has no standing military (4)

Tokelau has not established a minimum age for work legislation, nor has the government determined the minimum age for hazardous work or the types of work that are hazardous for children. The government also does not prohibit slavery or slavery-like practices such as forced labor. (2) Tokelau's trafficking provision does not clearly criminalize domestic trafficking or the trafficking of children in the absence of force, fraud, or coercion. In addition, the government does not criminalize the use, procuring, or offering of children for prostitution, pornography, or pornographic performances. (2) Tokelau has also not criminalized the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs. (5) Although there are no armed forces in Tokelau, the law does not criminally prohibit non-state armed groups from recruiting children under age 18. (2)

New Zealand is responsible for the defense of Tokelau at the territory's request and consultation. (4,9)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor, including its worst forms. However, the Government of Tokelau has established relevant institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
National Assembly (General Fono)	Hears cases related to child welfare concerns, including child labor, if local village leaders are unable to resolve the case at the local level. (2)
New Zealand Ombudsman	Addresses and, if necessary, investigates citizens' complaints against a government office, including complaints related to child labor, child health, safety, and education. (2)

Labor Law Enforcement

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for labor law enforcement actions to address child labor, including its worst forms.

Criminal Law Enforcement

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for criminal law enforcement actions to address child labor, including its worst forms.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor. However, the Government of Tokelau has established a policy related to child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	A multi-national strategic framework program consisting of 14 South Pacific nations to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (10) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the strategy during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Tokelau (Table 5).

Table 5. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish a minimum age for work that meets international standards and conforms to the compulsory education age.	2016 – 2021
	Establish age 18 as the minimum age for hazardous work and determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children under age 18 in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2016 – 2021
	Establish laws that criminally prohibit forced labor, including slavery.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that laws prohibit the trafficking of children domestically and internationally for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor, and do not require the use of force to be established for the crime of trafficking.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use, procuring, and offering a child for prostitution, the production of pornography, and pornographic performances.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use of children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
Government Policies	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement the United Nations Pacific Strategy and that data on these activities are published during the reporting period.	2019 – 2021
Social Programs	Establish a reliable transportation program to ensure that children are able to attend school.	2018 – 2021

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2021, Tonga made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Government of Tonga and the Government of New Zealand launched a new joint education project outlining a 15-year policy framework for Tonga's education system. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Tonga is assessed as having made only minimal advancement because it continued to implement a practice that delays advancement to eliminate child labor. Research indicates that there are no labor inspectors and there is no legal authority to conduct labor inspections. Labor inspections are a key tool for identifying child labor violations, and their absence makes children more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Children in Tonga are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in farming and fishing. Gaps in the legal framework also remain; the country has no laws specifying a minimum age for work or defining hazardous forms of work for children under age 18, leaving children unprotected from labor exploitation. In addition, the government did not provide information on its labor or criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Tonga are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,2) Children also engage in child labor in farming and fishing. (3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Tonga. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Subsistence farming, fishing (3)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced domestic work (1-3)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-3)
	Use in illicit activities, including the trafficking of drugs (6-8)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

According to the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey published by the Government of Tonga in collaboration with UNICEF in 2020, 26.1 percent of children ages 5 to 17 were involved in child labor, with 29 percent of these children engaged in child labor in rural areas while 14 percent were in urban areas. (9,10) In addition, 28 percent of children were exposed to hazardous working conditions, which included working with dangerous tools, operating heavy machinery, carrying heavy loads, and exposure to extreme cold, heat, or humidity, among others. However, the survey did not provide information on the sectors in which children were engaged in child labor. (8-10)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

There was evidence indicating that the growing methamphetamine epidemic has resulted in drug dealers starting to recruit school-age children to assist with drug deliveries, while also getting them addicted to the drug. (6,7) There have been media reports of children as young as age 13 being arrested for possession of drugs for the purposes of distribution. (8)

Many school buildings remain inaccessible to students with physical disabilities, resulting in the attendance rates of children with disabilities to be lower than children without disabilities at all educational levels. (8)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tonga has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Tonga's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In September 2020, the Tongan Parliament passed the revised Employment Relations Bill, which establishes the minimum age for non-hazardous work at age 15 and would prohibit the categorical worst forms of child labor. (8) The bill also contains provisions establishing legal authority of the labor inspectorate to conduct labor inspections. (16-18) However, it is unclear whether the new law took effect during the reporting period, as it is required for an Act that has passed Parliament to be presented to the Tongan King for assent and published in the Gazette before it becomes law. (8,19)

The Parliament has not determined the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (20,21) In addition, although Article 70 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act prohibits some aspects of forced labor, it does not comprehensively or explicitly criminalize forced labor or slavery. (11)

The Criminal Offenses Act prohibits the procurement of women and girls under age 21 for commercial sexual exploitation, but it does not criminalize the procurement of boys for the same. In addition, the Act does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation, because the use of children under age 14 in the production of pornography is not criminally prohibited. (13) There are no criminal prohibitions that specifically prohibit using children in illicit activities, particularly in the production and trafficking of drugs, or the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups. (14) Although it does not appear that there are any laws that provide free basic education, there was a policy that provided for free basic education to all children between ages 6 and 14, which has lapsed. (15)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

Tonga lacks a functioning labor inspectorate for the enforcement of labor laws and regulations (Table 5).

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Trade and Economic Development (MTED)	Enforces labor laws, including those related to child labor and the worst forms of child labor. Drafted the Employment Relations Bill with the assistance of ILO. (8)
Tonga Police, Transnational Crime Unit, and Domestic Violence Unit	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. Respond to forced child labor and human trafficking violations and allegations of commercial sexual exploitation. (8) In collaboration with NGOs, handle and coordinate cases related to women and children. (8)
Ministry of Internal Affairs, Immigration Department	Collaborates with Tonga Police and MTED on the enforcement of criminal laws in cases in which foreign nationals are involved in the worst forms of child labor. (8)

There is no labor inspectorate and no legal authority to conduct labor inspections in Tonga. (8)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, the absence of labor inspectors at the national level in Tonga may have impeded the enforcement of child labor laws (Table 6).

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (20)	No (8)

While there is no labor inspectorate, the government did not provide information on other labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. Inadequate resources, including a lack of funding to hire and train the labor inspectors needed to target sectors in which child labor is present, hamper the government's capacity to enforce child labor laws in Tonga. (8) Business license inspectors employed by the Ministry of Trade and Economic Development are instructed to watch for child labor occurrences during field inspections. However, child labor inspections are complaint-driven, with police called in for suspected cases of child labor. (8) In addition, the government has yet to establish an adequate referral mechanism among the labor authorities, the police, and social welfare services. (8)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Tonga took actions to address child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (20)	Unknown (8)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (20)	Yes (8)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. The Tonga Police address crimes related to the worst forms of child labor and respond to requests if children are found to be engaged in child labor. (8) In addition, the Tonga Police coordinate with NGOs to handle labor abuse cases relating to women and children. The government maintains and operates a 24-hour hotline for emergency assistance, which is available to victims of child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking. (8)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 8). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	Addresses, develops, and implements strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and its worst forms. A multinational strategic framework program consisting of 14 South Pacific nations. (22) Activities during the reporting period were conducted under the UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022). (8,23)

During the reporting period, the Government of Tonga launched a joint project with the Government of New Zealand outlining a 15-year policy framework for Tonga's education system. This joint project effectively updated the previous education policy framework, which has been updated for 2021–2026. (24) In addition, Tonga Strategic Development Plan Nine indirectly addresses the root causes of child labor as it seeks to improve economic opportunities in the country, including those for youth. However, although the Government of Tonga has adopted an education policy framework and the Tonga Strategic Development Plan Nine, strategies to prevent and eliminate child labor have not been integrated into those plans. (8)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government participated in a program that may contribute to eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist in this social program, including the inadequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 9. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022)	Prioritizes children's rights, including the elimination of child labor and its worst forms. Multi-country program in 14 Pacific Island countries aligned with the UN Pacific Strategy 2018–2022. (23) During the reporting period, the government participated in UNICEF-supported child protection programming aimed at providing greater protection for vulnerable children. (8)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (8,25)

Although the Government of Tonga has implemented the UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022), which addresses the elimination of the worst forms of child labor, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children in commercial sexual exploitation, agriculture, and fishing. (23)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Tonga (Table 10).

Table 10. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2017 – 2021
	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2017 – 2021
	Accede to the Palermo Protocol.	2017 – 2021
	Implement labor regulations that include a minimum age of 15 for employment and a minimum age of 18 for hazardous work, in accordance with international standards.	2009 – 2021
	Create and publish a list of hazardous occupations and activities that are prohibited for children.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits forced labor, including debt bondage and slavery.	2015 – 2021
Legal Framework	Ensure that laws prohibit all forms of commercial sexual exploitation for both girls and boys under age 18.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that the law prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2014 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Establish by law free basic public education.	2016 – 2021

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Hire and train labor inspectors to conduct workplace inspections and enforce child labor laws.	2016 – 2021
	Establish and fund a labor inspectorate with the authority to conduct labor inspections, including routine inspections rather than performing inspections solely based on complaints received, and assess penalties for child labor violations.	2019 – 2021
	Provide labor authorities and criminal investigators with the training and resources necessary to enforce laws prohibiting child labor, including laws related to the worst forms of child labor, and conduct refresher courses.	2013 – 2021
	Establish formal referral mechanisms among the labor authorities, the police, and social welfare services to protect and rehabilitate children involved in child labor, including its worst forms.	2014 – 2021
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement activities, efforts, and relevant data.	2014 – 2021
Coordination	Establish a coordinating mechanism to address the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2021
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into relevant policies.	2017 – 2021
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor, including its worst forms, to inform policies and programs.	2017 – 2021
	Update all school buildings to ensure accessibility for students with disabilities.	2018 – 2021
	Implement social programs to address all worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, agriculture, and fishing.	2010 – 2021

In 2021, Tunisia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. In July 2021, the Tunisian parliament passed the Domestic Workers Bill, prohibiting the employment of children in domestic work. In April 2021, the Second Chance program, which reintegrates school dropouts ages 12 to 18 back into the educational system or provides them with vocational training, opened a new location. Additionally, in November 2021, a new emergency shelter for children in Tunis was created, along with five other shelters across the country dedicated to the needs of children. However, children in Tunisia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in domestic work and begging. Children also perform dangerous tasks in scavenging through garbage and in street work. Government officials have noted that the budget for staffing and logistics, such as fuel and transportation, is inadequate to carry out inspections, especially in remote areas of the country. In addition, the government was unable to provide complete data on its enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report, due to records management challenges and delays in the digitization of court records.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Tunisia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in domestic work and begging. Children also perform dangerous tasks in scavenging for garbage and in street work. (I-5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Tunisia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	3.0 (50,364)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	94.2
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	2.8
Primary Completion Rate (%)		106.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (6)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 4 (MICS 4), 2011–2012. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (1,3,8-12)
	Fishing, activities unknown (3)
	Animal husbandry, activities unknown (3)
	Forestry, activities unknown (3)
Industry	Construction, activities unknown (3,4,11,12)
	Manufacturing and industrial work (3,12)
Services	Domestic work† (1,3,4,9,12,13)
	Street work, including scavenging garbage† (1,3,10,12-15)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,8,14,16-21)
	Use in illicit activities, including stealing, smuggling, and drug trafficking (4,8,11-16,19,20)
	Forced labor in domestic work and begging (3-5,8,10,12,14,22,23)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Claims of exploitation of children—including sexual exploitation—have substantially increased since the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic. (12) In 2021, reporting indicates there was an uptick in the number of children being forced by criminal organizations to beg. (12)

Refugees and migrants who lack legal documentation, including child migrants, from sub-Saharan African countries and those fleeing unrest in neighboring countries are vulnerable to labor exploitation because refugees and migrants do not have the status to legally work in Tunisia. (24)

A 2017 National Child Labor Survey indicated that 7.9 percent of all children are engaged in child labor, 63.2 percent of whom are involved in hazardous work. The northwest region—consisting of the Governorates of Béja, Jendouba, Kef, and Siliana—registered the highest incidence of child labor at 27.7 percent. (3) Figures from the survey indicate that, of children ages 5 to 17 who work, 48.8 percent are engaged in agriculture and fishing, 20.2 percent in commerce, 10.9 percent in manufacturing, 6.4 percent in domestic work, and 4.7 percent in construction. (3,4) Young girls from Tunisia’s northwest and other interior regions are particularly vulnerable to human trafficking. (5,14,21,23)

Students face barriers to education, especially in rural areas, due to inadequate transportation and household poverty. (1,4,8,10,12,25) Middle and high school completion rates in poor and rural communities remain significantly lower than in wealthy and urban areas. (26)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tunisia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government’s laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 53 of the Labor Code (27)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 58 of the Labor Code (27)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Ministry of Social Affairs Order of April 1, 2020 (28)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 105, 171, 224, and 250 of the Penal Code; Articles 2.1, 2.5, 2.6, and 8.0 of the Law on the Prevention and the Fight Against the Trafficking of Persons (29,30)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 2, 3, 5, 8, and 23 of the Law on the Prevention and the Fight Against the Trafficking of Persons (30)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 226 ter, 232, and 234 of the Penal Code; Article 25 of the Child Protection Code; Article 2.7 of the Law on the Prevention and the Fight Against the Trafficking of Persons (29-31)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 5 and 11 of Law No. 92.52 on Narcotics (32)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 2 of the National Service Law (33)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 2 of the National Service Law (33)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 2(5) of the Law on the Prevention and the Fight Against the Trafficking of Persons; Articles 3 and 18 of the Child Protection Code (30,31)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section I of the Law on Education (34)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 38 and 46 of the Constitution; Law on Education (34,35)

In July 2021, the Tunisian parliament passed the Domestic Workers Bill, prohibiting the employment of children in domestic work. (12) The law allows inspectors to enter residences where children are believed to be working as domestic servants. (12)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Social Affairs (MSA)	Conducts labor inspections and assesses fines and penalties for infractions. (8,27) Employs social workers and medical inspectors to assist in addressing issues of child labor. (4) Collaborates with the Ministry of Education (MOE) and the Ministry of Health (MOH) to identify and provide support to children vulnerable to child labor. (8,10,17) Monitors the implementation of labor legislation, investigates violations, and initiates prosecutions through the General Directorate of Labor Inspection. Investigates cases of children working under the age of 18 and provides medical testing for children. (20) Implements social and orientation programs for minors relating to child labor through the General Administration for Social Development. (20)
Ministry of Women, Family and the Elderly (MWFE)	Gathers evidence and conducts investigations on child welfare cases; conducts needs assessments and implements intervention plans. Provides services to child victims of commercial sexual exploitation. (1) Trains child protection delegates to address child labor in the field through coordination with local governments and civil society. (1) Acts as judicial police in cases of imminent danger to children through its Delegates for the Protection of Children. (10,31)
Ministry of the Interior (MOI)	Investigates reports of the worst forms of child labor as a criminal violation, including complaints that fall outside of the labor inspectorate's mandate and those pertaining to the informal sector. Through its Child Protection Service in the National Police, addresses the commercial sexual exploitation of children and coordinates with MSA and MWFE regarding violations. (1,8,10) Through its Judicial Police, coordinates with MSA to refer cases of at-risk youth. (8,36,37)
Ministry of Justice (MOJ)	Coordinates anti-human trafficking efforts and the criminal enforcement of child labor laws. (17)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Tunisia took actions to address child labor (Table 6). (12) However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Social Affairs (MSA) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, such as financial penalties too low to serve as an adequate deterrent. (1,13)

Government officials have noted that the budget for staffing and logistics, such as fuel and transportation, is inadequate to carry out inspections, especially in remote areas of the country. (1) Although there are labor inspectors who monitor the informal sector in Ariana, Jendouba, Medenine, Sfax, Sousse, Tunis, and Tozeur, ministry officials note that the labor inspectorate lacks resources to adequately monitor the informal economy throughout the country. Informal work employs approximately 54 percent of the country's total workforce. (4,8,10,11,40)

Civil fines for violating child labor laws are weak, ranging from approximately $7 to $21 per infraction (20 to 60 TND) and are doubled for repeat offenders, though the total amount levied cannot exceed $1,667 (5,000 TND). Civil fines remain insufficient to deter potential violators. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Tunisia took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including deficient structures for prosecution planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (1)	Unknown (12)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (12)

Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (12)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (1)	Yes (12)

Judges are frequently reluctant to convict on human trafficking charges due in part to a low level of awareness on the part of police and judicial authorities of the proper application of the anti-human trafficking law and how to handle human trafficking cases. (1,13) Although the Ministry of Interior reports that children under the age of 18 are not routinely detained for involvement in illicit activities, there have been isolated incidents of law enforcement punishing children for their involvement in the worst forms of child labor. (1, 13)

The Ministry of Justice (MOJ) does not maintain comprehensive data as most records are not digitized. (1) The government was unable to provide comprehensive information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (12)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
The Leadership Committee to Combat Child Labor	Coordinates efforts to address child labor as part of the Child Labor National Action Plan (PAN-TN). Led by MSA, includes membership of 11 other ministries and 3 unions, with support from the ILO. (12) In September 2021, held a meeting entitled Joint Commitment to Unaccompanied Migrant Children, which was attended by the representatives from the National Authority to Combat Trafficking in Persons, the MOJ, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Ministry of Defense, the MOI, and the MSA, in addition to participants from international and national organizations dedicated to child protection. (12) The Committee also held roundtable sessions to raise awareness among children about child labor. These awareness-raising sessions benefited 560 children and encompassed various thematic areas, such as career planning, economic empowerment, and vocational training, as well as principles of the Tunisian labor code. (12) In addition, it continued to expand upon a previous pilot project, which coordinated efforts to eradicate child labor in the governorates of Sfax and Jendouba, by executing a guide of procedures for collaboration on child labor situations. (12) In 2021, the government launched a National Referral Mechanism (NRM), which helps identify and refer victims to care services to ensure their protection; this program is maintained by the National Authority to Combat Trafficking in Persons. The Council of Europe, as well as Switzerland, Norway, and civil society organizations helped develop the NRM. (12)
National Authority to Combat Trafficking in Persons ( Instance Nationale de Lutte Contre la Traite des Personnes )	Led by MOJ, coordinates anti-human trafficking efforts and raises awareness of human trafficking issues. Membership Includes 12 ministries, 2 members of civil society, a media representative, and a member of the National Commission of Human Rights. (17,37,41-43) In 2021, drafted a National Training Strategy that included stakeholders from across the Tunisian government, along with civil society actors involved in addressing human trafficking. (12) In October 2021, in partnership with the Council of Europe, published a guide for professionals to aid in supporting and reintegrating survivors of human trafficking. It also organized a virtual seminar to disseminate this guide and assist those working in the field of human trafficking to reintegrate survivors through social welfare programs in a process that is clear and streamlined. (12)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Child Labor National Action Plan (PAN-TN)	Raises awareness, builds the capacity of stakeholders, encourages action from NGOs and the public, improves policies, and promotes the implementation of existing laws and policies. (44,45) Active in 2021. (12)
National Strategy for the Combat of Trafficking in Persons (2018–2023)	Aims to establish a global evidence-based approach to address trafficking in persons by coordinating national and international actors. (5,14) Active in 2021. (12)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Tunisia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Project (PROTECTE)	A $4 million project implemented by ILO that aims to strengthen Tunisia's ability to implement the PAN-TN, a multi-stakeholder effort involving government, business, and civil society at the central and rural levels. Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Support Efforts to Combat Human Trafficking (2014–2022)	USDOS-funded project implemented by IOM to carry out anti-human trafficking activities in collaboration with MOJ, MOI, MSA, and MWFE. Includes three objectives: building the capacity of relevant institutions and agencies to identify and assist victims of human trafficking based on their individual needs; strengthening cross-sector cooperation and the sharing of information through the implementation of a national referral mechanism; and conducting an awareness-raising campaign to keep children in school and discourage illegal migration that could lead to human trafficking. (1)
Centers to Provide Aid to Victims of Child Labor†	Serve up to 6,000 children engaged in child labor or vulnerable to child labor through the maintenance of 79 youth centers. (46)
Shelters and Services for Victims of Human Trafficking†	Serve survivors of human trafficking, predominantly children, through the operation of shelters by the Government of Tunisia. Provide lodging, food, clothing, psychological services, legal aid through a network of pro bono lawyers, and free medical care in collaboration with MOH. Place adults and unaccompanied children in dedicated centers to receive schooling. (16,47) In November 2021, a new emergency shelter for children in Tunis was created, along with five other shelters across the country dedicated to the needs of children. (12)
Programs to Reduce School Dropout Rates‡	MOE-funded School Dropout Prevention Program that maintains about 2,300 social protection units in schools and mobile units in rural areas to monitor students and prevent them from dropping out. (46) Includes a project operated by the Ministry of Vocational Training and Employment to incorporate students who have dropped out into vocational training programs. (20)
Second Chance Program	Pilot program funded by MOE, in cooperation with UNICEF, the Government of the United Kingdom, and several government ministries, to reintegrate school dropouts ages 12 to 18 back into the educational system or provide them with vocational training. (1,46) In April 2021, Second Chance opened a new location. This is part of the first phase of the social program designed to meet the needs of over 1,000 dropout students in Tunisia. (12)

† Program is funded by the Government of Tunisia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (37)

Although Tunisia has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including in agriculture, fishing, commerce, manufacturing, domestic work, and construction. In addition, while the National Authority works to ensure the safety of child victims of labor exploitation and trafficking in persons, options for victims' long-term support and possible relocation remain extremely limited. (13,21)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Tunisia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Provide adequate staff and other resources, including fuel and transportation, to enable the labor inspectorate to conduct a greater number of inspections, particularly in remote areas and in the informal economy.	2015 – 2021
	Collect and publish information related to the enforcement of child labor laws, including the training of labor inspectors, the number and types of labor inspections conducted, the penalties imposed, and penalties collected.	2013 – 2021
	Collect and publish information on criminal law enforcement of child labor laws, including on law enforcement training and the number of criminal child labor investigations that were initiated, violations identified, prosecutions initiated, convictions secured, and penalties imposed for the worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2021
	Increase penalties for those who employ children in violation of child labor law protections to deter potential violations and reduce recidivism.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that law enforcement and the judiciary are fully informed as to the existence and application of anti-human trafficking penalties and impose when appropriate.	2020 – 2021

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Publish the microdata of the 2017 National Child Labor Survey so that the information can inform programming and policies.	2017 – 2021
	Address barriers to education, especially for children in rural areas, such as unreliable transportation, and physical violence in schools.	2015 – 2021
	Expand existing programs to fully address the scope of the child labor problem, including in agriculture, fishing, commerce, manufacturing, domestic work, and construction.	2015 – 2021
	Establish long-term support and relocation options for survivors of child labor and trafficking in persons.	2020 – 2021

In 2021, Tuvalu made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Government of Tuvalu published the results from the Tuvalu Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 2019–2020, which provides the country's most recent and comprehensive data on child labor. However, although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Tuvalu engage in child labor in fishing and domestic work. The government has not specified, by national law or regulation, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, leaving children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. In addition, Tuvalu lacks information on labor law and criminal law enforcement efforts.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Tuvalu engage in child labor in fishing and domestic work. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Tuvalu. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	8.5 (Unavailable)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	79.4
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	8.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		89.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (3)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6, 2019–20. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Fishing, activities unknown (5)
Services	Domestic work (5)

During the reporting period, the government published the results from the Tuvalu Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6) 2019–2020, which provides the most recent and comprehensive data on child labor in Tuvalu. The survey estimated that 4 percent of children ages 5–17 in Tuvalu are engaged in child labor, with 16.2 percent of these children engaging in hazardous work. (6–8) The main types of hazardous conditions that children engaged in include carrying heavy loads, exposure to extreme cold or heat, and working with dangerous tools or operating heavy machinery, among others. However, the MICS 6 did not specify the sectors in which children in Tuvalu were engaged in child labor. (6–8)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tuvalu has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Tuvalu's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the identification of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 42 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act (9)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 44 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act (9)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article 3 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act; Articles 46–49 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act; Articles 244 and 249 of the Penal Code; Article 18 of the Constitution of Tuvalu (9-12)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Article 68 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act; Articles 136 and 244 of the Penal Code (10,12)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 46 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act; Articles 136 and 140–143 of the Penal Code (9,10)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 46 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act; Articles 141–142 of the Penal Code (9,10)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A†
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Section 46 of the Labor and Employment Relations Act (9)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Education Order (13)
Free Public Education	No		Free Education Policy (6,14)

† Country has no standing military (14)

During the reporting year, the Government of Tuvalu held virtual consultations on the ratification of the minimum age convention with the ILO. In addition, the government is finalizing the Child Care and Welfare Bill following Cabinet review. (6) The Bill makes comprehensive provisions for child rights, protection, and welfare in accordance with the principles and provisions of the UN CRC. (6) The Government of Tuvalu has not specified, by national law or regulation, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children; previous provisions only applied to males under age 18 in the industrial, mining, and fishing sectors. (1,9,15) Laws prohibiting forced labor are not sufficient as they do not criminalize slavery and practices similar to slavery or debt bondage and forced or compulsory labor. (9-12) Tuvalu's laws prohibiting child trafficking are insufficient as they do not criminalize domestic trafficking. (10,12) In addition, although it does not appear that there are any laws that provide free basic education, there is a policy that sufficiently provides for free basic education. (6,14)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor and the Ministry of Public Works, Infrastructure, Environment, Labor, Meteorology and Disaster	Enforces labor laws, including those related to child labor. (6)
Tuvalu Police Force	Investigates and enforces criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (6)

Labor Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether labor law enforcement agencies in Tuvalu took actions to address child labor (Table 6).

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Number of Labor Inspectors	4 (5)	4 (6)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (5)	Yes (6)

The labor inspector cannot assess civil penalties, but may refer matters to the Office of Attorney General for criminal prosecution and the assessment of penalties upon conviction. (9) The government did not provide information on its allocation of funding to the labor inspectorate or labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (6)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Tuvalu took actions to address child labor (Table 7).

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (5)	N/A (6)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Number of Convictions	0 (5)	0 (6)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (5)	Unknown (6)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (5)	Yes (6)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (6)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Advisory Committee on the Convention on the Rights of the Child (NACCRC)	Coordinates child protection issues and implements the Convention on the Rights of the Child to prevent and eliminate child labor. Led by the Ministry of Education, Youth and Sports (MEYS) and includes representatives from the Tuvalu Police and Ministries of Labor and Social Welfare. (6) Maintains a Child Protection Desk to support and coordinate the implementation of child protection efforts, and ensures the coherence of child protection intervention efforts. (6) NACCRC was not active in 2021. (16)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	Addresses, develops, and implements strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. This multi-national strategic framework program comprises 14 South Pacific nations. (17) Activities during the reporting period were conducted under the UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022). (18,19)
Child Protection Work Plan	Includes the drafting of a Child Protection Bill and a Child Protection in Schools Policy, with implementation plans and cost estimates. (20) Involves public relations activities, such as awareness raising and advocacy. (21) During the reporting period, the government was finalizing the Child Care and Welfare Bill following the Cabinet's review of the proposed law. The Child Protection in Schools Policy is being revised and renamed as the Child Safe Schools Policy following consultations held by MEYS. (6) During the reporting period consultations were held with children and adults in communities and schools in five of nine islands in Tuvalu. (6)
Free Education Policy	Provides free primary education for all children in Tuvalu. (13) Active during the reporting period. (6)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (2)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem, especially in the fishing sector.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
UNICEF Pacific Multi-Country Child Protection Program (2018–2022)	Prioritizes children's rights including the elimination of the worst forms of child labor. Multi-country program in 14 Pacific Island countries aligned with the UN Pacific Strategy 2018–2022. (18) During the reporting period, UNICEF collaborated with the Government of Tuvalu to launch the results of the MICS 6 2019–20. In addition, UNICEF is supporting the government on child protection intervention programs, including coordinating child protection activities in Tuvalu in the absence of NACCRC. (6,19,22)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (6)

Research found no evidence of programs that specifically address child labor in the fishing sector.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Tuvalu (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2013 – 2021
	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2013 – 2021
	Accede to the Palermo Protocol.	2013 – 2021
	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for all children in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that laws prohibiting forced labor criminalize slavery and practices similar to slavery or debt bondage and forced or compulsory labor.	2021
	Ensure that child trafficking laws criminalize the domestic trafficking of children.	2021
	Establish, by law, free basic public education.	2019 – 2021
Enforcement	Publish labor law enforcement information, including labor inspectorate funding, the ability to assess penalties, number of labor inspections conducted, number of labor inspections conducted at worksite, number of child labor violations found, number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed, number of child labor penalties imposed that were collected, whether routine inspections were conducted, and whether unannounced inspections were conducted.	2016 – 2021
	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors, including by training new labor inspectors at the beginning of their employment and providing refresher courses.	2020 – 2021
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2020 – 2021
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts, including initial training for new criminal investigators, training on new laws related to the worst forms of child labor, whether refresher courses were provided, number of investigations related to the worst forms of child labor, number of violations found, number of prosecutions initiated, and number of imposed penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2017 – 2021
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are active and able to carry out their intended mandates.	2021
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor, including in the fishing sector, to inform policies and programs.	2010 – 2021
	Institute programs to address child labor in the fishing sector.	2009 – 2021

In 2021, Uganda made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government increased its efforts to investigate, prosecute, and sentence government officials complicit in facilitating the worst forms of child labor. Uganda also reconstituted its National Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child Labor. In addition, the government approved a new national action plan to address child labor. However, children in Uganda are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in gold mining. The lack of a centralized supervisory authority along with inadequate funding, training, and resources, hampered the capacity of law enforcement agencies to conduct child labor inspections and investigations. In addition, the law only guarantees free education through the primary level, which does not meet the international standard that free basic education through lower secondary school be guaranteed by law.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Uganda are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1,2) Children also perform dangerous tasks in gold mining. (3,4) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Uganda.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Traffickers exploit Ugandan boys and girls in forced labor and sex trafficking in Uganda and abroad, with children increasingly at risk due to COVID-19 pandemic-related school closures. (2,12,17,18) They routinely use false job opportunities to lure children from rural areas to urban areas and subsequently exploit the children in forced labor or sex trafficking. Traffickers also exploit Ugandan children in forced labor and sex trafficking in neighboring countries, such as Kenya and Somalia, and in the Middle East and South Asia. (16-20) Children from rural areas, especially the Karamoja region, are vulnerable to human trafficking, and at times willingly migrate to Kampala and other urban centers, where they are forced into begging, street vending, domestic work, or commercial sexual exploitation. (12,16,21) NGO and media reports have indicated that children from Karamoja are sold in open-air markets or through intermediaries and forced into domestic work, begging, cattle herding, and commercial sexual exploitation. (1,2,22) Well-organized networks of traffickers force children into street begging and girls into commercial sexual exploitation. Traffickers often physically abuse children for failing to collect a designated amount of money. (2,21) Traffickers also exploit children from neighboring countries, including Kenya, Rwanda, and Tanzania, in forced agricultural labor, domestic servitude, and commercial sexual exploitation in Uganda. (2,18,21)

Child labor rates in general in Uganda have also seen an increase over the course of the pandemic. (12) During the reporting period, the Uganda Bureau of Labor Statistics released its 2019–2020 National Household Survey, which includes a component on child labor. The survey found that, as a result of school closures, child labor rates for children between the ages of 5 and 17 increased from 14 percent prior to the pandemic to 22 percent since the start of the pandemic, to a total of 2,702,000 children. (23) Child labor rates in rural areas nearly doubled as a result of the pandemic, and the prevalence of children working in markets, on farms, in mines, and as domestic workers, as well as children used for commercial sexual exploitation, increased. (9-12)

The Bureau also released a baseline study in cooperation with the End Child Labor in Tobacco Growing Foundation measuring child labor rates in the western districts of Hoima and Kikuube, which found that 3 out of 10 children between the ages of 4 and 17 were involved in some form of hazardous labor, and that over 30 percent of children between the ages of 5 and 17 were combining school with work (averaging 22 hours of work per week). (12,24) Children were found to be working in the agriculture, forestry, and fishing sectors, including 18 percent of working children involved in commercial crop farming of tea, tobacco, sugarcane, and rice, among others. (12,24)

In yet another study, the Bureau partnered with UN Women to measure violence against children ages 10 to 14 and found that 39 percent were involved in hazardous work. The study noted that in northern Uganda, this rate was as high as 74 percent. (12)

In other parts of the country, girls worked in gold mines in Karamoja in northern Uganda, and boys grazed cattle in Rwenzori in western Uganda. Meanwhile, children in the Bidibidi refugee settlement in northwestern Uganda were engaged in hazardous labor, including working on farms and as domestic workers, which may include working long hours and physical, verbal, and sexual abuse. (9,25)

While Ugandan law provides for free primary education, the cost of school supplies, uniforms, and other materials often prohibits children from attending school. (1,4,26) Research also found that children experience physical and sexual abuse at school by teachers and classmates. (27) Furthermore, a lack of teachers and school infrastructure and poor transportation in remote rural areas have created barriers to children's access to education. (1,13,28) Although the Government of Uganda implemented alternative instruction strategies due to the COVID-19 shutdown—such as printed materials and radio and televised instruction—poor, rural, and vulnerable children were less likely to be able to access the alternative resources. (9,11,12)

Laws on free primary education apply equally to refugee children, but refugee children are often not enrolled in or not attending school. Girls, especially those in refugee camps, are at particular risk of being out of school and vulnerable to exploitation due to pressure to undertake domestic duties, gender-based violence, and harassment. (20,29,30) In addition to the same obstacles faced by Ugandan children, refugee children may face discrimination from fellow pupils and teachers due to their refugee status, and they may also experience language barriers. (31) For a number of refugee settlements, such as Nakivale, schools are often located far from where refugees live and are inadequately equipped to meet the needs of the large student population. (32)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Uganda has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Uganda's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of free basic education guaranteed by law.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Section 7 of the Children (Amendment) Act (33)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	18	Section 7 of the Children (Amendment) Act; Section 32 of the Employment Act; Regulations 5 and 8 of the Employment (Employment of Children) Regulations (33-35)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Regulation 6 and the First Schedule of the Employment (Employment of Children) Regulations; Section 7 of the Children (Amendment) Act (33,35)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 2 and 5 of the Employment Act; Sections 3–5 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (34,36)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 8 of the Children (Amendment) Act; Sections 2–6 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (33,36)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Section 8A of the Children (Amendment) Act; Sections 2–5 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act; Sections 131 of the Penal Code; Section 14 of the Anti-Pornography Act (33,36–38)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 5(d) of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act; Article 88 of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (Control) Act (36,39)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 52(2)(c) of the Defense Forces Act (40)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Section 5(b) of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (36)
Compulsory Education Age	No	13‡	Sections 2 and 10(3)(a) of the Education Act (26)
Free Public Education	No		Section 10(3)(a) of the Education Act (26)

* Country has no conscription (40)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (26)

After delays due to the pandemic, the government resumed its efforts to harmonize its legal provisions, and during the reporting period the Cabinet passed the Principles for the Amendment of the Employment Act. (12) The First Parliamentary Council is now drafting the bill, which includes measures to expand protections to informal, domestic, and migrant workers. The bill would also prohibit the hiring of children under the age of 16 as domestic workers. (12,41,42)

Uganda's existing legal framework governing child labor does not meet international standards on a number of points. While Uganda has a list of hazardous occupations prohibited to children under the age of 18, Section 8 of the Employment of Children Regulations permits a commissioner to allow children age 12 and older enrolled in an educational training or apprenticeship program to engage in hazardous work, in violation of international standards. (35) Children in Uganda are required to attend school only up to age 13. (26) This standard makes children ages 13 to 15 vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to attend school but are not legally permitted to work. Finally, although Uganda has adopted policies to extend universal education through secondary level, by law free education is limited to the primary level. (26,44)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Gender, Labor, and Social Development (MGLSD)	Sets labor inspection priorities and inspection guidelines. (45) Includes the Industrial Court, which judges labor dispute cases that are referred by labor officers. Operates the Uganda Child Helpline known as Sauti. (46)
Ministry of Internal Affairs	Enforces criminal laws on the worst forms of child labor. The Uganda Police Force's Child and Family Protection Unit investigates forced labor cases; the Special Investigations Division and the Anti-Human Trafficking Desk investigate cases related to human trafficking and the use of children in illicit activities; and the Sexual Offenses Desk investigates commercial sexual exploitation. (18)

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Local Government	Oversees district labor officers who refer cases to the Industrial Court. Deploys community development officers at the district level when district labor officers are not available. (18)
Directorate of Public Prosecutions	Prosecutes criminal cases related to the worst forms of child labor that are referred by the Uganda Police Force. (47)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Uganda took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Gender, Labor, and Social Development (MGLSD) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the ability to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

While the labor inspectorate continued to carry out inspections during the reporting period, restrictions on movement and staff shortages due to the pandemic presented increased difficulties. (12) In addition to pandemic-related challenges, a local NGO has indicated that the inspectorate also faces funding issues and corruption at the local level, which often prevents labor inspectors from carrying out their duties. (12) During the reporting period, the government's Uganda Child Helpline helped identify 175 cases of child labor, primarily in domestic work. However, the government did not provide comprehensive data on the number of child labor violations identified through inspections, or the number of penalties applied and assessed for child labor violations. (12)

The MGLSD provided training to 40 labor inspectors in 2021, though it is not clear if this training included components on child labor. (12) Nonetheless, research has shown that training in general is not sufficient because labor inspectors lack the expertise to follow through on child labor cases. (1,12) Furthermore, labor unions have noted that the number of inspections is insufficient and that inspections are only carried out when complaints are received. Labor inspectors in Uganda have the authority to inspect private farms and residences, but the MGLSD has noted that inspectors rarely exercise this authority despite the prevalence of child domestic work in the country. (1)

The number of labor inspectors is still likely insufficient for the size of Uganda's workforce, which includes more than 17.3 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Uganda would need to employ about 434 inspectors. (49)

Uganda

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Uganda now has 173 labor officers to cover its 135 districts, but due to budgetary limitations and a lack of labor inspection prioritization at the district level, these officers did not have sufficient funds to regularly carry out child labor inspections. (1,9,25,28) Research also found that follow-up inspections rarely happen due to insufficient funding at the district level. (45) Given the lack of resources for inspections, local civil society organizations often train labor inspectors and even assist them in conducting inspections. (13,15)

Uganda is signatory to ILO Convention 81 that requires labor inspection to be placed under the supervision and control of a central authority. (50,51) Research found, however, that coordination among the various agencies responsible for child labor law enforcement remains a challenge because labor officers are under district government authority, rather than under authority of the MGLSD. (52,53) For example, although under the Employment Act labor officers are required to submit monthly reports, in practice, the MGLSD does not receive labor reports from districts. (45)

Research found that child labor cases rarely reach the Industrial Court because of poor monitoring and the court's limited access to communities outside urban centers, where child labor is most likely to occur. (51) Overall, the government's enforcement and penalization of labor laws was inadequate, particularly in the informal sector in which most children work. (54)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Uganda took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including official complicity in the commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Yes (9)	Yes (12)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (9)	Yes (12)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (9)	Unknown
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (9)	Unknown
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (9)	Unknown
Number of Convictions	Unknown (9)	Unknown
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (16)	Yes (12)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (9)	Yes (12)

Due to the pandemic, officials indicated that the nationwide shutdown complicated criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor. (12) Nonetheless, criminal law enforcement agencies indicated they were able to secure an increase in convictions related to the worst forms of child labor as a result of training provided to prosecutors and officers from the Human Trafficking Institute. In addition to securing sentences ranging from 3.5 to 15 years in prison and financial restitution, prosecutors also obtained the first ever life sentence for child trafficking in Uganda for a boarding school headmaster charged on multiple counts of exploiting boys in his school. (12) Furthermore, Ugandan police working in collaboration with Kenyan authorities, identified a 10-year-old Ugandan girl trafficked to Kenya for forced domestic labor. Ugandan authorities eventually arrested three individuals responsible for managing a human trafficking network that trafficked girls out of Uganda to Kenya. (17) The government reported identifying 371 victims of the worst forms of child labor, though it is not clear if this number represents the totality of all cases during the reporting period. (17) Similarly, the government did not provide disaggregated data for the number of investigations, prosecutions, or convictions related to the worst forms of child labor.

Law enforcement agencies and civil society organizations have acknowledged that immigration officials are complicit and involved in human trafficking, including the trafficking of children. (2,16,17) Research has also found that some police are allegedly complicit in the commercial sexual exploitation of child refugees. Other high-level government officials own or are associated with labor recruitment companies and networks of traffickers that engage in child trafficking. (2,16,19,55) The involvement of government officials in human trafficking networks has significantly impeded operations against the worst forms of child labor. (2) Uganda's State House Anti-Corruption Unit, which works on human trafficking issues on an ad hoc basis, has initiated some investigations related to official complicity in human trafficking, but has not made any of these reports public. (19,21)

However, in 2021, the government took steps to investigate, prosecute, convict, and sentence officials complicit in human trafficking, including for cases of commercial sexual exploitation of children. One case investigated in 2020 involving an officer from the Uganda People's Defense Forces resulted in a plea bargain in 2021 and a 6-year sentence on charges of aggravated trafficking in children and defilement, as well as commercial sexual exploitation. (12,17) In addition, authorities arrested four police officers from the Uganda Police Force and charged them with various trafficking crimes, including one officer charged with aggravated trafficking in children and commercial sexual exploitation. Authorities also arrested two immigration officers in 2021 on charges of promoting and attempted human trafficking. (17) All 6 cases initiated in 2021 are currently pending, with the suspects on bond. Courts typically take up to 2 or 3 years to complete a prosecution. (17,25) Also during the reporting period, the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions indicated that it had initiated investigations into officials at the Entebbe International Airport suspected of facilitating human trafficking in 2021. (17)

According to the government, police officers identify and refer street children to probation officers and civil society organizations to place children in homes and shelters and do not keep them in detention facilities; however, some children may have been housed in juvenile rehabilitation centers because shelters are frequently full. Police intermittently rounded up street children, housed them in children's homes and shelters for several days while social workers completed background checks and family tracing, and then returned them to their families. (17,56,57) Research found that street children, including potential human trafficking victims and child laborers, have faced conflict with local authorities; however, law enforcement noted in 2020 that police are less likely to detain or beat them, in part as a result of an increased awareness about child protection issues. (25,43,58-60) Nonetheless, reports have indicated that investigators rarely follow up on reports of children involved in domestic work. When child domestic workers complain to their employers about not being paid, the employers may report the children to the police for theft, and police subsequently treat them as criminals rather than as victims who have not been paid for their work. (1)

During the reporting period, the Coordinating Office for Preventing Trafficking in Persons (COPTIP) significantly increased anti-trafficking in persons training opportunities, training over 636 criminal law enforcement officials. COPTIP also trained 60 workers at the Uganda Child Helpline to improve identification of human trafficking cases. (17) Meanwhile, the Uganda Police Force provided training on Uganda anti-trafficking policies to over 500 investigators. (17) However, training of criminal investigators is insufficient, in part due to regular staff turnover and transfers. Some criminal law enforcement officials are not aware of key human trafficking laws, and some officers misclassify cases, conduct insufficient investigations, or encourage victims to accept payment from their traffickers to settle cases. (15,19,21)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including inactive mechanisms.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child Labor*	Coordinates child labor issues and implements the National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor, including by setting policy priorities, securing resources for child labor programs, and coordinating with key stakeholders. Led by MGLSD, includes members from several ministries, including the Office of the Prime Minister, Ministry of Finance, Ministry of Local Government, and Uganda Police. (1,13,61) The committee was reconstituted in 2020 and formally inaugurated in October 2021. (9,61) Met twice during the reporting period, in September and December. (12)
Uganda Parliamentary Forum for Children	Multi-partisan body of Members of Parliament focused on issues affecting Ugandan children, particularly those in vulnerable situations, including street children. (1,62) During the reporting period, the Forum reestablished its working relationship with local NGO Joy for Children and stressed the need for increased child advocacy in the face of pandemic-related challenges affecting children, such as child labor and exploitation. (18,63)
Anti-Human Trafficking National Task Force	Coordinates government efforts on human trafficking. Led by the Ministry of Internal Affairs, with the Coordinating Office for Preventing Trafficking in Persons serving as the secretariat. (2,17) The Task Force resumed its quarterly meetings after March 2021, following a hiatus due to pandemic restrictions. (12,17)
National Child Well-Being Steering Committee*	Instituted through the National Child Policy of 2020, began operating in 2021 as the body to which all other working and coordinating groups will report. This new committee held its first meeting in November of 2021. (12)
National Children Authority	Works to ensure that member organizations integrate child labor concerns into their policies and budgets. Members include 10 government agencies. (64) The Authority worked to disseminate the new national action plan against child labor but was still not fully constituted in the reporting period. (12)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including inconsistent implementation of national policies throughout the country.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor (2020/2021–2024/2025)†	Launched in 2021 and developed in alignment with the country's National Development Plan, aims to focus government efforts on prevention, protection, rehabilitation, and reduction of the risk of child labor, with the goal of eliminating all forms of child labor by 2025. (65,66)
National Child Policy	Seeks to coordinate the protection of child rights, focusing on abuse, neglect, exploitation, and violence. Includes prioritization of the elimination of child labor and was launched with an implementation strategy through 2025. (67,68) Seeks to outline the responsibilities of all stakeholders in implementing child-related policies and focuses on four basic children's rights: survival, development, protection, and participation. (67,68) During the reporting period, the National Children Authority worked with 80 district-level local governments to disseminate the policy and its implementation plan. (69)
National Social Protection Policy	Aims to reduce poverty and socioeconomic inequalities for inclusive development by targeting vulnerable people, including child laborers. (70) As part of the plan, during the reporting period the government launched the Single Registry for Social Protection digital platform intended to consolidate information from all social protection and security programs in the country in order to improve program coordination. (71)
National Action Plan for Prevention of Trafficking in Persons in Uganda (2019–2024)	Focuses on developing sustainable systems and structures to prevent human trafficking; improving capacity for the identification, protection of, and support for victims; improving investigations and prosecutions; and establishing cooperative relationships with international stakeholders. Includes the National Referral Guidelines for Management of Victims of Trafficking, which seek to improve coordination among stakeholders responsible for providing services to victims and those responsible for prosecuting criminals. (72,73) The government continued to hold public awareness campaigns focusing on human trafficking in 2021 and, in cooperation with IOM, worked to disseminate the plan's National Referral Guidelines at a national and local level. (74)
National Multisectoral Coordination Framework for Adolescent Girls (2017/2018–2021/2022)	Coordinates government, civil society, and community efforts to provide services and programs that focus on issues affecting adolescent girls ages 10 to 19, including exploitation in domestic work and gender-based violence in schools. (13,75) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the framework during the reporting period.

† Policy approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (76)

During the reporting period, the Commissioner for Children and Youth in the MGLSD announced that Uganda would become the first country to develop and implement a National Child Protection Action Plan to address online child sexual exploitation. The funding and development of the plan is expected to occur throughout 2022. (77)

Despite the efforts to develop and implement a national action plan against child labor, because of the decentralized nature of inspections in Uganda, some districts have developed their own labor action plans that do not always reflect MGLSD priorities. (51)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Accelerating Action for the Elimination of Child Labor in Supply Chains 2018–2022 (ACCEL Africa)	Launched in 2018, and formally implemented by ILO and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Netherlands in Uganda in 2020 in partnership with the Government of Uganda and the Federation of Ugandan Employers. The Uganda portion of the $29 million, multi-country project targets child labor in coffee and tea supply chains in the Mbale, Kabarole, Buikwe, Hoima, and Bushenyi districts. (9) In 2021, ILO launched a livelihood support program for vulnerable families that includes vocational training for children ages 14 to 17. The program will target over 1,200 children at risk of child labor in the tea and coffee sectors and reintegrate them into school. (78)
Uganda Child Helpline ( Sauti )†	Funded primarily by UNICEF with in-kind contributions from MGLSD, comprises District Action Centers and a physical call center located in Wakiso that screens all calls on reported cases of child abuse. Caseworkers at District Action Centers follow up directly on cases of child abuse, including child labor and exploitation, assigned to them by the National Call Center and liaise with local authorities to address the reported incidents. (46) During the reporting period, the hotline identified 175 victims of child labor. (12)
Realizing Livelihood Improvement Through Savings and Education (2019–2021)†	NGO-implemented program in partnership with the government that focused on addressing child labor issues in tobacco-growing regions. (27,79) In its final year, the project indicated that it had either withdrawn, prevented, or protected over 31,000 children from child labor. The project also worked to draft pandemic-related implications for child labor into the new child labor action plan. (12)
Back Home Campaign for Karamoja Children†	Government program that rescues Karamoja street children working in Kampala and places them in rehabilitation centers in Wakiso and Moroto districts before reuniting them with their families. (13,80) Activities for the program were suspended during the reporting period due to the pandemic. (12)

† Program is funded by the Government of Uganda.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (81,82)

Although Uganda has implemented programs that address child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, particularly in mining and commercial sexual exploitation. For example, the government lacks its own facilities to house child victims of labor exploitation or human trafficking and must instead rely on local community services organizations. (1,9) Furthermore, the MGLSD has noted that programs are concentrated in specific districts and thus do not cover child labor issues throughout the country. (1)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Uganda (Table 11).

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that only minors age 16 and older who have received adequate, specific instruction or vocational training are permitted to perform hazardous work, and that their health, safety, and morals are fully protected.	2017 – 2021
	Establish by law free basic public education.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that the age up to which education is compulsory is the same as the minimum age for work.	2021
Enforcement	Collect and publish disaggregated national-level information on the labor law enforcement efforts, including trainings offered to labor inspectors, number of investigations conducted, number of child labor violations found, number of child labor penalties imposed, and number of penalties collected.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that the inspectorate is using its existing authorities to inspect private farms and homes and to conduct sufficient routine and unannounced inspections, including in the informal sector.	2017 – 2021
	Enhance the effectiveness of the inspectorate to enforce labor laws, including by establishing a mechanism to assess child labor violation penalties.	2017 – 2021
	Provide sufficient training to labor inspectors, initial training to new criminal investigators, and refresher training to existing investigators, to ensure that officials understand and are able to identify, categorize, and investigate child labor cases.	2019 – 2021
	Provide the labor inspectorate with sufficient funding and resources at the district level to ensure that inspectors are present in all districts and are able to carry out their duties.	2013 – 2021
	Improve coordination between national and district-level child labor enforcement bodies to ensure that relevant data are shared, and child labor inspections are prioritized across the country.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that child labor cases reach the Industrial Court and that penalties are assessed by addressing monitoring issues and improving the court's reach outside urban centers.	2019 – 2021
	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2009 – 2021
	Publish disaggregated data on number of investigations, violations, prosecutions initiated, convictions achieved, and penalties imposed for the worst forms of child labor.	2017 – 2021
	Continue and increase efforts to ensure that public officials who facilitate or participate in human trafficking or the worst forms of child labor are held accountable, including officials who have ties with labor recruitment companies.	2019 – 2021
	Strengthen mechanisms for following up on child labor claims and referring street children, including potential human trafficking victims, to social services providers, and prevent these children from being detained and abused by police.	2015 – 2021
	Increase the capacity of criminal law enforcement agencies to respond to the worst forms of child labor by dedicating more personnel to worst forms of child labor cases and improving training for criminal law enforcement staff.	2020 – 2021
Coordination	Ensure that coordinating mechanisms are fully functional and able to carry out their mandates.	2019 – 2021
Government Policies	Ensure that district labor action plans reflect the Ministry of Gender, Labor, and Social Development's priorities.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement the National Multisectoral Coordination Framework for Adolescent Girls and publish results from activities implemented during the reporting period.	2018 – 2021
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children by defraying informal costs borne by families, including supplies, uniforms, and materials; addressing physical and sexual violence; and ensuring sufficient teachers, infrastructure, and transportation in rural areas.	2012 – 2021
	Enhance efforts to ensure that refugee children have equal access to educational opportunities by addressing gender-based violence and exploitation, harassment, and refugee discrimination; accommodating the language needs of refugee students; and ensuring that there are well-equipped schools accessible to refugee settlements.	2012 – 2021
	Ensure the availability of shelters for victims of child labor, including child trafficking victims.	2017 – 2021
	Expand existing social programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, particularly in mining and commercial sexual exploitation, in all areas of the country.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement key social programs to address child labor during the reporting period and make information about implementation measures publicly available.	2021

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2021, Ukraine made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted Law No. 1256-IX, which strengthened Ukraine's child protection framework by criminalizing the sexual exploitation of children in accordance with the Council of Europe's Lanzarote Convention. The Office of the Prosecutor General issued Order No. 224 to ensure all Ukrainian government bodies responsible for investigating crimes against children are fully observing the laws and regulations aimed at protecting minors. Additionally, the Ministry of Social Policy collaborated with UNICEF to develop a National Strategy for Children's Rights. However, despite new initiatives to address child labor, Ukraine is assessed as having made only minimal advancement because it continued to uphold Act No. 877-V of 2007, which both restricts labor inspectors' ability to conduct regular workplace visits and places limits on the time, scope, and duration of worksite inspections. Furthermore, in 2021, the National Police opened criminal investigations against 72 children for participation in Russia-led military formations in the so-called "Donetsk People's Republic" and "Luhansk People's Republic," as well as one child in the Russia-led forces in Crimea; it transferred 47 of these cases to courts for prosecution. Children in Ukraine are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in the production of pornography. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. The government collected few of the financial penalties imposed for child labor violations and lacked social programs designed to assist children engaged in hazardous work in mining. In addition, it remains unclear how Russia's invasion of Ukraine in 2022 will affect the child labor situation throughout the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Ukraine are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in the production of pornography. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. (1-7) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Ukraine.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	9.7 (385,204)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.2

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor†	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,4,12,14)
	Use in the production of pornography (1,5,7,11,12,15)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (7,11,14)
	Forced begging (1,7,9,11,12,14,16,17)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children from Ukraine are trafficked both internationally and domestically for commercial sexual exploitation and forced begging. (7,12,14,17) The Ministry of Social Protection noted that due to the pandemic, many children spent more time on the Internet and were at increased risk of cybercrime victimization, including in the production and distribution of pornographic content. (18) The pandemic also increased the risk of internal trafficking for children, particularly for labor exploitation and forced criminal activities. (17) Girls from single-parent families, youth from disadvantaged families, children with disabilities and homeless, orphaned, and poor children, especially those living in state-run institutions, are at high risk of being trafficked. (14,17-19) Some state-run orphanages have used children for illegal labor in business, seasonal agricultural work, construction, and sexual exploitation. (1,10,12) Ukraine is a transit and destination country for refugees from Afghanistan, the Russian Federation, Bangladesh, Syria, and Iraq. Refugee children lack access to state-run children’s shelters, face challenges receiving birth registration documents, and experience heightened vulnerability to child trafficking. (18-20)

Through the end of 2021, Russia’s operations in eastern Ukraine resulted in more than 1.4 million IDPs, including more than 190,000 children. (21,22) These numbers climbed far higher in 2022, with millions of additional children been forced to leave their homes. (23) It remains unclear how the war will affect the child labor situation throughout the country, though refugee and IDP children (particularly those who are unaccompanied) are especially vulnerable to exploitation in the worst forms of child labor. (19,24,25) In addition, there is limited information about the types of work that children perform and the sectors in which they work in Russia-controlled territory in the Donbas region and Russia-occupied Crimea. However, available data suggest that some children in these areas, in particular boys ages 11 to 16, engaged in illegal coal mining in the Donbas region. (1,7)

Reports also indicate that thousands of children participate in military-style training or other military-style activities carried out by Russia-led forces in "Donetsk People’s Republic" and "Luhansk People’s Republic," and by Russia’s occupation authorities in Crimea. (1,7) During the reporting period, proxy groups backed by Russia continued to recruit children to take part in armed combat. Children were trained in weapons use and organized into reserve militia battalions at militant-run camps and school programs located in territory controlled by Russia’s proxies. (1,7,11,22)

Children in Donetsk and Luhansk face challenges being registered at birth, which can prevent them from receiving Ukrainian identity documents. This, in turn, limits their ability to enroll in school and puts them at risk of statelessness. (26) Although a judicial procedure exists to provide children born in Donetsk and Luhansk with Ukrainian birth certificates, fewer than half of the children born in these areas are estimated to have obtained a birth certificate issued by the Government of Ukraine. A law adopted in 2018 provides for any civil registry office to issue a Ukrainian birth registration on the basis of a birth certificate issued in Donetsk and Luhansk. (27) In 2021, the government adopted amendments to this law to clarify the status of many Ukrainians living in these territories. (17)

In addition, members of the Roma community continue to face barriers to education, including a lack of access to alternative preschool programs, discrimination in admissions and in the school environment, the lack of inclusive approaches in the school system, and low social services support for Roma families. Roma families can also lack a registered residence, which further complicates their children’s school enrollment. (1,7) Additionally, up to a third of children from Roma communities also lack birth registration, impeding their access to education. (19) Some children, especially those from poor families and those with special needs, could not participate in distance learning because they lack access to the Internet or computer equipment. (1,7)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Ukraine has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Ukraine's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including failure to prohibit the commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 150 of the Criminal Code; Article 188 of the Labor Code; Article 21 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood (28-30)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	18	Article 150 of the Criminal Code; Article 190 of the Labor Code; Article 21 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood (28-30)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 150-1 of the Criminal Code; Order of the Ministry of Health No. 46 on the approval of the list of heavy work and work with dangerous and harmful working conditions, in which the employment of minors is prohibited; Article 190 of the Labor Code (28,29,31)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	17‡	Articles 3, 12, and 20 of the Law on General Secondary Education; Article 53 of the Constitution (32,38)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 53 of the Constitution of Ukraine; Article 2 of the Law on General Secondary Education (32,38)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (38)

Because the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (28-30,38) Furthermore, the Ministry of Health Order No. 46 does not prohibit children between ages 14 and 16 from engaging in hazardous work as part of a vocational training program, which is not in compliance with international standards. Although the law specifies that children in these training programs may be onsite for no more than 4 hours and must remain in strict compliance with applicable safety norms and rules and regulations on labor protection, this is not in compliance with international standards. (39,40) In April 2021, the District Administrative Court of Kyiv rescinded Decree No. 823 of 2019, which outlined procedural rules for labor inspections conducted by the State Labor Service (SLS) and restricted inspectors' authority to conduct worksite visits, both proactively and in response to complaints. (41,42) However, Decree No. 877 of 2007 (Fundamental Principles of State Supervision and Monitoring of Economic Activity) continues to restrict inspectors' ability to undertake inspections without giving employers prior notice, in addition to effectively limiting the frequency of allowed inspections. (41,43)

During the reporting period, the government of Ukraine adopted Law No. 1256-IX—On Amendments to Certain Legislative Acts of Ukraine on the Implementation of the Council of Europe Convention for the Protection of Children against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Violence (Lanzarote Convention)—which includes enhanced punishment for storing and viewing child sexual abuse material and online child grooming. (7,17,44,45) However, Ukraine does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation of children because, while Articles 302 and 303 of the Criminal Code of Ukraine criminalize involvement of a minor in prostitution and pimping involving minors, no law criminalizes the users (clients) of prostitution involving children. Further, the law does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation because the use, procuring, or offering of children in pornographic performances is not expressly prohibited. (28,44,46)

The Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine adopted Resolution No. 531 on Amendments to the Procedure for Establishing the Status of a Victim of Trafficking in Persons, which improved the existing procedures of establishing victim status and granted increased authority to the National Social Service (NSS) to certify human trafficking victims to allow receipt of government services. (17,47)

The government also adopted Amendments to Law No. 1916-IX to codify the right of Ukrainians, including children, living in the temporarily Russia-occupied territories encompassing parts of Luhansk and Donetsk Oblasts, Crimea, and the city of Sevastopol to register their residencies and obtain identity documents. These amendments clarify the status of many Ukrainians living in these areas where Russia has distributed Russian passports, in some cases forcibly, and left many residents, including children, in ambiguous status and more vulnerable to human trafficking. (17,48)

In 2021, the Government of Ukraine began drafting several pieces of legislation related to child labor: On Amendments to the Criminal Code of Ukraine on Strengthening Criminal Liability for Trafficking in Human Beings (Reg. No. 5134, 22 February 2002); On Amendments to Article 149 of the Criminal Code of Ukraine on Ensuring Harmonization of Criminal Legislation with Provisions of International Law Concerning the Regulation of Criminal Liability for Trafficking in Human Beings (Reg. No. 5134-I, March 2021); and On Amendments to Certain Legislative Acts of Ukraine on Delimitation of Executive and Local Governments on Social Protection and Protection of Children's Rights with the establishment of the National Social Service and its territorial bodies (Reg. No. 5849, August 2021). Regulation No. 5849 includes provisions to improve human trafficking victims' access to assistance by allowing them to apply for victim status with their local government. (17)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
State Labor Service within the Ministry of Economic Development, Trade and Agriculture	Enforces labor laws, including laws on child labor, by conducting inspections. (1,7,11)
Ministry of Internal Affairs	Enforces criminal laws against the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking. (1,7,11)
Security Service of Ukraine	Tracks recruitment and use of children in armed conflict. (1,7,11)
Office of the Prosecutor General	Investigates and prosecutes cases related to the worst forms of child labor. Oversees a department and regional offices for the Protection of Interests of Children and Combating Violence that focuses on the worst forms of child labor. (1) Ensures compliance with laws and regulations aimed at protecting minors by other government bodies investigating crimes against children. (1,7,49)

The Office of the Prosecutor General (OPG) has established a department and regional offices for the Protection of Interests of Children and Combating Violence. These regional offices are responsible for conducting pre-trial investigations and investigations of criminal offenses, filing appeals of court decisions relating to children's issues, providing legal representation to children, and supporting the execution of court decisions in the sphere of child protection. (7,44) In 2021, the OPG issued Order No. 224 "On the Authorization of Employees of the Department for the Protection of Interests of Children and Combating Violence." This order authorizes the department to conduct inspections to ensure that government bodies tasked with enforcing and investigating crimes against children (such as the National Police of Ukraine, the Security Service of Ukraine, the State Bureau of Investigation, the State Fiscal Service of Ukraine, the State Border Guard Service of Ukraine, and the State Penitentiary Service of Ukraine along with their territorial divisions) are fully observing the laws and regulations aimed at protecting minors. (7,49) Regional offices of the SLS signed cooperation agreements to share information about child labor cases with regional offices of the National Police of Ukraine, regional employment centers, the Department of Child Affairs, trade union leaders, regional social services organizations, and centers dedicated to social protection. (1,7) Russia-occupied Crimea and areas controlled by Russia-led forces in the Donbas region of eastern Ukraine are not under the control of the Ukrainian government, which is prevented from carrying out inspections and law enforcement actions there. (45)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Ukraine took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the SLS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the inability of the SLS to compel payment of delinquent fines without a court proceeding.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The 39 percent decrease in the number of inspectors, from 1,199 in 2000 to 772 in 2021, resulted from changes in legislation that prohibit officials from having a dual role. Members of executive bodies of city councils or local communities are no longer able to serve as certified labor inspectors to conduct inspections. (7)

During the reporting period, all new labor inspectors received ILO-approved training upon hiring. (7) Sources note that training for labor inspectors on child trafficking may be inadequate, especially outside of Kyiv. (14,19) Although local inspectors are certified by the SLS, their training may be inadequate and inconsistent with the training given to inspectors employed directly by the SLS. (46) In 2021, the OSCE conducted online training sessions for labor inspectors from around Ukraine to improve detecting and preventing labor exploitation and human trafficking. (7)

In 2021, the SLS reported a total of 2,600 child labor-related unannounced site inspections. Identified instances of child labor were in services (44 companies), industry (6 enterprises), agriculture (11 enterprises), and other (12 enterprises). (7) Inspections identified 360 children under the age of 18 who were employed illegally. This included 329 children between the ages of 16 and 18, 14 children between the ages of 15 and 16, 14 children between the ages of 14 and 15, and 3 children under the age of 14. (7) The SLS is not authorized to compel payment of delinquent fines without a court proceeding, which can delay the collection of penalties. (1,11)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Ukraine took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the authority of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including a lack of information on criminal convictions for the worst forms of child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

† Data are from January 2021 to November 2021.

The National Police reported identifying 25 minors as human trafficking victims in 2021, all of whom were used for commercial sexual exploitation or the production of pornography; it did not provide specific information on these cases. (7,17)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

The OPG referred 802 cases related to the worst forms of child labor for prosecution, including 19 cases of trafficking in persons of a minor, 155 cases of the use of children for the production of pornography, 232 cases of distribution or sale of child pornography, 3 cases of criminal exploitation of child labor or forced begging, 13 cases of sexual violence committed against a minor, 281 cases of sexual intercourse with a person under the age of 16, and 19 cases of engaging minors in criminal activity. (7) The outcomes of these cases are unknown, as the OPG does not track convictions in cases related to the worst forms of child labor. (1,7,11)

In 2021, the National Police opened criminal cases against 72 children for participation in Russia-led military formations in the so-called "Donetsk People's Republic" and "Luhansk People's Republic," as well as 1 child in the Russia-led forces in Crimea; it transferred 47 of these cases to courts for prosecution. The status of these cases is unknown. (1,7)

The National Police acknowledged instances of involvement of minors in amber or coal extraction in Ukraine, but they provided no information on efforts taken to address this issue. (7)

In October 2021, the Council of Europe launched a new course on family law and human rights under the project Combating Violence Against Children in Ukraine. Representatives of the legal community in Ukraine participated in the course, which provides an overview of child-friendly justice and good practices in cases involving children's rights. (50) In addition, the OSCE and IOM conducted several trainings to strengthen the capacity of Ukrainian government bodies and NGOs to work together to address human trafficking. Activities included participants from 10 oblasts, including police, investigators, social services providers, psychologists, labor inspectors, state labor service officials, officials responsible for granting victim of trafficking status, and NGO representatives. (17,51)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Inter-Ministerial Counter-Trafficking Coordination Council	Led by the Ministry of Social Policy (MSP), which serves as the National Coordinator for Counter-Trafficking Policy and includes more than 20 government entities and representatives from regional governments, NGOs, and international organizations. (12) This body was not active during the reporting period. (17)
National Referral Mechanism	Identifies victims of human trafficking, including children, and refers victims to appropriate government agencies for assistance and services. Implemented by the MSP in its capacity as the National Coordinator for Counter-Trafficking Policy. (1,12) The Cabinet of Ministers approved Resolution No. 585 to clarify the National Referral Mechanism's role in providing social protection for vulnerable children. The referral mechanism operates between the MSP, the Ministry of Internal Affairs, and the OPG, and facilitates coordination between government agencies when child victims are identified. (1,7) Research was unable to determine whether this mechanism was active during the reporting period. (7)
Office of the Ombudsman for Children's Rights	Monitors protection of the rights of children and fulfillment of international obligations to protect children's rights, including by preventing child labor. Coordinates the development of laws on child protection and informs the public on children's rights. (52)

Although Ukraine has established the Inter-Ministerial Counter-Trafficking Coordination Council to coordinate efforts to address child trafficking, it does not have coordinating mechanisms to address other forms of child labor, including in mining and agriculture.

The NSS, formed in 2020 with the purpose of implementing state policies for social protection and children's rights, including those on human trafficking, assumed the duties of granting, refusing, extending, revoking, and managing human trafficking victim status in May 2021. (17,47) With the ongoing decentralization reform process that consolidated rayons and communities in August 2020, the Ministry of Social Policy (MSP) and NSS are transferring the responsibility for identifying human trafficking victims and administering the certification process to local and regional authorities. The MSP, the NSS, and partner organizations began providing training for those officials in effectively assisting potential victims. (17) However, the new local administrative structures are not yet officially part of the National Referral Mechanism. The necessary legislation is pending, and the gap has resulted in some confusion over responsibilities. (17)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan for Implementation of UN CRC (2017–2021)	Identified priorities in the area of child protection, including improving measures to address the worst forms of child labor and increasing coordination between government agencies and NGOs. (1,6,8,53,54) During the reporting period, MSP collaborated with UNICEF to develop a new National Strategy for Children's Rights that prioritizes implementation of activities related to CRC. (55)
Resolution on the Social Protection of Children and Urgent Measures to Protect the Rights of the Child	Directs the government to develop additional programs and social services to protect children against abuse, including the worst forms of child labor. Includes a provision on measures that specifically address the participation of children in armed conflict. (11,56) Research was unable to determine whether actions were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
Memorandum of Understanding between the ILO and Ukraine (2020–2024)	Establishes terms of agreement between ILO and the government on cooperation to implement the Decent Work Country Program in Ukraine. (57) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

Although the Government of Ukraine has adopted the National Action Plan for Countering Human Trafficking, the National Action Plan for Implementation of UN CRC, and the Resolution on the Social Protection of Children, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor, including hazardous child labor in mining. (1,7,11)

In July 2021, the Government of Ukraine approved a concept paper, entitled "Concept of the State Social Program to Combat Trafficking in Persons until 2025," which will serve as the basis for a new countertrafficking strategy to cover 2021–2025. In September 2021, the MSP convened a working group composed of members of the National Police of Ukraine, OPG, various NGOs, and other stakeholders, to discuss the draft, but no further progress was made. (17)

In March 2021, President Zelenskyy approved Ukraine's National Strategy on Human Rights, which includes the rights of children, and in June 2021, the government approved the action plan to execute that strategy. (17,58,59)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Directorate for the Development of Social Services and Protection of Children's Rights†	Established under MSP in March 2020 to address the needs of vulnerable children. (18) Research was unable to determine whether this body was active during the reporting period.
Shelters and Centers for Socio-Psychological Rehabilitation of Children†	Serve children in need, including child victims of trafficking, through 82 centers, including 8 children's shelters. Children are provided with individual assistance programs that involve social, psychological, pedagogical, medical, legal, and other types of assistance. (12,19) Government officials report that there is a lack of resources and specialized personnel to assist child victims of sexual exploitation through these centers. (19) Research was unable to determine whether the shelters were active during the reporting period.
Centers for Social Services for Family, Youth, and Children†	Centers, in coordination with municipal authorities, provide social services for vulnerable children and families, including victims of human trafficking. (58) Research was unable to determine whether the centers were active during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Ukraine.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

During the reporting period, the UNICEF Ukraine Business Advisory Board was developed to encourage private sector entities to support initiatives that defend children's rights. The Board's inaugural meeting emphasized the importance of businesses bearing responsibility for innovation in the realms of responsible consumption and ecological concerns, with an emphasis on children's health and well-being. (59)

In 2020, Ukraine's Cabinet of Ministers adopted Resolution No. 585, which established a procedure for social protection of children in difficult situations, including children who are victims of abuse. (1,60) The Centers for Social Services for Family, Youth, and Children have historically experienced a large turnover of staff due to an excessive workload and low pay. (61) Although the Government of Ukraine has implemented programs to assist child victims of human trafficking, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children in other forms of child labor, including hazardous work in mining.

In November 2021, Ukraine's Cabinet of Ministers adopted Resolution No. 126, which established a Hotline for Combating Human Trafficking, Domestic Violence, Sexual Violence, and Violence against Children. (17)

During the reporting period the OPG and oblast and rayon prosecutor's offices established specialized units to handle cases involving children. In addition, the OPG, with the assistance of UNICEF, established specialized centers for child victims or witnesses. (17) These children's centers are open and operating in Mykolayiv and Vinnytsya oblasts, and are planned for Chernivtsi, Odesa, and Ternopil oblasts, as well as Kyiv. (17)

Employees of the Local Units of the State Migration Service, who are trained in identifying human trafficking victims as well as child interviewing techniques, provided social, psychological, legal, and medical assistance to children who are separated from their families and may have been placed in shelters. (17)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Ukraine (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2021
	Prohibit all children under age 16 from working in hazardous occupations during vocational training.	2011 – 2021
	Criminally prohibit and penalize the use of a child for prostitution, and the use, procuring, or offering of children in pornographic performances.	2019 – 2021
	Strengthen the labor inspection system by removing restrictions on labor inspectors' authority to conduct unannounced onsite inspections, both proactively and in response to complaints.	2019-2021
Enforcement	Authorize the State Labor Service to enforce collection of delinquent penalties to ensure that all penalties imposed are collected.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that all labor inspectors, including those working outside the capital, receive training on child trafficking.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that labor inspectors employed by regional governments receive adequate training that is consistent with that provided to labor inspectors employed by the State Labor Service.	2019 – 2021
	Increase funding for the State Labor Service to ensure that the labor inspectorate has adequate capacity to address the scope of the child labor problem.	2019 – 2021
	Publish criminal law enforcement information.	2021
	Hold perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor, including child soldiering, accountable. Ensure that former child soldiers are not penalized for crimes they were forced to commit.	2021
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are active and able to carry out their intended mandates.	2020 – 2021
	Establish coordinating mechanisms to address all worst forms of child labor.	2019 – 2021
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, including hazardous child labor in mining.	2018 – 2021
	Implement all policies addressing child labor, including the National Action Plan for Implementation of UN CRC and the Resolution on the Social Protection of Children and Urgent Measures to Protect the Rights of the Child.	2019 – 2021

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Conduct research to gather comprehensive data on child labor, including the activities carried out by children working in mining, farming, raising animals, and construction, to inform policies and programs.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that refugee children are allowed to receive services at state-run children's shelters and can be registered at birth.	2019 – 2021
	Establish a procedure to implement the law empowering any civil registry office to issue a Ukrainian birth registration on the basis of a birth certificate issued in the areas of Donetsk and Luhansk.	2019 – 2021
	Develop programs to ensure that Roma children are registered at birth and are able to access education.	2010 – 2021
	Allocate resources and trained personnel to assist with child victims of illegal labor in business, seasonal agriculture work, construction, and commercial sexual exploitation in all state-run facilities that serve children in need.	2020 – 2021
	Expand educational opportunities for children without Internet access and those with special needs.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that there are sufficient resources for the Centers for Social Services for Family, Youth, and Children to assist child victims of human trafficking.	2013 – 2021
	Implement social programs to assist children subjected to all forms of child labor, including mining.	2020 – 2021
	Institute a rehabilitation and reintegration program for children engaged in armed conflict.	2021

REFERENCES ON FILE

In 2021, Uzbekistan made significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed legislation which amended their law on commercial sexual exploitation of children to bring it into full compliance with international standards. The government amended the Code of Administrative Liability and the Criminal Code to increase punishments for forced labor and child labor, including its worst forms, and to create criminal liability for individuals who commit child labor violations. The government also undertook a survey to assess allegations of child labor in the silk industry and signed a new Decent Work Country Program for 2021–2025. Additionally, the government continued to raise awareness and enforce prohibitions against the use of child labor and forced labor in the cotton harvest. Research indicates that the use of forced labor in the cotton harvest has been eliminated outside of isolated incidents, largely as a result of government efforts to implement and enforce forced labor prohibitions. However, children in Uzbekistan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture and public works. While the Government of Uzbekistan has made strong progress in addressing labor issues in the cotton harvest, there continue to be impediments to the operation of NGOs in addressing broader labor concerns. Human rights NGOs and civil society organizations, including those working on forced and child labor issues, are frequently denied official registration for bureaucratic reasons, sometimes for failing to meet registration requirements that had not been publicly specified.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Uzbekistan are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture and public works. (1-3) Uzbekistan has not carried out a national child labor survey to determine the prevalence of child labor in sectors other than cotton production. (2) Table I provides key indicators on children's work and education in Uzbekistan.

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1-3,8,13)
	Forced labor in harvesting silk cocoons (6,13,14)
	Forced labor in construction, non-cotton agriculture, and cleaning parks, streets, and buildings (6,13)
	Illicit activities, including theft and the production or trafficking of drugs (1)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Traffickers exploit Uzbek children in sex trafficking transnationally in the Middle East, Eurasia, and Asia. (13) Children are also vulnerable to internal trafficking for the purpose of commercial sexual exploitation. (3,12)

ILO monitors reported that prohibitions on child labor were generally upheld during the 2021 cotton harvest. However, ILO and civil society harvest monitors identified more cases of child labor than in recent years when only sporadic cases were identified. (1,15) In general, these children were 16 to 17 years old and accompanied by their parents. Civil society observers believe this increase in child labor cases is related to increased rural poverty. (1,15) Further, children in Uzbekistan sometimes participate in public works projects, including refurbishing school grounds and facilities. (1,2,6) Limited evidence suggests that in isolated cases, school officials may compel students to assist in harvesting silk cocoons, sometimes characterizing the work as traditional communal labor (khashar). (6,14)

In 2021, Uzbekistan received an influx of refugees from Afghanistan. While all children in Uzbekistan are entitled to free compulsory education regardless of ethnicity or immigration status, Afghan children who do not speak Uzbek or Russian struggle in Uzbekistan’s schools. (1) In addition, although there is free public education in Uzbekistan, schools may charge informal fees, which can make education inaccessible to children from low-income families. (1,2,10,16)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Uzbekistan has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Uzbekistan’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including clarifying criminal penalties for the use of children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	18	Articles 15, 77, and 242 of the Labor Code; Article 49 of the Administrative Code (17-19)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 241 and 245 of the Labor Code; Article 49-1 of the Administrative Code (18,19)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Decree on Adoption of the List of Occupations with Unfavorable Working Conditions to Which It Is Forbidden to Employ Persons Under Eighteen Years of Age; Decree on Approval of Provision on Requirements on Prohibition of Use of Minors' Labor (20,21)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 37 of the Constitution; Article 7 of the Labor Code; Article 51 of the Administrative Code; Articles 135 and 148(2) of the Criminal Code (18,19,22,23)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 3 of the Law on Combating Human Trafficking; Article 135 of the Criminal Code (23,24)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 128, 128(1), 130, 131, and 135 of the Criminal Code (23)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 10 of the Law on Guarantees of the Rights of the Child; Articles 56 and 127 of the Criminal Code (23,25)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 24 of the Law on Universal Military Service (26)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Articles 4 and 46 of the Law on Universal Military Service (26)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 216(1) and 242 of the Criminal Code; Article 3 of the Law on Civil Organizations (23,27)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	18‡	Articles 4 and 9 of the Law on Education (16)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 4 and 5 of the Law on Education; Article 41 of the Constitution (16,22)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (16)

During the reporting period, the government amended the Criminal Code to close a gap in the law which previously failed to criminalize the users (clients) of prostitution involving children ages 16-17, and the law was signed by the President in December. In February 2021, the Government of Uzbekistan also amended the Code of Administrative Liability and the Criminal Code of Uzbekistan to increase punishments for forced labor and child labor, including its worst forms. (1,23,28) Any individual who forces a child to work has now committed a criminal act, whereas previously an initial child labor violation only resulted in a civil penalty. The Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations (MOELR) also drafted a new labor code which was approved by the lower house of Parliament. (1,28) The updated labor code, once enacted, will more clearly specify acceptable types of work that minors may perform. (1)

The law does not determine the activities or conditions in which children who have not yet completed their compulsory schooling may engage in light work, although the Labor Code establishes caps on the maximum number of work hours permitted for children ages 15 to 17. (16,17)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations (MOELR)	Conducts labor inspections, including inspections for compliance with child labor laws. (10) Leads the National Sub-Commission on Combating Forced Labor. (29,30)
Ministry of Internal Affairs (MOIA)	Investigates crimes related to child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children, which may then be prosecuted by the Prosecutor General's Office. (10) Leads the National Sub-Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons. (29,30) Maintains a database on human trafficking crimes, including child trafficking crimes, which aggregates relevant information received from other government bodies, citizens' organizations, non-profit organizations, and civil society groups. (12)
Prosecutor General's Office	Prosecutes criminal violations involving the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (10) Also provides oversight of some MOIA efforts to address the worst forms of child labor. (12)
Agency for Youth Affairs	Previously known as the Youth Union, monitors school attendance to ensure that students do not miss class during the cotton harvest. (1,9) Participates in monitoring efforts organized by the Federation of Trade Unions (FTUU) to monitor violations of labor laws during the annual cotton harvest. (31,32)
State Committee for Family and Women's Affairs	Previously known as the Ministry of Mahalla and Family Support, responsible for oversight of various policies related to gender equality and family welfare. Subsumed the Women's Committee of Uzbekistan. (1) This agency was renamed by Presidential Decree in March 2022. (33)
Human Trafficking Hotlines	Receive reports of incidents of human trafficking and refer reports to the relevant agencies. The MOIA-led National Sub-Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons administers one hotline, and an NGO maintains a second foreign donor-funded hotline. (3,13)
Feedback Mechanisms	Receive complaints on the violation of workers' rights and labor laws. MOELR can receive complaints, including on an anonymous basis, through a telephone hotline with a short, easy-to-remember number; a web portal; and a Telegram messenger bot. (34-38) Labor inspectors are required to investigate all complaints submitted to MOELR within 7 days. In 2021, labor inspectors investigated 148 complaints received through these channels. (1) FTUU also operates its own independent feedback mechanism, accessible online or over the phone, and a legal clinic that assists workers in remediating issues. In 2021, FTUU received 4,647 complaints. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Uzbekistan took actions to address child labor. (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOELR that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the reluctance of inspectors to conduct unannounced inspections other than on the basis of a complaint.

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Uzbekistan's workforce, which includes more than 13.9 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 20,000 workers in transitioning economies, Uzbekistan would need to employ about 700 inspectors. (41,42) During the reporting period, the MELR's labor inspectorate carried out 27,471 labor inspections, and identified 19,967 labor violations, mostly related to workplace safety. However, the government did not disclose how many of these inspections took place on site or were targeted to high-risk sectors. (1) This represents a dramatic increase in labor inspections from 2020, in large part due to an increase in inspections during the cotton harvest—from around 3,000 in 2020 to over 13,000 in 2021. (28,43) The inspectorate continued to conduct targeted inspections in high risk sectors such as cotton and construction, and, in cooperation with the ILO, also undertook a survey to investigate allegations of forced labor and child labor in the silk sector. With regard to training, the government reported that 215 labor inspectors attended advanced training courses in 2021. (1) In June, the ILO also conducted online training courses on forced labor for employees of MOELR, the Prosecutor General's Office, and the labor inspectorate. In addition to labor inspectors employed by MOELR, local governments employ an additional 200 "assistant inspectors" who can participate in labor inspections but are not allowed to impose administrative fines, and the Federation of Trade Unions (FTUU) employs 33 labor monitors, who can refer potential violations to the labor inspectorate for investigation and imposition of penalties as appropriate. (1,12)

In accordance with legislation passed in 2020, fines imposed for labor violations were as high as $2,000. MOELR identified six cases of child labor, all of which involved children working on refurbishing school facilities and grounds. (1) Four individuals were ultimately fined for these violations, and 31 children were removed from child labor. (1)

Labor inspectors are empowered to conduct self-initiated unannounced inspections in public-sector enterprises and, with permission from the Business Ombudsman, are authorized to conduct limited inspections at private-sector businesses. However, reports indicate that in practice, inspectors may be reticent to enter private businesses or homes on an unannounced basis and typically only do so in response to complaints. (1,2,10-12,36,44,45)

The government continued its commitment to monitor labor violations in the cotton harvest, with labor inspectors monitoring 13,419 farms and clusters during harvest season. These efforts identified 65 local officials who violated labor legislation, 5 of whom were prosecuted under Article 51 of the Code of Administrative Liability. (28) The government continued to support the ILO's Third-Party Monitoring of the cotton harvest, which in 2021 was largely implemented by a group of local activists. Local authorities also conducted large-scale publicity campaigns to raise public awareness of pickers' rights, distributing more than 800,000 flyers to residents of cotton-producing regions. (28) International observers assess that the Government of Uzbekistan has succeeded in eliminating systematic forced labor from the cotton harvest, though scattered instances of coercion persist. (15,28)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Uzbekistan took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Internal Affairs (MOIA) that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including in investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor (Cont.)

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Number of Convictions	6 (12)	9 (1)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (12)	Yes (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (10)	Yes (1)

During the reporting period, the Academy of the MOIA graduated 120 cadets, all of whom received training on human trafficking, including modules on child labor. Additionally, 1,802 investigators received training on new laws related to trafficking in persons and child labor. (1) In 2021, law enforcement investigated 9 criminal cases involving 15 individuals suspected of procuring children for commercial sexual exploitation. Because of these investigations, 13 child victims were identified and referred to rehabilitation centers for services. (1) The investigation resulted in nine convictions: six individuals received prison sentences, one received a sentence of “restriction of freedom,” one was sentenced to correctional labor, and one received probation. (1)

Although criminal liability for repeat forced labor offenses was introduced in early 2020 under Criminal Code Article 148(2), monitoring reports note enforcement challenges that may have hampered the government's ability to initiate criminal prosecutions for forced labor offenses. (23,46) In addition, criminal enforcement agencies may face difficulties collecting sufficient evidence to prosecute complicit officials. (46) Limited reports suggest that MOIA investigations into potential cases involving the worst forms of child labor may not be thorough enough to detect violations or gather sufficient evidence to move forward with prosecution. (36,47)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including repeatedly denying human rights NGOs from officially registering with the government.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons and Forced Labor (National Commission)	Coordinates state and local entities' efforts to address sex trafficking and forced labor; analyzes and monitors efficacy of government programs to address sex trafficking and forced labor; organizes international cooperation on efforts to address sex trafficking and forced labor; and provides legal and policy recommendations for improvement of government efforts in these areas. (29,30) Chaired by the National Rapporteur on Combating Trafficking in Persons and Forced Labor. (29) Comprises two sub-commissions to address sex trafficking and forced labor, respectively. MOIA heads the Sub-Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons and the Minister of Labor heads the Sub-Commission on Combating Forced Labor. (1,2,29,30) In 2021, the National Commission met four times to discuss progress in addressing trafficking in persons and forced labor under the 2019 roadmap. (1,28)
National Rapporteur on Combating Trafficking in Persons and Forced Labor (National Rapporteur)	Chairs the National Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons and Forced Labor. Reports annually to the President on sex trafficking and forced labor issues, government efforts to punish perpetrators, and services for survivors of sex trafficking and forced labor crimes. (29,30) Conducts public awareness-raising activities related to sex trafficking and forced labor. (30) In 2021, the National Rapporteur supported MOIA in signing a Road Map Action Plan for the implementation of the USAID Safe Migration in Central Asia program. (48)
Oliy Majlis Commissioner for Children's Rights†	Created in August 2021 by Presidential Decree No. UP-6275. Responsible for proposing measures to protect the rights of children. (1)
Local Commissions for Combating Human Trafficking and Forced Labor (Local Commissions)	Ensure timely and rigorous implementation of all laws and regulations, including those issued by the National Commission, related to sex trafficking and forced labor. (12,49) Local Commissions are chaired by the regional hokim (governor) and provide monthly reports to the National Commission. (49,50) Research was unable to determine whether actions were undertaken by the Local Commissions during the reporting period.

† Coordinating mechanism was created during the reporting period.

During the reporting period, the National Sub-Commission on Combating Trafficking in Persons worked with the UNODC to develop and release guidance on standard operating procedures (SOPs) for identifying victims of human trafficking. The SOPs were used as guidance for law enforcement agencies, ministries and departments, and NGOs that are members of the National Commission on Combatting Trafficking in Persons and Forced Labor. (28) International organizations reported that the Sub-Commission's lack of a designated secretariat hampered communication with external stakeholders including NGOs and anti-trafficking in persons activists, which delayed action on activities to counter human trafficking. (36)

In 2021, the government continued to engage in dialogue with civil society stakeholders on child and forced labor issues. However, there were also continued reports that many human rights NGOs, including those working on forced and child labor issues, were repeatedly denied official registration, sometimes for failing to meet requirements that had not been publicly specified. (15,34,51,52)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including lack of implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Memorandum of Understanding Between the ILO and the Republic of Uzbekistan (2021–2025) †	Establishes terms of agreement between ILO and the government on cooperation to implement the Decent Work Country Program in Uzbekistan. In 2021, the Government of Uzbekistan and ILO signed a new agreement for 2021–2025, focused on improving the framework for labor relations and creating better work opportunities for youth and other vulnerable groups. (1,53)
Action Plan on Implementing International Recommendations to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Establishes a work plan to address international recommendations to advance the elimination of the worst forms of child labor in Uzbekistan. Aims to improve labor and criminal law enforcement, coordination, policies, and social programs related to the worst forms of child labor. (54) In 2021, the Action Plan was updated twice to call for implementation of recommendations from U.S. Government reports. (28)
Policies for Seasonal Cotton Harvest Workers	Establishes the minimum wages for cotton pickers and sets other guidelines with the goal of attracting voluntary labor to the annual harvest. (32,37,55) These policies continued to be implemented during the 2021 harvest, and wages continued to rise as the harvest progressed to compensate for lower earning potential in the end stages. (43)
Strategy for the Development of Agriculture in the Republic of Uzbekistan (2020–2030)	Calls for a reduction of the state's involvement in agriculture and enhances farmers' autonomy over what crops to grow. (56,57) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

In 2020, President Mirziyoyev formally abolished the practice of imposing state quotas for cotton production. (57–59) Under this quota system in previous harvests, local and regional officials were held responsible for mobilizing adequate labor to harvest a centrally determined amount of cotton, which observers reported was a root cause of forced labor and increased the risk of child labor. (60,61) International and civil society monitors observed that, in some areas, local governments continued to set harvest “targets” during the 2021 cotton harvest in apparent violation of the nationwide ban. (62) However, observers have noted that the 2021 cotton harvest was free of systemic forced labor organized by either local or central government officials. (15,43)

The central government adequately communicated through all branches of government that the use of forced labor in the 2021 cotton harvest would not be tolerated. The labor inspectorate monitored the harvest closely and responded to investigate every allegation of forced labor that was identified. (43) Some clusters are investing in mechanical harvesting equipment and methods, which reduce the need for manual labor during the harvest. Clusters have also taken a varied approach to recruiting seasonal laborers, with some clusters investing in implementation of fair recruitment practices. (34,46,63,64) ILO and civil society monitors found that in some districts, the adoption of these practices resulted in a significant decrease in labor exploitation. (34,46)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Uzbekistan

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Efforts to Prevent Child and Forced Labor in the Cotton Harvest†	Includes initiatives to raise awareness about the prohibition of child and forced labor in the cotton harvest. (63,65) In 2021, the government distributed thousands of informational flyers to residents in cotton-producing regions about pickers' rights and prohibitions on child labor and forced labor. (28)
National Rehabilitation Center†	MOELR-operated shelter that provides human trafficking survivors with emergency medical and social services and assists in social rehabilitation. (2,8,65) This center continued to provide services to survivors of the worst forms of child labor in 2021. (1)
Population Employment Facilitation Centers†	Local centers run by MOELR to connect the unemployed with job opportunities, including paid public work and seasonal agricultural work. Match job seekers with labor needs in the cotton harvest to reduce the risk of forced labor. (2,35) These centers continued to operate during the reporting period. (1)
From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (The Bridge Project)	USDOL-funded global project implemented by ILO to support global and national efforts aimed at countering forced labor of adults and children under the 2014 ILO Protocol and supporting Recommendation to C.29 on Forced Labor. (66) In 2021, the project trained 14 directors of regional labor inspectorates on soft skills and interviewing techniques for forced labor investigations. Additional information is available on the USDOL website. (66)

† Program is funded by the Government of Uzbekistan.

In 2021, the government continued to refer children removed from child labor and human trafficking to social services in accordance with the new trafficking in persons law passed in 2020. (1) According to government data, the MOELR's Agency for External Labor Migration provided legal, financial, and social assistance to 323,620 labor migrants overseas, as well as entrepreneurship and vocational training to 23,878 returned labor migrants. (28)

Although there are programs to address child labor in the cotton sector, research did not find evidence of programs designed to address child labor in other sectors, such as public works and street work.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Uzbekistan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law's light work provisions specify the activities and conditions in which children who have not yet completed their compulsory schooling may work.	2020 – 2021
Enforcement	Continue to increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2015 – 2021
	Share detailed information on whether labor inspections are taking place at work sites and target inspections to high-risk sectors.	2021
	Ensure that labor inspectors conduct self-initiated unannounced inspections in all sectors, including at private enterprises, even if no complaint has been filed.	2018 – 2021
	Thoroughly investigate all potential criminal cases involving the worst forms of child labor and, when sufficient evidence exists, refer violations for criminal prosecution.	2020 – 2021
	Remove barriers to investigating and prosecuting officials who may be complicit in child labor violations.	2021
Coordination	Ensure that the Local Commissions to Combat Trafficking in Persons meet and carry out their mandates to ensure timely and rigorous implementation of all laws and regulations, including those issued by the National Commission, related to sex trafficking and forced labor.	2021
	Designate standard mechanisms for communication between external stakeholders and national coordinating bodies to facilitate coordination of efforts to address forced labor and sex trafficking.	2020 – 2021
	Remove obstacles to the registration of NGOs monitoring child labor, forced labor, and other labor rights issues, including making all registration requirements public, and penalize officials who harass, intimidate, or abuse labor rights activists.	2017 – 2021
Government Policies	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement local policies to protect cotton pickers and the Strategy for the Development of Agriculture in the Republic of Uzbekistan and publish information on activities implemented during the reporting period.	2021

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure educational access for children who do not speak Uzbek or Russian.	2021
	Ensure that schools do not charge informal fees to students or their families.	2019 – 2021
	Expand programs to address the worst forms of child labor in sectors other than cotton harvesting.	2009 – 2021

In 2021, Vanuatu made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government created the National Steering Committee on Migrant Protection, which serves to enhance the ability of the government to identify and respond to cases of trafficking in persons, including child labor trafficking, and the Ministry of Education and Training released the Vanuatu Education and Training Sector Strategic Plan (2021–2030), which outlines policies and strategies to improve access to education for all children in the country. Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Vanuatu are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and forced domestic work. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in forestry and logging activities. Vanuatu's minimum age for hazardous work is below that of international standards. Vanuatu also lacks a referral mechanism between criminal authorities and social services providers. Significant commitment to eradicate child labor is still required, especially with funding and interagency coordination procedures. In addition, the Government of Vanuatu did not respond to requests for information for this report.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Vanuatu are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and forced domestic work. Children also engage in dangerous tasks in forestry and logging activities. (1-4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Vanuatu. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		94.2

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (5)
Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2022. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Forestry, including logging (1,3,4)
Services	Street vending, including selling newspapers (1,3,7,8)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced domestic work (2,4)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4,9,10)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Vanuatu lacks data to determine the nature and prevalence of child labor in the country. (1,3,8) Children living in remote areas face difficulties accessing education, increasing the risk of children's involvement in child labor. (3,11) In addition, approximately 50 percent of children reportedly drop out of the education system due to inadequate programs and facilities, and a lack of school slots. (3) Free primary education has led to an increase in students enrolling in schools, which has created a need for improved infrastructure and teacher training. (3) Lack of proper sanitation facilities continues to be a hurdle. Only 53 percent of Vanuatu has access to basic sanitation facilities, and lack of access to water and sanitation to manage menstrual hygiene has been a key concern for girls in school. (3) Although children are often seen selling newspapers on the street, the country does not consider that this activity should be regulated. (3) Families sometimes send children to live with relatives in nearby towns or cities, and these children are subjected to forced labor as domestic workers. (2,9)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Vanuatu has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Vanuatu's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including a failure to criminalize the use of children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Section 38 and 39 of the Employment Act (12)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	15	Section 40 of the Employment Act (12)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Section 40 of the Employment Act (12)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 7 and 78(2) of the Employment Act; Section 102 of the Penal Code; Sections 2 and 34-35 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act. (12,13)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 35 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act (13)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 101B–D of the Penal Code; Section 2 and 35 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act. (13,14)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Section 35 of the Penal Code (14)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A†
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A†
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	No
Free Public Education	No

† Country has no standing military (15)

Vanuatu's hazardous work prohibitions do not comply with international standards that require all children under age 18 to be protected from work that could jeopardize their health and safety. Further, Vanuatu has yet to determine by law the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (12, 16-18) In addition, the Employment Act permits children under age 12 to perform light work in agricultural undertakings owned and managed by their own families without requiring that the undertaking not have other employees and be for local consumption only; the Employment Act also permits children ages 12 and 13 to work in light agricultural work and domestic work, but it does not specify the activities or hours per week that are allowed. (12) The Penal Code does not include heightened penalties for inducing children to engage in illicit activities, including in drug production and drug trafficking. (14) The government acknowledges these gaps and is developing a Child Protection Bill, which is in draft form and is expected to go before Parliament in 2022. (8, 19, 20) Vanuatu lacks a compulsory education policy, increasing the risk of children's involvement in child labor. (10, 16)

Although it does not appear that there are any laws that provide free basic education, the Primary Education School Fee Grant Policy sometimes provides free basic education in government-owned schools for children in grades one to six. (10, 21, 22) During the reporting period, as part of the continued response to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Government of Vanuatu subsidized school fees for more than 26,000 students. (23)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor	Enforces provisions set forth in the Employment Act, including child labor laws. (3, 7)
Vanuatu Police Force	Enforces all criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor and collaborates with the Vanuatu Tourism Office to address commercial sexual exploitation of children. Prosecutes child labor cases. (3, 10)
National Intelligence Unit	Operates under the Vanuatu Police Force. Is the designated lead and enforces Vanuatu's trafficking in persons laws, including possible commercial sexual exploitation of children as a result of human trafficking. (9, 24)

The Child Desk, under the Ministry of Justice and Community Services, does not have adequate financial and human resources to develop and integrate national planning initiatives into child protection policies. (1, 3) Coordination between the Department of Labor, the Vanuatu Police Force, and the Vanuatu Tourism Office is weak and carried out on an ad hoc basis. In most cases, the three agencies' commitment, coordination, and priorities vary, based on their mandated roles, budgetary allocations, and structural capacity. (3) In many cases, including suspected labor issues involving child labor, the Vanuatu Police Force and the Department of Labor lack proper communication and collaboration mechanisms to investigate allegations unless sanctioned by the government. (25)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, research did not find information on whether labor law enforcement agencies in Vanuatu took actions to address child labor (Table 6).

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Number of Labor Inspectors	4 (22)	Unknown (3)

Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor (Cont.)

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Number Conducted at Worksite	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (12)	Yes (12)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Yes (3)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	No (26)	Yes (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (1)	Unknown (3)

The Government of Vanuatu did not respond to requests for information on its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. However, research indicates that Vanuatu does not have a formal mechanism for reporting and responding to children who need protection. (3) Vanuatu lacks interagency referral and coordination protocols to connect enforcement authorities—including the Department of Labor—to social welfare services. (1,3,8,9) Although the number of labor inspectors is unknown, according to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Vanuatu would need to employ roughly 3 labor inspectors because its workforce consists of more than 92,000 workers. (27)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Vanuatu took actions to address child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Number of Investigations	50 (22)	Unknown (3)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (1)	Unknown (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (1)	Unknown (3)

The Government of Vanuatu did not respond to requests for information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. However, research found that although the police have established standard operating procedures to attend to child victims, there is no formal referral mechanism between the police and social services. (3,7,8) Most cases of child labor are dealt with by Kastom (an informal method individuals use to settle disputes), and although anyone can report a crime, research found that police are more likely to investigate if the victims themselves report their allegations. After a case is reported by the victim, the police are mandated to investigate the allegations and bring evidence to the public prosecutor for trial. (1,28) Reporting shows that inspectors in Vanuatu do not receive anti-human trafficking trainings. (29)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Child Protection Working Group	Serves as the primary forum for exchanging information on child protection and the commercial sexual exploitation of children. Chaired by the Director General of the Ministry of Justice and Community Services, and comprises representatives from the government, UN agencies, civil society organizations, and NGOs. (7,30-33) The program was recently reactivated since ceasing operations in 2014. (3) According to its Terms of Reference, it has a role in capacity building, systems strengthening, emergency preparedness and response, and coordination of services across all child protection sectors. (1,3,34)
Kastom (custom)	Serves as the primary informal method to handle child protection issues in Vanuatu. Comprises informal service providers, including religious leaders, women's groups, and NGOs, to whom children are referred through Kastom for services. (7,8) Although there are no formal reports of this service being used during the reporting period, it may have been used in rural areas. (35)
National Steering Committee on Migrant Protection	Serves to enhance the ability of the government to identify and respond to cases of trafficking in persons, including child labor trafficking, by assessing policies and legislation related to trafficking in persons. (36) Chaired by Director General of the Ministry of Internal Affairs and comprises senior government officials from Vanuatu Immigration Services, the Department of Customs and Inland Revenue, Biosecurity Vanuatu, the Department of Labor, the Department of Women's Affairs, the Transnational Crime Unit, and the National Security Council. The Steering Committee held its first meeting in November 2021. (25,36)

Although the government has established a National Child Protection Working Group to address the commercial sexual exploitation of children, research found no evidence of a coordinating mechanism to address all forms of child labor. (30) Kastom is a common mechanism used to address child protection issues, but research found that there is a lack of established interagency protocols and procedures between Kastom and governmental offices—including the Vanuatu Police Force—to sufficiently coordinate and ensure that child protection services are provided. (3,7,8) In addition, research found that interagency coordination on human trafficking investigations between law enforcement agencies was primarily ad hoc. Lastly, there were reports that government resources were diverted away from anti-trafficking related duties, including eliminating the worst forms of child labor, to address the impact of the pandemic. (37)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including lack of implementation of the National Children Protection Policy.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Children Protection Policy (2016–2026)	Aims to protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. Provides children with equitable access to services to support reintegration and recovery when needed. (10,30,32)
United Nations Pacific Strategy (2018–2022)	A multinational strategic framework, comprising 14 South Pacific nations. Created to address, develop, and implement strategic economic development priorities in the South Pacific, including eliminating child labor and the worst forms of child labor. (40)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (41)

Research was unable to determine whether any policies were active during the reporting period. The National Children Protection Policy does not have a dedicated budget, and the offices responsible for its implementation lack human and financial resources. (1,3,8)

There is no register of civil society organizations tasked with protecting children, and social services providers are not required to be registered with the state. Furthermore, there are no standards or requirements that child protection agents or social services providers must follow when addressing children's issues. (3,8,32)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Education School Fee Grant†	Funded by the Government of Vanuatu's Ministry of Education; provides funding directly to primary schools to manage. Funds are disbursed to students in Years 1 through 6 to offset education costs. (42,43) The grant program was active in 2021. (44)
Education and Training Sector Strategic Plan (2021–2030)*	A strategic plan to strengthen the education sector in Vanuatu, including the education budget and monitoring of expenses. (39) Provides access to education to all children in Vanuatu. Implements quality infrastructure based on needs. (39) Reduces the number of out-of-school children and identifies children studying at the incorrect grade level. (39)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Vanuatu.

Research was unable to determine whether the Vanuatu Education School Fee Grant program included child labor elimination policies or efforts.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Vanuatu (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2014 – 2021
	Ensure that the minimum age for hazardous work is age 18.	2016 – 2021
	Determine by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children after consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that the law protects children ages 12 and 13 employed in light agricultural work by specifying the activities and hours per week that are allowed.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that the law specifically prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminalizes the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Establish by law provision of free basic public education.	2016 – 2021
	Establish by law an age up to which education is compulsory that extends to the minimum age for work.	2016 – 2021
Enforcement	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts undertaken, including the number of labor inspectors, labor inspectorate funding, the number and type of labor inspections conducted, violations found, and penalties imposed and collected.	2012 – 2021
	Ensure that the number of labor inspectors meets the ILO's technical advice.	2021
	Train labor inspectors and criminal investigators on human anti-trafficking and enforcement of child labor laws, and make the results of these efforts public.	2014 – 2021
	Publish information on the number of criminal law enforcement efforts undertaken, including the number of investigations conducted, violations found, prosecutions initiated, convictions made, and penalties imposed.	2012 – 2021
	Strengthen coordination and sufficiently fund referral mechanisms between the Department of Labor, the Vanuatu Police Force, the Vanuatu Tourism office, and social welfare services to protect and rehabilitate children involved in child labor, including its worst forms.	2014 – 2021
	Ensure that the Child Desk has adequate financial and human resources to develop and integrate national planning initiatives for child protection policies.	2019 – 2021
	Ensure that all complaints of child labor are investigated, regardless of who lodges the complaint.	2019 – 2021
	Establish interagency protocols and a referral and coordination mechanism between Kastom and government child protection services.	2018 – 2021
Coordination	Ensure that the National Child Protection Working Group is funded and active and can carry out its intended mandates.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that all policies are allocated funding and implemented as intended to address all relevant worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2016 – 2021
Government Policies	Ensure that social services providers are registered and follow a standard set of procedures in providing care to vulnerable children.	2019 – 2021

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs, including in forestry and logging.	2014 – 2021
	Increase access to education for all children, including access by remote students, facilities to accommodate all children, improved infrastructure, adequate programs, and expanded teacher training.	2012 – 2021
	Ensure that the Education School Fee Grant is sufficiently funded and contains child labor elimination policies or efforts.	2018 – 2021

For the 2021 reporting period, no assessment has been made regarding Wallis and Futuna's efforts to advance the elimination of the worst forms of child labor because there is no evidence of a worst forms of child labor problem and the country has a good legal and enforcement framework on child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Wallis and Futuna. (1) Wallis and Futuna has a population of approximately 15,851 inhabitants. (2) Data on key indicators on children's work and education are not available from the sources used in this report.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Wallis and Futuna is a French overseas collectivity, and, as such, cannot ratify international conventions. However, France's ratification of such conventions applies to Wallis and Futuna. (3,4) France has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

Given its status as an overseas collectivity of France, French law is applicable in Wallis and Futuna. (3,4) The Government of France has established laws and regulations related to child labor, which are in line with relevant international standards (Table 2).

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 118 of the Labor Code of Wallis and Futuna (5)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 115 of the Labor Code of Wallis and Futuna (5)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article R234-6 of the Labor Code; Decree No. 2013-915, Relative to Work That is Prohibited and Regulated for Young People Less Than 18 Years (6,7)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 212-1, 224-1, 225-4-1, 225-14-1, 225-14-2, and 711-1 of the Penal Code; Article 2 of the Labor Code of Wallis and Futuna (5,8)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 225-4-1 to 225-4-9 and 711-1 of the Penal Code (8)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 225-5 to 12, 227-22, 227-23, and 711-1 of the Penal Code (8,9)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 222-35, 227-15 to 227-28-3, and 711-1 of the Penal Code (8)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	N/A†

Wallis and Futuna

NO ASSESSMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 461-7 of the Penal Code (8)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles L131-I and L161-I of the Education Code of France (10)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles L132-I, L132-2, and L161-I of the Education Code of France (10)

* Country has no conscription (11)

† Country has no standing military (2)

During the reporting period, the French Parliament amended the Penal Code to include stricter penalties for sexual crimes, offences, and incest of children. The law, which is applicable in Wallis and Futuna, increased penalties for the use of child prostitution and established that any paid sexual relationship between an adult and a minor under the age of 15 is considered rape and is punishable by imprisonment for up to 20 years. (9,12) In cases where the minor is age 15 or older, the penalty is reduced to 10 years of imprisonment. This law also introduced the offence of incitement to engage minors in acts of a sexual nature via electronic media, and of soliciting communication of pornographic images or videos from a minor. (9,12)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

Even with no evidence of a problem, the Government of France has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3). Wallis and Futuna has one labor inspector to enforce these laws and regulations. (1)

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Service of Labor and Social Laws Inspectorate	Enforces French labor law and mediates in labor conflicts within Wallis and Futuna, falling under the joint authority of the Ministry of Labor and the Ministry of Overseas Territories. (1,3)
Defender of Rights	Promotes children's rights, including through the prohibition of child labor. (13)
French National Police	Oversee the health and safety of children. (13)

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, there are no actions needed to advance the continued prevention of child labor in Wallis and Futuna.

West Bank and the Gaza Strip

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2021, the Palestinian Authority made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in the areas of the West Bank under its control. The Ministry of Labor detected 51 cases of child labor and imposed 19 penalties. However, children in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including use in illicit activities. Children also perform dangerous tasks in construction and fishing. The Palestinian Authority's legal framework does not criminally prohibit all elements of child trafficking. In addition, Palestinian Authority programs to prevent or eliminate child labor are insufficient.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in illicit activities. Children also perform dangerous tasks in construction and fishing. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		101.6

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (3)

Data were unavailable from International Labor Organization's analysis, 2022. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cultivating fruits and vegetables,† including dates, olives, onions, sweet peppers, and tomatoes (5-9)
	Fishing,† including working on fishing boats and repairing nets (1,5)
Industry	Construction,† including demolishing buildings and collecting rubble and gravel for construction purposes (1,5,7,8,10,11)
	Manufacturing, activities unknown (1,6)
	Working in factories (5)
	Mining and quarrying† (6,12)
Services	Street vending, portering, and cleaning cars (1,5,7,10,13)
	Begging (5,7)
	Working in auto shops (5)
	Working in shops, hotels, restaurants, and bakeries (1,5,6,8)
	Domestic work (1,5,11)
	Transporting goods (5)
	Collecting scrap metal, cement bricks, and solid waste† (5)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Scavenging garbage and gravel at trash pits (8,11,13)
	Use in illicit activities, including smuggling drugs (1)
	Begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (15)
	Commercial sexual exploitation (16)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children may be vulnerable to child labor in the agricultural sector, partly because the Palestinian Authority (PA) does not have jurisdiction or the resources to enforce laws in Area C's agricultural fields and Israeli settlements in the West Bank. (1,9,17) Some West Bank Palestinian girls are vulnerable to being exploited for sex and labor in Israel after family members force them into marriages with older men; these girls experience physical and sexual abuse, threats of violence, and restricted movement. (16)

West Bank and the Gaza Strip

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

The COVID-19 pandemic continued to disrupt education, particularly for students experiencing difficulty accessing online instruction. (18) In the Gaza Strip, most schools operate on a split schedule, offering only 4 hours of instruction per day. (5,19,20) Overcrowded classrooms, violence in schools, and damaged schools susceptible to disruption due to weather contribute to some children dropping out. (1,5,8,20) In the West Bank, school closures, Israeli demolition and confiscation of schools, and long distances and fear of harassment at checkpoints and settler attacks prevent some children from attending school. (21,22)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The PA has Non-Member Observer status at the UN. In April 2014, PA officials presented to UN officials letters of accession to 15 UN treaties, including the UN CRC and its Optional Protocol on the Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict. In December 2017, PA officials acceded to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons and the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	N/A
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The penal code applicable to the West Bank is Jordanian Law No. 16 of 1960 (Jordanian Penal Code for the West Bank). The penal code applicable to Gaza is Penal Code No. 74 of 1936, which was enacted during the British Mandate (Penal Code for Gaza). (23) The PA has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the failure to criminalize child trafficking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Article 93 of the Labor Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (24)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 95 of the Labor Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip; Article 14 of the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (24,25)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 1 of Minister of Labor's Decree on Hazardous Work for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (26)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article 1 of Minister of Labor's Decree on Hazardous Work for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (26)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Article 1 of Minister of Labor's Decree on Hazardous Work for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (26)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 306 and 310 of the Jordanian Penal Code for the West Bank; Articles 167 and 172(5) of the Penal Code for the Gaza Strip (27,28)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 27 and 44 of the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip; Article 389 of the Jordanian Penal Code for the West Bank; Article 193 of the Penal Code for the Gaza Strip (25,27,28)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes†	18	Article 46 of the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (25)

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Article 46 of the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (25)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles 3 and 18 of the Palestinian Education Act for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip; Article 37 of the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (25,29)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 3 and 15 of the Palestinian Education Act for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (29)

* No conscription in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (30)

† No standing military in the West Bank (22)

As the minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, children may be encouraged to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. The Labor Law's minimum age provision does not apply to minors who work for their first-degree relatives, which is not in line with international standards that limit the exception for family-based work to small-scale holdings producing for local consumption and not regularly employing hired workers. (24)

Although human trafficking and forced labor are on the hazardous work list, the law does not criminally prohibit child trafficking or forced labor in accordance with international standards. (24,26) In addition, laws criminalizing commercial sexual exploitation of children are insufficient because they do not criminalize the use, procuring, and offering of all male and female children for prostitution, the production of pornography, or pornographic performances. (25,27,28) Further, there are no criminal penalties for recruiting children into non-state armed groups. (25)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The PA has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL), General Administration of Labor Inspection and Protection	Enforces labor laws, including those related to child labor. (7)
Ministry of Social Development (MOSD), Child Protection Department	Ensures compliance with the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, which prohibits the worst forms of child labor and establishes the minimum age for work. (7)
Police Bureau for the Protection of the Family and Adolescents	Investigates violations of laws, including the commercial sexual exploitation and economic exploitation of children. Coordinates with MOSD to monitor cases of child labor and economic exploitation. (7)
Office of the Public Prosecutor for Children	Investigates and prosecutes cases of child exploitation, including child labor. (7)

In the West Bank, under the terms of the Oslo-era agreements between the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) and the Israeli Government, the PA has civil law jurisdiction in the areas of the West Bank designated Area A and Area B, which represent approximately 39 percent of the West Bank's land area and contain approximately 94 percent of the Palestinian population. The Israeli Government has full administrative and security control over the city of Jerusalem and Area C; the latter represents 61 percent of the West Bank's land area and approximately 6 percent of the Palestinian population and the vast majority of the West Bank's agricultural areas. (31-33) Although PA laws ostensibly apply to both the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, the PA has no means to enforce compliance in Area C of the West Bank and no control in the Gaza Strip, in which Hamas exercises de facto control and does not enforce PA laws and regulations. (31,33,34)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in the West Bank took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MOL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the insufficient allocation of resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown	Unknown (22)
Number of Labor Inspectors	Unknown	79 (22)

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Unknown	Yes (22)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (7)	Yes (22)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (7)	Yes (22)

All inspections in the West Bank are unannounced and are conducted in all sectors and include a check for child labor. The PA does not have authority to conduct inspections in the Gaza Strip. (22)

In 2021, the PA allocated approximately $4 million for the labor inspectorate; however, only $1 million was disbursed. (22) In previous years, the MOL reported that it was unable to inspect as many businesses per year as required by the Labor Law, due to insufficient funding. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in the West Bank took actions to address child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown	Unknown (22)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Unknown (22)
Number of Investigations	Unknown	Unknown (22)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	Unknown (22)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	Unknown (22)
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown (22)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Unknown (22)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (7)	Yes (7)

Insufficient resources, including investigators lack of access to vehicles, hampered the PA's capacity to enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (22)

The PA did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The PA has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
MOSD Child Protection Network	Monitors cases of child labor, ensuring that the MOL's services are provided to withdraw children from child labor. Includes eight technical committees throughout the West Bank that provide psychological and social support to children and caregivers. (7) Coordinates with the Ministry of Education on cases of school dropouts and child labor. Works with the MOSD's 13 Youth Social Rehabilitation Centers to provide children who have dropped out of school with social, education, vocational, and cultural training. (7) Comprising MOSD, MOL, Ministry of Education, Ministry of Interior, and other Palestinian Authority (PA) and non-governmental organizations. (35) The Child Protection Network generally holds monthly meetings; however, in 2021, meetings were less frequent due to the ongoing pandemic. (22)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the PA has established policies to address child labor.

The PA's National Policy Agenda (2017–2022) aims to alleviate poverty through social programs for vulnerable groups and job creation programs for women and youth, improve primary and secondary school curricula, ensure equal access to education for marginalized areas, and ensure that technical and vocational training is aligned with labor market needs. (36) However, child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to have been integrated into this policy as distinct issues.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the PA funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 9. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
MOL's Vocational Centers†	PA program in the West Bank, consisting of 13 employment offices and 9 vocational centers operated by MOL, for children over the age of 15 to enroll in vocational training courses. MOL also provides financial assistance to families, ensuring that children return to school and no longer engage in child labor. (7) Active in 2021. (30)
UN Education Programs	UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East programs that provide educational support for children and youth in refugee camps, and microfinance and other forms of support to families in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. (37) In 2021, UNICEF distributed tablets and stationary kits, and helped repair schools damaged by escalations in the Gaza Strip. (18)

† Program is funded by the Palestinian Authority.

Although there are programs in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including in construction, street work, illicit activities, and agriculture.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (Table 10).

Table 10. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits child trafficking, including both domestic and international human trafficking, in accordance with international standards.	2015 – 2021
	Ensure that the minimum age for work applies to all children, excepting only those working in family and small-scale holdings producing for local consumption and not regularly employing hired workers.	2020 – 2021
	Establish laws that criminally prohibit forced labor.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that the use, procurement, and offering of children for all forms of commercial sexual exploitation are criminally prohibited.	2017 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
Enforcement	Ensure that child labor laws are enforced in the Gaza Strip.	2010 – 2021
	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts, including labor inspectorate funding and the number of violations for which penalties were collected.	2010 – 2021
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts.	2010 – 2021
	Provide further resources and staff to the Ministry of Labor to conduct labor inspections and criminal investigations.	2010 – 2021
	Ensure that labor inspectors receive initial and refresher training.	2021
Coordination	Ensure that the Child Protection Network is active and able to carry out its intended mandates.	2017 – 2021
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Policy Agenda and ensure that it is implemented.	2017 – 2021
Social Programs	Expand programs to improve access to education; for example, ensure that children are not subjected to violence, schools are weatherproof, and delays at checkpoints do not prevent children from attending school.	2011 – 2021
	Expand programs to further address child labor, specifically in construction, street work, illicit activities, and agriculture.	2010 – 2021
	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2020 – 2021

In 2021, Morocco made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Kingdom of Morocco claims the territory of Western Sahara and administers the area that it controls with the same constitution, laws, and structures as in internationally recognized Morocco, including laws that deal with child labor. During the reporting period, the government increased the number of labor inspectors by over 43 percent and launched a new labor inspectorate information technology management system that enabled remote training sessions for inspectors in compliance with COVID-19 pandemic countermeasures. In addition, the government signed eight partnership agreements with local non-governmental organizations in various regions of Morocco to counter the prevalence of child labor. However, children in Western Sahara are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work. The law on minimum age for work does not meet international standards. Furthermore, the scope of government social programs that target child labor is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Western Sahara are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work and in commercial sexual exploitation. Commercial sexual exploitation of migrant girls occurs and is reportedly more prevalent in fishing villages and on fishing boats. (1,2) Children, particularly in rural areas, are vulnerable to child labor due to educational barriers similar to those faced in other locations in Morocco, such as insufficient facilities, lack of reliable and safe transportation, and unqualified teachers. (1-3) Data on key indicators on children's work and education are not available from the sources used in this report.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Western Sahara is subject to the same laws as internationally recognized Morocco. (2) A U.S. Presidential Proclamation released in December 2020 recognized Moroccan sovereignty over the entire Western Sahara territory. (3) Morocco has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor, which the Government extends to the areas in Western Sahara that it controls (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The Government of Morocco has established laws and regulations related to child labor that extend to Western Sahara (Table 2). However, gaps exist in Morocco's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of forced labor.

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Articles 4 and 143 of the Labor Code (4)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Hazardous Child Labor List, Decree No. 2-10-183; Article 181 of the Labor Code (4,5)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 10 and 12 of the Labor Code; Article 467-2 of the Penal Code (4,6)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 448.1, 448.4, and 448.5 of the Law on Trafficking in Human Beings (7)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 497, 498, 499, and 503-2 of the Penal Code; Articles 448.1 and 448.4 of the Law on Trafficking in Human Beings (6,7)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Law number 1-73-282; Article 467-2 of the Penal Code; Articles 448.1 and 448.4 of the Law on Trafficking in Human Beings (6-8)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 4 of Royal Decree of 9 June 1966 (9)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Article 4 of Law No. 44-18 (10)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Articles 448.1 and 448.4 of the Law on Trafficking in Human Beings (7)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article 1 of Law No. 04-00 (11)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 1 of Law No. 04-00 (11)

The labor law does not apply to children who work in the traditional artisan or handicraft sectors for family businesses with fewer than five employees. (3,4)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The Government of Morocco has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Economic Inclusion, Small Business, Employment and Skills (MEIPEEC)	Enforces child labor laws within its 54 inspection offices throughout the country. The Government of Morocco maintains 54 "designated focal points," which serve to coordinate efforts among labor inspectors as they work to deal with the prevalence of child labor. (3)
Ministry of the Interior	Enforces prohibitions on trafficking in persons, prostitution, and other exploitative crimes involving minors, as established in the Penal Code, through the General Directorate of National Security. (2,12,13)
General Prosecutor	Prosecutes criminal offenses against children and processes cases involving women and children in the court system. (1,2,12,13) The General Prosecutor is a judiciary body that serves independently from the Ministry of Justice. (12)

In 2021, the Government of Morocco increased the number of labor inspectors by over 43 percent, from 282 to 404 inspectors. (3) In addition, the government launched a new labor inspectorate information technology management system that enabled remote training sessions for inspectors in compliance with pandemic countermeasures. (3) During the reporting period, 998 children were removed from worksites considered dangerous by inspectors. (3)

The General Directorate of National Security carried out a 30-hour training session at the national police headquarters on protecting children's rights, including psychological aid to children, investigations and forensics related to child victims, and laws that protect children from violence. (3) In addition, the Ministry of Justice provided a training session for law enforcement officials and prosecutors pertaining to the implementation of Domestic Labor Law 19.12. (3) The Public Prosecutor's Office also organized trainings to help prosecutors recognize the indicators of human trafficking in child victims. The Ministry of the Interior held online trainings on human trafficking and smuggling of migrants. (14)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The Government of Morocco has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Technical Committee Under the Special Ministerial Commission for Children for the Protection and Improvement of Childhood	Ensures intersectoral coordination and monitoring for implementing international conventions on children's issues through a committee of 25 government bodies, chaired by the Head of the Government of Morocco. Establishes strategies and mechanisms to implement national policies and plans for child protection and coordinates the management of efforts at the local and regional levels. (12) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.
Commission for the Support of Women Victims of Violence	Monitors policies and actions against child labor, ensuring coordination on child labor issues between labor inspectors and those NGOs that have partnership projects with the Government of Morocco. Made up of 19 ministerial departments and is chaired by the Head of Government of Morocco. (3) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.
The Interministerial Commission for Combating Trafficking in Persons	Coordinates the government's approach to trafficking in persons on an interministerial level. Conducts training sessions for members of the security services. (15) Chaired by the Head of the Government of Morocco and lead by the Ministry of Justice, with representation from civil society. (3,12) Established in May 2019. (12,15,16) In 2021, the Commission carried out four training sessions in coordination with the Council of Europe, covering themes of human trafficking and management of crime scenes. (14)

Due to the restrictions associated with the COVID-19 pandemic, a number of coordination activities were canceled in 2021. (3)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Ministry of Solidarity, Social Inclusion, and Family (MSWFSD) Integrated Public Policy on the Protection of Children in Morocco	Promotes an interdisciplinary approach to respond to the exploitation of children. (17) MEIPEEC continued administering grant programs to NGOs in 2021 to address child labor. In this context, MEIPEEC signed eight partnership agreements with NGOs in multiple regions of Morocco to counter the prevalence of child labor. These agreements support the removal of children from work (particularly domestic work), while also seeking to improve working conditions and raise awareness of the hazards associated with child labor. (3)

In March 2021, Labor Minister Mohamed Amekraz appeared on a virtual conference marking 2021 as the ILO-sponsored International Year for the Elimination of Child Labor. Minister Amekraz addressed attendees with an elaboration on the government's 10-year plan to eliminate child labor. (18) Morocco is a Pathfinder country under Alliance 8.7, which calls for the eradication of child labor by 2025; and forced labor, modern slavery, and human trafficking by 2030. (12)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Western Sahara

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 6. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Tayssir Conditional Cash Transfer Program†	The Ministry of Solidarity, Social Development, Equality and Family funds the Tayssir Conditional Cash Transfer Program, providing direct cash transfers to qualifying families whose children meet school attendance criteria. In 2021, the Government of Morocco reported its continued support for this social program but did not provide further information. (3)

† Program is funded by the Government of Morocco.

‡ The Government of Morocco had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (12,19)

Although the government has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including for children engaged in forced domestic work. (1,20)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Western Sahara (Table 7).

Table 7. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that all children age 15 and under are protected by law, including children who work in artisan and handicraft sectors for family businesses.	2009 – 2021
Coordination	Ensure that key coordinating bodies related to the worst forms of child labor are active.	2021
Social Programs	Remove barriers to education, such as insufficient facilities, lack of reliable and safe transportation, and unqualified teachers, particularly in rural areas.	2015 – 2021
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, including child victims of commercial sexual exploitation.	2017 – 2021
	Conduct a comprehensive study of children's work activities to inform policies and practices to determine whether children are engaged in or at risk of becoming involved in child labor and determine the number of child laborers and their education levels.	2013 – 2021

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2021, Yemen made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The International Labor Organization provided training to Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor employees. However, despite this initiative, Yemen is assessed as having made minimal advancement because it continued to implement practices that delay advancement to eliminate child labor. There is evidence of recruitment and use of children in hostilities by state armed forces in contravention of Yemeni law. Furthermore, the government failed to make efforts to address discrimination in schools against children from the Muhamasheen (“marginalized”) community, leading to their increased vulnerability to child labor. Children in Yemen are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and armed conflict, including by Houthi insurgent forces (also known as Ansar Allah) and other armed groups. Children also perform dangerous tasks in fishing. Research found no evidence of a government policy on worst forms of child labor outside of child soldiering, such as commercial sexual exploitation or child trafficking. Moreover, the Republic of Yemen Government continued to have limited operational control over its ministries and was unable to enforce regulations to address child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Yemen are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and armed conflict, including by Houthi insurgent forces (also known as Ansar Allah) and other armed groups. (1-3) Children also perform dangerous tasks in fishing. (4-6) Given the ongoing conflict in Yemen and highly variable situation, it is difficult to obtain reliable data. Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Yemen.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	13.6 (834,866)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	68.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	10.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		72.3

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming,† including harvesting dates (5,9,10)
	Fishing,† activities unknown (4-6)
Industry	Quarrying† and mining† (5)
	Construction† and brick production (4,6,9,10)
	Working in carpentry† and welding† workshops (4,6,10-12)
Services	Street work, including selling items, and begging (4,9,10,13-16)
	Working in auto repair and mechanic shops,† car washes, and collecting fares in taxis (5,9)

	Voluntarily-recruited children used in hostilities by state armed groups (17-22)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,4,6,10,23,24)
	Use in illicit activities, including in trafficking of drugs (6,10,25-27)
	Forced labor, including domestic work, begging, and working in small shops (24,25)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (2-4,6,10,21,22,28-31)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Yemen suffered another year of escalating hostilities, economic collapse, food insecurity, displacement, and effects of the COVID-19 pandemic that put children at risk. (32) There are 20.7 million people in Yemen in need of humanitarian support with more than 25,500 families displaced, 13,000 of whom have been displaced as a result of hostilities in Ma'rib Governorate. (32) Yemen was also home to approximately 178,000 refugees and asylum seekers, mostly from Somalia and Ethiopia. (33) In addition, 11 percent of the 37,500 new arrivals to Yemen were unaccompanied minors, most of whom were subjected to detention, forced recruitment, and human trafficking. (33) Vulnerable populations, including IDP's and refugees, were at increased risk of child labor and human trafficking. (34,35)

Armed conflict in Yemen intensified in 2021, and security and access restrictions further constrained international observers' ability to fully monitor grave violations, including the recruitment and use of children in armed conflict. Armed groups, especially the Houthis, but also pro-Saudi-led coalition militias, recruited and used child soldiers in armed combat in 2021. (3,30) In 2021, the UN verified the recruitment and use of 174 children, 128 of whom served in combat roles. The Houthis accounted for 131 of these children during the reporting period. In addition, the Yemeni Armed Forces recruited and used children, typically ages 15 to 17, for these same purposes, in contravention of Yemeni law. (3,29) The government's failure to institute effective mechanisms for age verification continued to prolong the problem. (22) Between 2016 and 2020, the UN also reported that pro-coalition militias recruited boys in Ta'izz and Lahij, transported them for training in Saudi Arabia, and redeployed them to Yemen. (29) In areas under Houthi control, children are indoctrinated in schools and recruited into armed forces in 34 schools in 6 governorates. (29) Boys recruited by the Houthis are often used in combat roles and girls are used as recruiters, guards, and spies, and in other non-combat roles. (29)

Children in Yemen continued to face significant barriers to education in 2021. (10) According to UNICEF, over 2 million boys and girls are not attending school due to poverty, conflict, and lack of education. Direct effects of the war, including destruction of schools, prevented more than 400,000 children from attending classes. (36) Further, more than two thirds of teachers in Yemen have not received a regular salary in 4 years, leaving some children with no school to attend. (36) Many families also could not afford transportation costs to schools, and Yemen's multiple crises have pushed families further into poverty making it increasingly difficult to access education. (37,38) According to UNICEF, school closures have had a deleterious impact on school attendance and other aspects of children's lives and has made them more vulnerable to child labor, child sexual exploitation, and recruitment into armed groups. (37)

Among the Muhamasheen ("marginalized") minority group, generally of African origin, illiteracy rates are high, and child labor in the form of begging is prevalent. This community also suffers from general poverty and severe societal discrimination. (39,40) Many Muhamasheen children do not have birth certificates, which are required for enrollment in schools. They face harassment, bullying, and violence at school, are dismissed from school or are asked to clean the bathrooms, leading some to drop out. (40,41) Muhamasheen boys are vulnerable to sexual violence by armed actors, particularly while they engage in child labor, even if they are not directly involved in armed conflict. (41) Research did not uncover any government efforts to address discrimination.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Yemen has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Yemen's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including laws prohibiting child trafficking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Articles 5 and 27 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013; Articles 48 and 49 of the Labor Code (42,43)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 7 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013; Articles 49 and 154 of the Labor Code (42,43)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 7, 8, and 15 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013 (42)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Articles 6 and 26 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013; Article 248 of the Penal Code (42,44)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Articles 6 and 26 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013 (42)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 147 and 163 of the Child Rights Law; Article 279 of the Penal Code; Articles 6 and 25 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013 (42-45)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 24 of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013; Articles 148 and 162 of the Child Rights Law (42,45)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 149 of the Child Rights Law (45)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No		Article 6(b) of Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013 (42)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Article 18 of the General Education Law (46)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 87 of the Child Rights Law (45)

* Country has no conscription (47)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (42)

Although Article 248 of the Penal Code criminalizes buying, selling, and dealing in human beings, the legal framework does not appear to prohibit forced labor. (44)

The law related to child trafficking is insufficient because it only provides criminal penalties for someone who has bought, sold, or dispensed of a child. (42)

Yemen

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

The legal framework does not adequately prohibit using, procuring, or offering a child in pornography and pornographic performances, or using a child in prostitution. (42-45)

The minimum age for work is lower than the compulsory education age, which may encourage children to leave school before the completion of compulsory education. (42,46)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, research found no evidence that law enforcement agencies in Yemen took actions to address child labor.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor's Child Labor Unit	Enforces child labor laws, conducts inspections, informs the Ministry of the Interior of any violations, and refers children found during inspections to appropriate social services. (10)
Ministry of the Interior	Enforces child labor laws. Police departments within this ministry handle human trafficking investigations. (10)
Ministry of Justice	Enforces child labor laws; prosecutes and adjudicates child labor cases. (10)

Labor Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether labor law enforcement agencies in Yemen took actions to address child labor.

In 2021, the ILO provided training to Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor (MOSAL) employees. However, the Republic of Yemen Government continued to have limited operational control over its ministries and was unable to enforce regulations to combat child labor. (10) While it is MOSAL policy to conduct inspections after child labor complaints, MOSAL reported they did not receive any such complaints in 2021, and thus did not undertake any child labor inspections. (10)

MOSAL does not have the authority to enforce child labor laws in casual employment, farming, and domestic work, and lacks a referral mechanism for child labor complaints. (6,43)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Yemen's workforce, which includes over 6.9 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Yemen would need to employ roughly 173 labor inspectors. (10,48,49)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Yemen took actions to address child labor.

The government is unable to investigate, prosecute, or convict government officials allegedly complicit in human trafficking offenses, including the recruitment and use of child soldiers by the Republic of Yemen Government's Armed Forces. (4) Further, the government lacked the capacity to adequately oversee, effect, investigate, and prosecute labor violations as a criminal matter. (10) Nonetheless, the ILO provided training to government officials on preventing and reintegrating child soldiers. (50)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 6. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee to Combat Child Labor	Coordinates child labor issues in Yemen. Comprises representatives from the Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor; other state agencies, ILO, and local NGO's. (10) The National Steering Committee to Combat Child Labor was not active during the reporting period. (10)
National Network for Child Protection	Implements training programs and media awareness campaigns, and advocates for progress on children's issues. (10) Research was unable to determine whether the National Network for Child Protection was active during the reporting period.
Joint Technical Committee to Prevent Recruitment of Children in the Yemeni Armed Forces	Implements and monitors the Action Plan to End and Prevent the Recruitment of Children by the Yemeni Armed Forces. (51) In 2021, the committee held a 3-day meeting and workshop on preventing the recruitment of children into the armed forces. (50)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 7). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering of all worst forms of child labor.

Table 7. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Action Plan to End and Prevent the Recruitment of Children by the Yemeni Armed Forces	Ensures that national laws comply with international standards, prohibits the recruitment and use of children in armed forces, investigates allegations of violations, and facilitates UN access to monitor compliance. (21) Active in 2021. (50)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (52)

Although the Republic of Yemen Government has adopted the Action Plan to End and Prevent the Recruitment of Children by the Yemeni Armed Forces, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor, such as commercial sexual exploitation and child trafficking. (28) The government has drafted a National Plan to Reduce Child Labor; however, the plan is pending approval. The government has emphasized that it could not implement the plan without donor support. (28)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem in all sectors.

Table 8. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Educational Activities	UNICEF-funded programs conducted in cooperation with the Republic of Yemen Government that provide educational support activities and services. (53) In 2021, UNICEF renovated and repaired 23 schools in 3 governorates. (54)

Although the Republic of Yemen Government participates in programs that address child labor and access to education, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, particularly in commercial sexual exploitation, child soldiering, and fishing.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Yemen (Table 9).

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2021
	Ensure that forced labor is criminally prohibited.	2015 – 2021
	Ensure that trafficking of children, including recruitment, harboring, transportation, transfer, and receipt, for purposes of forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation, is criminalized.	2015 – 2021
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that the law adequately prohibits using, procuring, or offering a child in pornography and pornographic performances, and using a child in prostitution.	2020 – 2021
	Raise the minimum age for work to the age up to which education is compulsory.	2018 – 2021
Enforcement	Enforce laws prohibiting children under age 18 from joining the Yemeni Armed Forces, including by implementing adequate screening and age verification measures, and remove children under age 18 in the Yemeni Armed Forces and pro-government militias from engaging in combat.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate has the capacity to enforce labor laws, including reestablishing a mechanism to receive child labor complaints.	2015 – 2021
	Ensure the number of labor inspectors in Yemen meets the ILO's technical guidance.	2020 – 2021
	Ensure that labor inspectors have proper funding and training to conduct inspections.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that authorities enforce minimum age protections in all sectors in which the worst forms of child labor are prevalent, including in casual employment, farming, and domestic work.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement agencies enforce child labor laws and publish information on enforcement activities.	2015 – 2021
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are active and able to carry out their intended mandates.	2017 – 2021
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, such as commercial sexual exploitation and child trafficking.	2009 – 2021
Social Programs	Expand programs to improve children's equal access to education, particularly for child Muhamasheen .	2013 – 2021
	Institute a rehabilitation and reintegration program for children engaged in armed conflict and children involved in other worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and fishing.	2011 – 2021

In 2021, Zambia made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government significantly increased the number of labor inspectors to 240, from 160 the previous year. The government also launched its second National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor, allocated funding to hire 22,000 schoolteachers, and collected updated data on the number of children in child labor and in hazardous work. However, children in Zambia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and forced labor in agriculture. The Education Act does not specify a compulsory education age, and human trafficking laws do not meet international standards because they require threats, the use of force, or coercion to establish the crime of child trafficking. In addition, labor inspectors do not routinely inspect non-registered businesses in which child labor is known to occur.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Zambia are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and forced labor in agriculture. (1,2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Zambia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	28.1 (992,722)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	65.2
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	27.6

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Work in the production of cotton,† tobacco,† and other cash crops (2,5,6)
	Raising and herding† cattle (2,5)
	Fishing† (2,7,8)
	Production of charcoal† (9)
	Forestry, including loading of timber (2,10)
Industry	Mining of tin, chrome, gold, ore, and gems, including manganese (2,7,8,11,12)
	Work in quarries, including carrying heavy loads† and crushing stones† (2,7)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Domestic work (2,7)
	Street work, including begging and vending (2,7,8)
	Garbage disposal (2)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor†	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,13)
	Forced labor in agriculture, herding, construction, domestic work, mining, small businesses, and textile production (1,11,13)
	Forced begging (1)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Child labor in Zambia is most prevalent in the agricultural sector and sometimes involves forced labor. (1,2,14) Traffickers exploit children from rural areas in Zambia to cities for domestic work and to rural areas for agriculture. (1) Sources reported the exploitation of children for cattle herding, which sometimes involves parents repaying debts by sending children, particularly young boys, to work as cattle herders for the people to whom they are indebted. (2) Orphans, street children, children with disabilities, and children from poor households are particularly vulnerable to child trafficking. (1,8,15) In addition, traffickers exploit children from neighboring countries for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (16)

Illegal mining syndicates, called jerabo gangs, in the Copperbelt province employ children for mining activities, including forcing children to load trucks with stolen copper ore. (1,17) Commercial sexual exploitation of children is common, particularly along Zambia's borders and transit corridors. (1,13) Research indicates that school closures resulting from the COVID-19 pandemic have increased the vulnerability of children to the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (1,13) During the reporting period, the government collected data on child work as part of its 2021 Labor Force Survey, which included measurements of the number of children engaged in paid and unpaid work, the prevalence of child labor, the number of children engaged in hazardous work, and variances in child labor prevalence based on geographical location, school attendance, sex, age group, and other factors. (2)

Long distances to schools, particularly in rural areas, an insufficient number of teachers and classrooms, and costs of learning materials are barriers to education. (2,18,19) The inability to access birth certificates and the high prevalence of early marriage of girls increase the vulnerability of children to child labor; children without birth certificates are not able to enroll in school, and once girls marry, they sometimes leave school before reaching the minimum working age and engage in work outside the household. (2,15,20,21)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Zambia has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Zambia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including an undefined age range for compulsory education.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 24 of the Constitution; Articles 16 and 81 of the Employment Code Act (22,23)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	19	Article 83 of the Employment Code Act (23)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Prohibition of Employment of Young Persons and Children (Hazardous Labor) Order; Section 137(2)(n) of the Employment Code Act (23-25)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 14 and 24 of the Constitution; Articles 143, 261, and 263 of the Penal Code; Article 3 of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act; Section 8 of the Employment Code Act (22,23,26,27)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Article 17 of Amendment to the Constitution; Article 143 of the Penal Code; Articles 2 and 3 (1-4) of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act; Sections 80 and 83 of the Employment Code Act (22,23,26,27)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 143 and 144 of the Penal Code; Sections 80 and 83 of the Employment Code Act (23,27)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Sections 80 and 83 of the Employment Code Act (23)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	18	Article 14 of the Defense Act (28)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	N/A*
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	Yes		Article 3 of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act; Articles 80 and 83 of the Employment Code Act (23,26)
Compulsory Education Age	No		Article 16 and 17 of the Education Act (29)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 15 of the Education Act (29)

* Country has no conscription (30)

The law establishes a light work framework for employment of children ages 13 to 15 but has not identified permitted light work activities. (23,31) Moreover, human trafficking provisions remain inconsistent with international standards because they require demonstration of threats, force, intimidation, or other forms of coercion to constitute a child trafficking offense. (26)

The Education Act requires that the government provide free education up to the ninth grade and stipulates that education is compulsory for children of "school-going age." The Act, however, does not set a specific age for which education is compulsory or define "school-going age," which may allow children to leave school before they are legally able to work and thereby increase their vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor. (32)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS)	Implements, enforces, and regulates child labor laws. Advises other government agencies on child labor issues and coordinates government efforts to prevent child labor through its Child Labor Unit (CLU). The CLU, which falls under the labor inspectorate, carries out inspections related to child labor. (2,33)
Ministry of Home Affairs	Enforces criminal laws against human trafficking, child commercial exploitation, use of children as soldiers, and use of children in illegal activities through its Immigration Department and Drug Enforcement Commission. (2)
Zambia Police Service	Collaborates with the Ministry of Justice to investigate and prosecute child labor cases. (2) Handles the enforcement of laws against human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities through its Child Protection and Victim Support units. (2,34) Works with immigration officials and local officials to respond to child trafficking, enforce child labor laws, and remove vulnerable children from the streets, placing them into families, foster homes, or in safe homes. (2)
Ministry of Justice	Prosecutes criminal law enforcement cases related to the worst forms of child labor through its Office of the Prosecutor. (2)
Ministry of Community Development and Social Services	Provides social services to survivors of human trafficking or sexual abuse. Operates one government shelter in Luapula province. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Zambia took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS) that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws, including insufficient financial resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$281,520 (10)	$26,000 (2)
Number of Labor Inspectors	160 (10)	240 (2)
Mechanism to Assess Civil Penalties	Yes (23)	Yes (23)
Initial Training for New Labor Inspectors	Yes (10)	No (2)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	Yes (10)	N/A (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (10)	No (2)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	630 (10)	1,800 (2)
Number Conducted at Worksite	630 (10)	1,800 (2)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	1 (10)	0 (35)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties Were Imposed	1 (10)	0 (35)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that Were Collected	1 (10)	0 (35)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (10)	Yes (2)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (10)	Yes (2)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (23)	Yes (23)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (10)	Yes (2)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (10)	Yes (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (10)	Yes (2)

In 2021, the government increased the size of its labor inspectorate to 240 inspectors and nearly tripled the number of labor inspections from 630, in 2020, to 1,800. (2) The government reported a budgetary allocation of $26,000 in 2021, a significant reduction from 2020; however, this figure is not inclusive of budget for personnel, including labor inspectors. (2) The financial resources allocated to the labor inspectorate were likely insufficient to enforce laws related to child labor. (10,36) The MLSS has stated that inadequate resources, including an insufficient budget, limited office space, inadequate training, and a lack of transportation and fuel have prevented it from adequately conducting inspections countrywide. (2,37-39)

The MLSS generally conducts planned labor inspections in registered private institutions only; inspections of unregistered institutions, including at artisanal mining sites, farms, and private homes in which child labor is most common, primarily occur in response to complaints. (37,40,41) The MLSS is conducting community sensitization campaigns and coordinating with local police to build public understanding of the labor inspectorate's role and enforcement mandates to facilitate more inspections of private and unregistered institutions. (41)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Zambia took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including insufficient financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	No (10)	Unknown (2)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (10)	N/A (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (10)	Yes (42)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (10)	Unknown (2)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (10)	17 (42)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	4 (10,13)	3 (42)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (10)	Unknown (2)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (10)	Unknown (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (10)	Yes (2)

The government did not provide complete information on its criminal law enforcement efforts, including training of new criminal law enforcement investigators, the number of investigations and convictions, and whether it imposed penalties, related to the worst forms of child labor. (2) During the reporting period, criminal law enforcement authorities rescued 17 children from the Democratic Republic of the Congo who were being trafficked to the Copperbelt region. In addition, at least three defendants were prosecuted for criminal offenses related to the commercial sexual exploitation of children. (42) However, research could not determine whether there were additional criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor in 2021. The government, with support from UNICEF, trained 75 immigration and police officers from the Eastern, Southern, and Western Provinces of Zambia, on concepts related to the trafficking of children and handling of vulnerable persons. (42)

Law enforcement agencies do not have sufficient financial and human resources to address human trafficking, and standard operating procedures to screen and identify victims remain limited. (1)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Advises and oversees child labor matters, including implementation of hazardous work regulations. Chaired by MLSS and comprises government representatives, employers, trade unions, and civil society members. The National Steering Committee on Child Labor was not active in 2021. (2)
District Child Labor Committees (DCLCs)	Respond to child labor complaints at the district level, file complaints to MLSS, and serve as the main referral mechanism for social welfare services in collaboration with CLU of MLSS. (2) Comprises the Zambia Police Service; MLSS; the Ministry of Community Development, Mother, and Child Health; and civil society stakeholders. (11) Coordinate with Community Child Labor Committees, which operate at the community level to raise awareness and promote mobilization against child labor. DCLCs were active during the reporting period and continued to monitor matters of child labor at the local level and hold sensitization meetings and trainings. (2)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Coordinating Committee for Children	Coordinates implementation of the National Child Policy and government responses to child protection issues, including child trafficking, sexual exploitation of children, and child labor. Led by the Ministry of Youth, Sport, and Child Development (MYSCD) in coordination with DCLCs that operate in selected districts. (2) Research indicates that the National Coordinating Committee for Children met late in 2021 with a focus on implementation of the National Child Safeguard Framework. (35)
Interministerial Committee on Anti-Human Trafficking	Shares information and coordinates efforts in addressing human trafficking issues. Chaired by the Ministry of Home Affairs and includes representation from MLSS, the Ministry of Justice, the Ministry of Health, the Ministry of Community Development and Social Services, the Ministry of Local Government, MYSCD, the Zambia Police Service, the Department of Immigration, IOM, and a number of NGOs. (2) The Interministerial Committee on Anti-Human Trafficking met six times during the reporting period, working on an updated national action plan for trafficking in persons, coordinating trainings, and developing a new national referral mechanism for children on the move. The new referral mechanism, which was operationalized during the reporting period, aims to improve responses and care for survivors of child trafficking. (42)

Communication lapses among government agencies may hinder coordination and the ability of agencies to implement their mandates related to the worst forms of child labor (11)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Labor Policy	Outlines objectives for prevention and elimination of child labor and designates responsible agencies to address child labor issues. (43) During the reporting period the government launched and published its second National Action Plan (NAP) for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor, which is the implementation strategy for the National Child Labor Policy. The updated NAP outlines strategies for the effective elimination by 2025 of the worst forms of child labor in Zambia through coordination of various stakeholders. (7)
7th National Development Plan (2017–2021)	Outlined Zambia's strategy to promote inclusive economic growth and national development to support Zambia's long-term goal of becoming a "middle income" country, including through the elimination of child labor, by 2030. Sought to improve access to quality education and reduce poverty by 20 percent by 2021. (44) In 2021, the government launched the International Year for the Elimination of Child Labor to encourage actions to eradicate child labor. In addition, in June, the government held public and radio awareness events during the commemoration of the World Day Against Child Labor. (2)
UN's Sustainable Development Partnership Framework (2016–2021)	An $806 million framework, funded by the UN, that aimed to protect children, including through the prevention of child labor. (46) In 2021, the government and the UN supported awareness-raising on the risks of child labor during the national commemoration of the World Day Against Child Labor and facilitated the development of the National Skills Demand Survey Report for Zambia, which provides labor market information to inform career paths of youths. (2) The UN Sustainable Development Partnership Framework expired during the reporting period; however, the government is working with the UN to establish an updated partnership that will run from 2023–2027. (35)

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (11,47-49)

The government has a National Employment and Labor Market Policy, which outlines objectives for promoting decent work in Zambia, but the policy does not incorporate strategies for prevention and elimination of child labor. (50) Also, the government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the Education Policy. (51)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Social Cash Transfer Program†	Government program to provide funds to families and increase school enrollment. (52) As of September 2020, about 700,000 were receiving benefits under the Social Cash Transfer Program. (53) The government allocated $137 million (ZMW 2.3 billion) to the Social Cash Transfer Program in 2021. (2)
Achieving Reduction of Child Labor in Support of Education (ARISE) (2019-2021)	Japan Tobacco International and Winrock International joint initiative that sought to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in tobacco-growing communities in Brazil, Malawi, Tanzania, and Zambia. (18,54)
Determined, Resilient, Empowered, AIDS-free, Mentored, and Safe (DREAMS)	A $30 million initiative, funded jointly by USAID and the U.S. President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief, aimed at increasing protections for vulnerable adolescent girls and young women through access to health services, including support for HIV prevention and treatment, family planning, care for survivors of gender-based violence, and economic empowerment activities to promote access to a basic income; a total of 177,015 adolescent girls and young women were enrolled in the program as of 2020. (10,25,55-57)

† Program is funded by the Government of Zambia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (11,61)

In 2021, the government launched a new policy aimed at universal free public education in Zambia and financed the recruitment of 22,000 additional teachers and the purchase of desks and school supplies. (2) In addition, the Ministry of Labor, in collaboration with other line ministries, international cooperating partners, NGOs, and CSOs implemented a school re-integration and family reunion program for children withdrawn from child labor. (2)

Research indicates that problems with tracking of payments and cash flows within the Social Cash Transfer System resulted in irregular payment disbursements, including delayed and reduced payments, for vulnerable families receiving funds. (10,25) Moreover, an evaluation of the Social Cash Transfer Program found that it resulted in a net increase in child labor, particularly in farm work and cattle herding, because families used funds from the program to expand their agricultural and livestock holdings, which resulted in an increase of children's work activities within the home. Children were also more likely to work excessively long hours and there was no reduction in children's work outside of the home. (62) Although Zambia has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem in all relevant sectors, particularly regarding child labor in agriculture, domestic work, and commercial sexual exploitation.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Zambia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography and the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.	2018 – 2021
	Determine the list of light work activities for children ages 13 to 15.	2018 – 2021
	Ensure that laws prohibiting child trafficking do not require threats, the use of force, or coercion for an act to be considered child trafficking.	2017 – 2021
	Establish through statutory instrument the "school-going age" for compulsory education, in line with the minimum age for work.	2012 – 2021
Enforcement	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts, including the number of child labor violations found, the number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed, and the number of child labor penalties imposed that were collected.	2021
	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors, including by training new labor inspectors at the beginning of their employment and providing refresher courses.	2021
	Ensure that inspections cover all areas in which children work, including registered and unregistered businesses.	2010 – 2021
	Ensure that labor inspectors have sufficient funding and have resources, including vehicles and fuel, office space, and training, to enforce labor laws throughout the country.	2010 – 2021

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Publish information on criminal law enforcement efforts, including training of new investigators, the number of investigations and convictions, and whether penalties were imposed.	2014 – 2021
	Develop and implement consistent procedures to screen and identify human trafficking victims while ensuring government agencies have sufficient human and financial resources to address human trafficking.	2018 – 2021
Coordination	Improve lines of communication and clarify responsibilities among agencies to improve effectiveness and referrals to social services.	2011 – 2021
	Ensure all coordinating bodies are active and able to carry out their mandates.	2021
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Education Policy and the National Employment and Labor Market Policy.	2013 – 2021
Social Programs	Ensure that all children have access to education and are not restricted by long travel distances, auxiliary school costs, lack of classrooms and teachers, lack of birth certificates, or early marriage.	2012 – 2021
	Harmonize child labor prevention and elimination measures and improve financial tracking in the Social Cash Transfer Program.	2020 – 2021
	Expand existing programs to address the full scope of the child labor problem in all relevant sectors, including agriculture, mining, domestic work, and commercial sexual exploitation.	2011 – 2021

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2021, Zimbabwe made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The National Assembly began consideration of amendments to the Labor Act, which would increase penalties for child labor violations. The government, with the United Nations, also launched an updated Sustainable Development Cooperation Assistance Framework, prioritizing increased educational access and social protections for girls and other groups vulnerable to child labor. However, Zimbabwe is assessed as having made only minimal advancement because it implemented a practice that delays advancement to eliminate child labor. Evidenced by a pattern of threats and intimidation of worker organizations and trade unionists, high-level officials within the Government of Zimbabwe and the ruling political party interfered with a delegation representing worker and civil society organizations to investigate concerns of child labor occurring at a commercial farm, sending party activists to the farm to threaten and intimidate the delegation. Children in Zimbabwe are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and forced labor in mines and on farms. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture, including in the harvesting of sugarcane and tobacco. The government did not publicly release information on its labor and criminal law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report, and law enforcement agencies lack resources to enforce child labor laws.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Zimbabwe are subjected to the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also experience forced labor in mines and on farms. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture, including in the harvesting of sugarcane and tobacco. (1,2)

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	40.4 (Unavailable)
Working children by sector	5 to 14
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	90.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	42.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		90.0

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2020, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2022. (3)

Source for all other data: International Labor Organization's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 6 (MICS 6). (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including the production of tea, cotton, tobacco, corn, and sugarcane (5-14)
	Fishing, including casting nets, hauling fish loads, and sorting fish (2,8,10,15)
	Work in forestry, such as dragging logs from felling sites and loading logs for transport (2,10)
	Cattle herding (2,9)
Industry	Mining and panning of gold and chrome, using dangerous chemicals such as cyanide and mercury, and extracting material from underground passages and quarries† (10,16-20)
	Molding bricks (18,21,22)
Services	Street work, including vending and begging (8,14,23-26)
	Domestic work, including child care, house cleaning, and gardening (8,10,14)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1,14,27-30)
Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in agriculture, including herding cattle, mining, and domestic work (30)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Deteriorating economic conditions likely make children more vulnerable to child labor. (2,32,33) Zimbabwean children living in border towns are trafficked to South Africa, Mozambique, and Zambia, where they become victims of commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor in domestic work. (30) Some families recruit rural children, especially orphans, to work in cities, often with promises of education or adoption. Such children are subject to domestic service or are forced to work in mining. (34) Girls, as young as 11, are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, particularly along major transit corridors and in mining areas. (1,2,18,30,35)

Children ages 8 to 17 work on tobacco farms, performing activities such as planting, weeding, harvesting, packing, and grading tobacco, tasks that often expose them to toxic chemicals and the effects of nicotine from handling tobacco leaves. (7,20,36) Children also work on sugar plantations in the southeastern part of the country, where they wield dangerous tools and endure high temperatures. (9,37) Moreover, children work at artisanal and small-scale gold-mining sites, where they face risks including collapsed mines and exposure to mercury, and in commercial sexual exploitation around mining areas. In some cases, armed criminal groups have lured children to mining sites with the promise of self-employment and then forced them to mine gold under the threat of physical harm or death. (30) During the COVID-19 pandemic, multiple civil society stakeholders also have observed greater numbers of children engaged in vending, brickmaking, working on tobacco and sugarcane farms, and in the worst forms of child labor, including the use of children in commercial sexual exploitation. (18,26,30,38,39)

During the reporting period, the government implemented a practice that was detrimental to the prevention and elimination of the worst forms of child labor in Zimbabwe by interfering with worker and civil society organizations’ efforts to address child labor. Youth activists for the ruling Zimbabwe African Nation Union-Patriotic Front party, under the direction of Kazembe Kazembe, Zimbabwe’s Minister of Home Affairs and other high-level government officials, sought to block a delegation of workers and civil society organizations seeking to investigate concerns of child labor occurring at a commercial farm, using threats and other forms of intimidation. (40,41)

The Education Amendment Act stipulates children’s right to education regardless of race, nationality, or place of birth. (42,43) However, refugees and undocumented children who come to Zimbabwe from neighboring countries, and children who otherwise lack birth certificates, face barriers to education because, beginning in grade seven, children must present identity documents to sit for national exams. (14,44-46) Children, especially those in rural areas, often are not registered at birth because many Zimbabweans are unaware of birth registration requirements. In addition, impoverished parents sometimes leave their children under the care of other relatives, an arrangement that often complicates the process of obtaining a birth certificate because Zimbabwe requires the presence of at least one parent for birth registration. (47) As a result of these barriers, children may drop out of school, increasing their vulnerability to child labor. (2,8,48) In addition, poor school infrastructure, including lack of water and hygiene facilities, an insufficient number of teachers, and long travel distances to reach schools may contribute to higher dropout rates and vulnerability to child labor, particularly in rural areas. (2)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Zimbabwe has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Zimbabwe's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including lack of criminal prohibitions against slavery.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Section 11.1 of the Labor Act; Section 10A(1) of the Children's Act (49,50)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 11.4 of the Labor Act; Section 10A(4) of the Children's Act (49,50)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Section 3.1 of the Labor Relations (Employment of Children and Young Persons) Regulations; Section 2 and 10A(4) of the Children's Act (49,51)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Sections 54 and 55 of the Constitution; Sections 2 and 4A of the Labor Act; Sections 2 and 3 of the Trafficking in Persons Act (50,52)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 3 of the Trafficking in Persons Act (53)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 61, 83, 86, and 87 of the Criminal Law Act; Section 8(2)a of the Children's Act; Sections 2 and 3 of the Trafficking in Persons Act (49,53,54)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 156 of the Criminal Law Act; Section 10 of the Children's Act (49,54)
Minimum Age for Voluntary State Military Recruitment	Yes	16	Sections 5, 9, and 10 of the National Service Act (55)
Prohibition of Compulsory Recruitment of Children by (State) Military	Yes		Section 9 of the National Service Act (55)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment by Non-state Armed Groups	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16‡	Sections 2 and 5 of the Education Act (42,43)
Free Public Education	No		Sections 5, 6, and 13 of the Education Act (42,43)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (56)

During the reporting period, Parliament began consideration of amendments to the Labor Act that increase both maximum fines and prison sentences from 2 to 10 years for violations related to child labor. (57)

Laws prohibiting forced labor are not sufficient as they do not criminalize slavery. (53) Although the Education Act establishes the right of children to state-funded education up to age 16, the law maintains the ability of the Minister of Education to institute instructional fees. (42,43)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority and operations of enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Public Service, Labor and Social Welfare (MPSLSW)	Enforces labor and anti-human trafficking laws and investigates labor-related complaints, including those involving child labor. (16) Also conducts industry- and sectoral-based labor inspections through appointed agents of national employment councils, comprising representation from both employers' associations and trade unions. (58,59)
Zimbabwe Republic Police	Enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor in conjunction with MPSLSW and the Ministry of Justice, Legal and Parliamentary Affairs. (16)
Ministry of Justice, Legal and Parliamentary Affairs	Oversees all courts, including labor courts. Addresses human trafficking and child victim cases through victim-centered courts. (16)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2021, labor law enforcement agencies in Zimbabwe took actions to address child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Public Service, Labor and Social Welfare (MPSLSW) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the lack of authority to assess penalties.

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (14)

The government did not make available information about its labor law enforcement efforts for inclusion in this report. (14) According to reporting from a major international organization, the government conducted 2,603 inspections in 2021; however, separate reporting from a trade union indicates that labor inspections have been significantly curtailed as a result of pandemic restrictions. (14,61,62)

As of 2020, the labor inspectorate employed 120 inspectors, which is likely insufficient for the size of Zimbabwe's workforce of approximately 7.4 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Zimbabwe would need to employ about 494 labor inspectors. (14,63,64) The limited number of inspectors and a lack of resources, such as available vehicles, likely hinder the labor inspectorate's ability to conduct child labor investigations and adequately monitor rural farms at which child labor occurs. (2,58) Furthermore, labor inspectors also oversee arbitration and conciliation, a responsibility that compromises their ability to conduct onsite investigations to address child labor. (58)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2021, criminal law enforcement agencies in Zimbabwe took actions to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MPSLSW that may hinder adequate criminal and labor law enforcement, including lack of information on law enforcement efforts.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2020	2021
Initial Training for New Criminal Investigators	Unknown (2)	Unknown (14)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (2)	Unknown (14)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (2)	Yes (65)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (2)	Unknown (14)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (2)	Unknown (14)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (2)	Unknown (14)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (2)	Unknown (14)
Imposed Penalties for Violations Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (2)	Unknown (14)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (14)

The government did not provide information on its criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor for inclusion in this report. (14) During the reporting period the government undertook seven human trafficking investigations, related to commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor, resulting in four new criminal prosecutions and one conviction. However, research was not able to verify the ages of the victims and whether these cases were related to the worst forms of child labor. (65) More than 500 police officers, 10 immigration officers, and 20 members of the Anti-Trafficking Interministerial Committee participated in training on various topics including the international and national legal framework, essential elements of trafficking in persons, techniques for interviewing victims, differences between human trafficking and smuggling, the national referral mechanism, and push and pull factors that contribute to human trafficking. (65)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of resources.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Steering Committee to Address the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Leads government coordination to address the worst forms of child labor. Chaired by MPSLSW and includes the Ministries of Health and Child Care; Primary and Secondary Education; and Youth Development, Indigenization, and Economic Empowerment. Also includes international organizations and civil society groups, such as workers' and employers' organizations. (2) Research could not determine whether the National Steering Committee to Address the Worst Forms of Child Labor was active during the reporting period. (14)
Ministry-Level Committee on Children's Issues	Coordinates government ministries' efforts related to children's issues, including child labor. Includes MPSLSW and the Ministries of Education; Women's Affairs; and Youth Development, Indigenization and Economic Empowerment. (16) Includes Child Protection Committees, which operate at the village, ward, district, provincial, and national levels, to discuss issues affecting children, including child labor. (66) Research could not determine whether the Ministry-Level Committee on Children's Issues was active during the reporting period; community-level committees likely remained in place, however, operated at varying levels of performance due to gaps in resources and capacity, especially in rural areas. (14)
Anti-Trafficking Inter-Ministerial Committee	Coordinates actions to prevent and eliminate human trafficking, including the implementation of the Trafficking in Persons National Plan of Action (NAPLAC). (30) Comprises the Ministries of Labor and Social Services, Women's Affairs, Home Affairs, Health and Child Welfare, Information and Publicity, Education, Local Government, and Foreign Affairs; the National Prosecuting Authority; the Office of the Registrar General; the Department of Immigration; the Zimbabwe Republic Police; and the Financial Intelligence Unit. (65) The Anti-Trafficking Inter-Ministerial Committee met twice during the reporting period, participating in trainings and reviewing NAPLAC. (65)
National Task Force on Street Children	Outlines strategies to address child labor, including feeding street children at drop-in centers, reuniting children with their families, and offering counseling sessions. Chaired by MPSLSW and includes NGOs that work on street children's issues. (67) Also includes the Ministry of Home Affairs, represented by the Zimbabwe Republic Police. (66) Research could not determine whether the National Task Force on Street Children was active during the reporting period. (14)

A lack of funding hinders coordinating bodies from carrying out their mandates. (2)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including lack of implementation of key policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor	Promotes understanding of child labor issues and creates an entity to coordinate responses to the findings. Consists of three focus areas: education assistance, poverty assistance through a cash transfer scheme, and health assistance. (2) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor during the reporting period.
Trafficking in Persons National Plan of Action (NAPLAC) (2019–2021)	Aims to implement the Palermo Protocol through the development of strategies to address human trafficking, with an emphasis on prevention, protection, prosecution, and partnership. (68) During the reporting period, the government drafted a TIP Amendment Bill; however it had to restart the process because of a procedural error. (14)
Zimbabwe UN Sustainable Development Assistance Cooperation Framework (2022–2026) †	UN and Zimbabwe cooperative agreement to advance economic and sustainable development goals. Prioritizes four core areas: equitable and quality social services for girls and other vulnerable groups; strengthening of health and food security; inclusive and sustainable economic growth, including decent work opportunities; and promoting accountable institutions and systems of rule of law, human rights, and access to justice. (69) Prioritizes school enrollment as an indicator. (69)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (70)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2021, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the inadequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Harmonized Social Cash Transfer †	Government-funded unconditional cash transfer program, with support from UNICEF, to assist labor-constrained and food-insecure households to avert risk-coping strategies, such as child labor. (2,71) As of 2021, the Harmonized Social Cash Transfer Program covered 55,000 households across 20 districts. (14)
Basic Education Assistance Module †	Government program, with support by the UK Foreign Commonwealth and Development Office, that provides basic financial assistance to families for education costs, such as tuition and examination fees. Aims to keep children in school and to enroll children who lack access to school because of economic hardship. (16) Allocated $25 million and covered tuition, examination fees, and levies for 859,000 children in 2021, a slight decrease from 950,000 children in 2020. (14,72)
Mobile Birth Registration Program †	Government mobile birth registration program, with support from UNICEF and implemented by the Office of the Registrar General and some local governments, to ensure that citizens receive identity documents, including birth certificates. (47,73) Fields mobile teams are located in every district in the country. (74) During the reporting period, the government, with the support of UNICEF, provided registration assistance to at least 6,645 children under age 16 in areas effected by Cyclone Idai in 2019 and flooding in 2017. (62) UNICEF funding for the Mobile Birth Registration Program ended in 2021. (62)
Child Protection Fund for the National Action Plan for Orphans and Vulnerable Children (2016–2022)	UNICEF Child Protection Fund program, supported by the UK Foreign, Commonwealth and Development Office, which focuses on equity and access to quality education for children and provides child protection services. Provided cash assistance for families to keep children in school. (70,75) In 2021, UNICEF had provided psychosocial support activities, reaching 132,243 children, including children with disabilities and support for parents and caregivers. (62)
Determined, Resilient, Empowered, AIDS-free, Mentored, and Safe (DREAMS)	$106 million, U.S. President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief/USAID-funded country program that aims to reduce rates of HIV among adolescent girls and young women, including girls vulnerable to commercial sexual exploitation. (76,77) In 2021, the DREAMS program provided support to 244,046 adolescent girls and young women and expanded services from 6 to 16 districts. In addition, 20,678 adolescent girls and young women benefited from economic strengthening interventions to improve economic security and earning capacity. Finally, 438,669 orphans and vulnerable children and their families received services through USAID programming during the reporting period. (62)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Although Zimbabwe has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially child labor in agriculture, mining, and commercial sexual exploitation. Research found problems with the distribution of social support benefits because structures within the ruling party control the allocation of food, allowances, seeds, and other forms of assistance, which may result in the exclusion of vulnerable families from assistance programs. (2,14)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Zimbabwe (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2021
	Establish, by law, free basic education.	2009 – 2021
	Ensure that laws prohibiting forced labor criminalize slavery.	2021
Enforcement	Establish a mechanism to assess civil penalties for child labor violations.	2017 – 2021
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate has sufficient financial and human resources to address labor violations and enforce minimum age protections in all sectors, including agriculture.	2017 – 2021
	Publish information on the government's labor law enforcement efforts.	2021
	Publish information on the government's criminal law enforcement efforts.	2015 – 2021
Coordination	Ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2016 – 2021
	Ensure that all Child Protection Committees, including those in rural areas, have adequate resources to operate according to their intended mandates.	2021
Government Policies	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor and publish results from activities implemented during the reporting period.	2010 – 2021
Social Programs	Cease the practice of interfering with civil society and work organizations seeking to investigate and respond to issues of child labor; and hold government and party officials engaging in such practices accountable.	2021
	Improve access to secondary school by ensuring that all children are registered at birth and by removing identity documentation requirements to take national exams.	2014 – 2021
	Enhance efforts to make education accessible to all children, including children living in rural areas, by improving access to water and hygiene facilities within schools, reducing travel distances to schools, and increasing the number of teachers.	2016 – 2021
	Expand existing social programs to address child labor; especially child labor in agriculture, commercial sexual exploitation, and mining.	2010 – 2021
	Improve systems for the distribution of social support benefits to ensure that allocations reach vulnerable households that are most in need of the benefits.	2020 – 2021

WHAT CAN YOU DO TO HELP ADDRESS CHILD LABOR AND FORCED LABOR?

ASK QUESTIONS

- Could some of the goods I buy be made by child labor or forced labor?
- Do workers have a voice to speak out against labor abuses?
- What are companies doing to end child labor and forced labor in global supply chains?
- What are governments doing to combat child labor and forced labor?

TAKE ACTION

- Empower yourself with knowledge by downloading USDOL's Sweat & Toil and Comply Chain apps and accessing our Better Trade Tool.
- Make your voice heard by spreading the word among friends, family, and the companies you buy from and invest in.
- Show your support for organizations that are working to end these abuses.

DEMAND CHANGE

ADVOCATE FOR A WORLD IN WHICH:

- Workers everywhere can raise their voices against child labor, forced labor, and other abuses.
- Companies make serious commitments to ensure that global supply chains are free of products made by child labor and forced labor, especially those on USDOL's List of Goods Produced by Child Labor or Forced Labor.
- Your investments have a positive social impact by promoting responsible labor practices.
- Governments work vigorously to adopt the country-specific suggested actions in USDOL's Findings on the Worst Forms of Child Labor.
